EX-KAISER WILHELM DEAD

DOCTORS TOLD TO BE PREPARED FOR LONG WAR

U. S. Needs Outlined by Parran.

BY GEORGE MORGENSTERN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., June 3.—Surgeon General Thomas Parran of the United States public health service told the American Medical association convention today that the medical profession and public health agencies must prepare American man power, in industry as well as in the combat services, for a long war.

Dr. Thomas Parran.

The assumption that medicine will be at government call for a long time to come was implicit in discussions both at a scientific meeting on medicine and national preparedness in the municipal auditorium and at the deliberations of the association's house of delegates in the Statler hotel.

Dr. Parran said that almost a million work years were lost thru illness in American industry last year, and that even a 10 per cent reduction in industrial illness would be equivalent to a gain of 12 army cantonments or five battleships, or 16,400 combat tanks.

Should Prepare Now.

"All signs point to a long war," Dr. Parran said. "The public health and medical professions should draw the blue prints now for early nationwide action to put all of our knowledge to work in this, its hour of peril."

Dr. Frank H. Lahey of Boston, inducted president of the association tonight after Gov. John Bricker of Ohio and Mayor Edward Blythin of Cleveland had welcomed the delegates, said that the indefinite duration of the preparedness undertaking makes it necessary that the government not interfere with the constant production of a supply of doctors by drafting medical students or interns.

"Too Late to Appease."

"It is too late for the United States to appease the dictator," Dr. Lahey said in his address. "I prefer destruction if it need be to survival in cowering terror. Give us positive commitment rather than compromising, unsatisfying safety. I prefer the uncertainties of the hazardous undertaking frankly faced as hazardous."

Anticipation of a shooting war was also voiced in a message sent to the convention by Maj. Gen. James C. Magee, army surgeon general. He revealed that there is a potential shortage in stainless steel surgical instruments for the service, because of shortage of basic materials and priorities.

Dr. Joseph E. Moore of Baltimore, Md., said that altho venereal diseases in 1939 had fallen to an all-time low of 31 cases per 1,000 men in the army and 85 in the navy, effective control in case of war would require the creation of a special medical corps trained in clinical and public health control measures.

In the world war, Dr. Moore said, there were 483,717 venereal cases in the American army and 57,146 in the navy.

Discusses Industrial Absences.

Absence from industry thru illness as a handicap to the armament program was discussed by Dr. Stanley J. Seeger of Milwaukee, who said that every male worker loses an average of 8 days yearly and every woman 12. "The amount of time lost from general illness is 15 times as great as the total lost from accidents or occupational diseases," he said.

Dr. Esmond R. Long of Philadelphia said that the present program of making X-ray examinations of all draft registrants should not only make possible the creation of an army virtually free of tuberculosis, but save the government a tremendous expense such as was incurred in the world war by failing to make such examinations.

The A. M. A. showed a disposition to coöperate in preparedness, despite its strained relations with the national administration. The house of delegates on the one hand voted down resolutions looking toward salaries for physicians now serving on draft boards and draft appeals boards without pay. On the other hand it voted unanimously to appeal the association's conviction and a $2,500 fine imposed for alleged conspiracy to violate the anti-trust act in Washington, D. C.

Relapse Ends Long Career of War Emperor

BERLIN, June 4 [Wednesday] (AP).—Former Kaiser Wilhelm II. of Germany died today at the age of 82, the official German news agency, DNB, reported from Amsterdam.

Death occurred at 11:30 a. m. [4:30 a. m., Chicago time] at the Doorn estate where the former ruler of imperial Germany had lived in exile since his flight to the Netherlands at the end of the world war.

The news of the ex-kaiser's death came just a short time after a report that his condition had taken a turn for the worse. The news of the change, after several days of steady improvement, was contained in a bulletin issued by the office of the ex-kaiser's major domo at the Hohenzollern estate at Doorn, the Netherlands.

The 82 year old world war emperor was stricken several weeks ago with an obscure intestinal disorder.

Informed sources in Berlin said the change for the worse today had resulted from a lung emboly.

[An emboly is defined as the condition in which one portion of a hollow organ is drawn back within another.]

LIFE OF EX-KAISER

[By Associated Press.]

Rising to a height of power in one of the oldest and strongest empires of Europe, and then, through the fates of war, falling with his once mighty empire, Wilhelm Hohenzollern, formerly Emperor Wilhelm II. of Germany and king of Prussia, had one of the most dramatic, picturesque and checkered careers among the imperial monarchs of the old world. The great war in which he led his empire and its allies thru the most horrible conflict in the history of the world was his crowning effort in world domination and in support of his theory that "might makes right."

His armies and those of his allies had been uniformly successful for nearly four years, advancing at one time to within 14 miles of Paris, but in 1918 the tide of battle turned in favor of the entente powers. With the breaking of the famous Hindenburg line, in which American troops played one of the most important parts, the former kaiser began to see the handwriting on the wall.

Abdicates Nov. 10, 1918.

The allied armies continued their advance, were pounding at the gates of the fortress of Metz and preparing to thrust at the heart of Germany when, on Nov. 10, 1918, with the inevitable crash of the central powers in sight, the former kaiser abdicated his throne and fled as a fugitive to Amerongen, Holland. The next day the armistice was signed, bringing to an end the hostilities of war that had cost upwards of 10 million lives and billions of dollars. Later the former emperor purchased an estate at Doorn, Holland, there to spend the latter years of his life—years that were filled with sorrow and tragedy, but which also contained a bit of romance—his marriage to Princess Hermine of Reuss in November, 1922, about 19 months after the death of the former kaiserin.

Apparently the former kaiser fore-

EXTENSIONS TO THE SPRINGBOARD

MORE ILLINOIS TOWNS TO JOIN IN PARADE TO DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME

La Salle, Ill., June 3 [Special].—The Bureau county towns of Spring Valley and Ladd tomorrow will join the numerous other Illinois communities now operating on daylight saving time. Mendota will move clocks ahead an hour next Sunday. Among the towns and cities already on the advanced time are Peoria, Bloomington, Quincy, Normal, Ottawa, Joliet, and Batavia.

All La Salle industrial plants and business houses, with the exception of taverns, were operating on daylight saving time despite Mayor H. M. Orr's veto of the daylight time ordinance at a stormy session of the city council last night.

TWO DEMOCRATS ELECTED TO FILL ALDERMEN POSTS

Two vacancies in the city council were filled in special elections yesterday. The new aldermen are Francis E. Callahan, Democrat, who defeated Albert F. Keeney, Republican, in the 37th ward, and County Commissioner Fred Fischman, who was unopposed in the 24th ward, a Democratic stronghold long represented by Lieut. Col. Jacob M. Arvey now in the army.

Rain and the power of the city hall administration combined as factors to give Callahan 14,407 votes against 8,472 for Keeney. Democrats were jubilant because Dwight H. Green carried the ward by 7,000 as the G. O. P. candidate for governor last November. In February, 1939, Roger J. Kiley, Democrat, received 19,714 votes out of 28,915 to win over three opponents. Kiley resigned to become a Superior court judge.

U. S. Requisitions 2 More Ships; Total Now Is 20

New York, June 3 (AP).—The maritime commission today requisitioned the new 9,300 ton American President liner President Hayes and the 7,978 ton Delorleans, a Delta liner operating between gulf ports and the east coast of South America. The requisitions brought to a total of 20 the ships taken over by the government in less than a week for military auxiliary use.

The collapse of the Leonard D. Balter semiscientific expedition to Ecuador was described yesterday in the federal court of Judge William J. Campbell.

It was told by four would-be explorers who described their disillusionment upon learning the truth about Balter, their "intrepid leader."

Balter is on trial before Judge Campbell and a jury on charges of mail fraud in promoting a scheme to explore the jungles of Ecuador for solid gold nuggets and the secrets of the Jivaro Indians. He was arrested after half a dozen persons had paid him approximately $1,000, according to Edward J. Ryan, assistant United States attorney.

A Dream of Quick Riches.

One of the witnesses was Lewis W. Graddy, 37 years old, of Brooklyn, N. Y. He earns a living at the control of a subway train in New York City, but when he's off duty he dreams of fortunes to be made quickly in distant lands.

That's why he was interested, he testified, when he read Balter's glowing advertisments about rivers where gold could be fished out in solid round balls.

"It sounded like a good business proposition," Graddy said. "I thought I could better myself and my family."

Graddy said he gave Balter $300 as his share of the expenses of the exploration. He said he tried to get some of the money back a few days later and Balter gave him a worthless check.

Tells of Paying $200.

John C. Molitur, 29, a building trades laborer of Chicago Heights, said he sent $200 to Balter.

"I have been interested in paleontology and archaeology for years," he testified, "and when this chance came to study those primitive tribes I jumped at it. I was interested, too, in Balter's tales of the fortunes that were awaiting us. He said he had been a mining engineer in South America 10 years and had won a big stake. He told me he had lost it all up here to 'white Indians' and wanted to go back for more."

Anthony V. Kotchi, formerly of South Milwaukee, Wis., came back from Camp Beauregard, La., in his draftee's uniform to testify to his loss of $300. Harold Wagner of Fort Wayne, Ind., testified Balter had accepted and then rejected him and that it hadn't cost him any money. The defense will have its inning today.

CAPT. JIMMY'S RIGHT TO DECORATIONS ON UNIFORM CHALLENGED

Washington, D. C., June 3 (AP).—Representative Robert W. Kean [R., N. J.] called the attention of the house today to a photograph of Capt. James Roosevelt wearing a number of campaign ribbons on his marine corps uniform, and expressed belief the President's son was authorized to wear only one of them.

Kean said he learned from the marine corps that in May, 1936, while serving as the President's aide, Capt. Roosevelt was awarded the diploma of the Southern Cross of Brazil; in May, 1939, the Order of Military Merit of the Dominican republic, and in March, 1938, the Order of the Crown of Belgium.

Kean said an act of congress passed in 1937 authorized the President's son to accept only the Brazilian decoration.

JAIL WOMAN FOR SELLING TAINTED COFFEE IN BERLIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 3.—Coffee beans tainted with mildew still are a treat for coffee loving Germans. A woman shopkeeper in Berlin whispered to favored customers that she could let them have an ounce or two of the rare beans, but failed to mention that the "extra fine brand" smelled of dank cellars.

A Berlin court sentenced the shopkeeper to one month in prison for deceiving her customers, while an accomplice was fined 100 marks [normally about $40].

Germans are paying incredible sums for bootleg coffee, much of which has been smuggled in from occupied territories. Prices of 30 to 50 marks [from about $12 to $20] for half a pound of genuine coffee are no rarity.

Envoy Leahy Gets French Driver's License; but Why?

VICHY, France, June 3 (AP).—United States Ambassador William D. Leahy today presented himself for a French driver's license test and passed it. Embassy members said they could not imagine why he wanted a license, since his chauffeur drives him everywhere.

$3,000,000 San Juan Pier to Be Built for U. S. Army

SAN JUAN, P. R., June 3.—The army announced today that it will award a $3,000,000 contract for construction of a pier on the south side of San Juan bay. The pier will be completed within six months.

SEE NEW FRENCH WAR POLICY IN LINE WITH AXIS

Cabinet Meets Twice with Weygand.

Hears Nazis Get Bases

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 3.—Under the recent agreement between Adolf Hitler and French Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan on French-German collaboration, six French naval bases will become available for joint use by the French and German fleets, the naval correspondent of the News Chronicle declared tonight. The six bases are Sete and Villefranche, southern France; Beirut, Syria; Algiers, Algeria; Casablanca, Morocco, and Dakar, French West Africa. The News Chronicle also said, "Germany is using Dakar as a submarine base and U-boats from there practically have blockaded the [Portuguese] Cape Verde Islands."

VICHY, France, June 3 (AP).—Two extraordinary French cabinet meetings today were described by an authoritative source as portents of a new orientation of French policy as a result of yesterday's Brenner pass meeting of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

"This orientation is taking shape at a moment when on all sides a new turn is awaited in international developments. The meeting of Hitler and Mussolini is an augur of this new turn," an authorized source said.

Gen. Maxime Weygand, commander of French North African forces and an expert on Syrian defense, attended both cabinet meetings and the exceptional ministerial activity in his presence was taken as an indication that developments could be looked for in the Mediterranean.

Tense British-French relations, particularly regarding French mandated Syria on the eastern shore of the Mediterranean, were uppermost in minds of diplomats as the cabinet met.

Refer to Darlan's Attack.

After the meetings an authoritative source said he believed they were connected with the recent oral attack on England by French Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan as well as with the Brenner conference.

[Admiral Darlan last Saturday declared, "I am determined to carry on my duty. I remain decided more than ever to force respect of France's right to free use of her ports and routes of communication." He assailed British air attacks on Tunisia and Syria and interception of French ships, charging that this was proof of Britain's "piratical" means of replacing, at French expense, her dwindling merchant tonnage.]

Lines Up with Germany.

New York, June 3 (AP).—The British Broadcasting corporation tonight attributed this statement to the German controled radio in Paris:

"From the economic as well as the moral point of view France lines up at the side of Germany. Vichy and Paris mean to behave toward Berlin in the same way as Washington, D. C., is behaving toward London. France will help Germany in her fight against the British empire to the fullest extent possible without entering into war against Britain."

French Ships Pass Gibraltar.

LONDON, June 3 (AP).—Four large French merchantmen escorted by a patrol boat entered the Mediterranean thru the Strait of Gibraltar today, according to a Reuters [British] dispatch from the official French news agency at Vichy.

'America First' Is Denied Use of School Auditorium

San Francisco, Cal., June 3 (AP).—The America First committee was refused permission today to hold a meeting in the Marina Junior High school auditorium on the ground such a gathering would be too controversial. The board of education unanimously adopted a resolution denying a permit after hearing opposition speakers representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars, women's clubs, and other organizations.

Paris to Practice Air Raid Alert; 1st Under Nazi Rule

VICHY, France, June 3 (AP).—A practice air raid alert will be held in Paris tomorrow, the first since German occupation of the capital, it was announced today.

SHORTAGE OF WAR TOOLS SHOWN AT CORPS EXERCISES

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Manchester, Tenn., June 3.—Shortage of equipment is evident in the training of 77,000 troops in this area for field exercises of the 7th corps, 2d army, and also those in nearby Camp Forrest, home of the 33d [Illinois] division.

Only the 30th [Georgia, Tennessee, and Carolinas] division has sufficient trucks for movement of its troops during the maneuver. The 5th [regular] and 27th [New York] divisions are forced to move their infantrymen by truck shuttle service to get them into position for the simulated battle that is to start tomorrow. Many trucks are unserviceable because spare parts are lacking.

All divisions are short 37 mm. guns and 105 mm. howitzers, the weapon adopted to replace the world war 75 mm. guns. And, altho the battle of the Cumberland valley is a corps exercise, there is no 155 mm. corps artillery. Crews present, but lacking guns, will be scored during the maneuver on the correctness of the firing data they record.

Dispute Photographic Proof.

High officers here for the exercises place great stress upon the 37 mm. gun. Reports from United States military attachés in Europe, substantiated with photographs, saying that the 37 mm. gun is of no value against tanks, are denied by artillery officers. They say this report refers to an old type gun.

Artillerymen say the new 37 mm. guns and shells have a higher armor piercing value than the old French 75 mm. guns. This correspondent learned in Europe that the French 75 was ineffective against tanks unless armor piercing shells were used.

Army tables of organization assign 24 of the 37 mm. guns to a triangular division. The 5th, only triangular division in the exercises here, has eight. Square divisions should have 36, but neither the 27th nor 30th has any.

Men Lack Proper Clothing.

None of the organizations this correspondent has seen here have field jackets. Men doing guard duty at night have been forced to wear overcoats over their shirts because of the lack of intermediate clothing.

Troops in Camp Forrest, not engaged in this maneuver because they have not completed 13 weeks of basic training, are without any .50 caliber heavy machine guns. They also lack rifles, pistols and clothing.

Some men in the 107th [Ohio] cavalry, in training with the 33d division, have spent more than a month's pay for clothing which the quartermaster did not have for issue.

Private John J. Woodward, Troop D, 107th cavalry, today said that he would have to throw rocks at the

VALETTA, Malta, June 3 (AP).—A German Junkers troop carrying plane, believed by British sources to be empty of soldiers, was shot down into the sea by fighter planes today during the second of two daylight raids on this British Mediterranean stronghold.

The communique did not disclose whether other Junkers troop carrying planes took part in the second raids.

It was the third time Malta had been attacked in 24 hours by axis raiders. The British asserted that the attacks had been repulsed. The communique said during May, 21 civilians were killed "by enemy action."

[The communique left unanswered how many planes were in the raids and whether the Germans or Italians actually had attempted a landing if other big Junkers were in the attacking force.]

Bomb Bengazi Again.

CAIRO, Egypt, June 3 (AP).—RAF bombers raided Bengazi, axis base on the Libyan coast, during the night of June 1 and "a number of explosions were caused in the harbor area," the RAF middle east command announced today.

Nazis Thrust Into Outposts.

BERLIN, June 3 (AP).—Continued German activity was reported around Tobruk, Libya, today by DNB, German official news agency, which said a motorized reconnaisance unit thrust deep into British outposts and returned with valuable information concerning forts and casemates. Numerous machine gun nests were silenced.

NATION WARNED IT'S FACED WITH OIL'S RATIONING

Shipments to British Cut Supplies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 3.—A charge was made in congress today that huge quantities of oil are being delivered by Americans and British to the axis powers while this nation faces a fuel shortage and "gasolineless Sundays" because of shipments diverted to Great Britain.

The prospect of gasoline rationing and other restrictions on petroleum products appeared near as a special investigating committee of the American Petroleum institute reported to Oil Dictator Harold L. Ickes that an acute oil shortage would begin to be felt in July because transportation facilities are lacking. Fifty oil tankers recently were transferred to Britain, and the report urged strongly against any additional transfers, warning of severe consequences.

Restrictions Are Proposed.

The API's special committee, created at the request of the Office of Production Management, recommended that restrictions on the use of petroleum products be imposed at least thruout the United States and preferably that they "should be shared equitably by the entire western hemisphere." Last week Ickes threatened "gasolineless Sundays" and other restrictions on oil and electric power as necessary for the rearmament program. Ickes since has been appointed oil coördinator by President Roosevelt.

The API report suggested that temperatures of homes heated by oil could be lowered during the winter. A general reduction of 5 degrees thruout the nation, it asserted, would effect a 10 per cent saving in fuel. In addition, it was suggested, many furnaces now using oil might be converted to coal.

More Pipe Lines Asked.

The report also urged more oil pipe lines from the south and speedy construction of additional oil tankers, forecasting a deficiency equal to 139,000 tanker tons in the third quarter of 1941, with the shortage continuing to grow. Ickes predicted that the British would ask for more tankers.

As the house rules committee today gave legislative right of way to a bill permitting the President to exercise the right of "eminent domain" to facilitate the construction of oil pipe lines from the south to ease the threatened shortage on the eastern seaboard, it also heard a startling accusation from Representative John M. Coffee [D., Wash.].

Coffee urged a joint congressional investigation of oil shipments from this country, asserting that millions of barrels of oil are reaching Germany, Italy, and Japan from the United States thru American and British companies using third parties or "dummies."

Specific Examples Cited.

"We are becoming more of an arsenal for the axis than an arsenal for democracy," said Coffee. He noted the recent renewal of a contract wherein American and British oil companies are delivering millions of barrels of oil to Japan from the Netherlands East Indies. He declared there are huge oil deliveries by American and British companies from South America and the West Indies to "neutral" African ports, where they pass into the control of Germany and Italy.

"We know now how dealings were made with the enemy during the first world war," Coffee told the committee. "But neither the congress nor the public knew what was going on behind the scenes until years after that fateful war was over. An investigation of present conditions now may lead to measures which could shorten the war by several years. It might result in changing its entire outcome."

Deal with Japan Revealed.

In connection with Coffee's charges, it was disclosed at Flemington, N. J., that the Standard Oil company of New Jersey has arranged to sell additional oil supplies to Japan under an agreement "negotiated with the full knowledge of the American, British, and Netherlands East Indies governments." [Details on page 23.]

Early enactment of the oil pipe line measure was recommended by the rules committee because tankers which have previously conveyed oil from Gulf of Mexico ports have been converted to British use. As a result, the eastern area faces a 300,000 barrel shortage daily, according to government reports. Oil pipe lines are needed to make up this shortage.

One pipe line, from Port St. Joe, Fla., on the gulf coast, to Bainbridge, Ga., has been completed. At that point, it ran into opposition from railroads and from the state of Georgia, which refused permission to the constructing company to cross rails and roads. The measure will enable the President to give the company authority to acquire needed rights of way in the name of "national defense" and continue the pipe line to its intended destination of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Second Line Is Planned.

The second planned pipe line is from Baton Rouge, La., to Greensboro, N. C. The cost of the two pipe lines is estimated at 60 million dollars. The government, under the bill, may advance the funds for construction if a private company finds it "impracticable" to finance construction.

An objection to the proposed legislation was made by Representative Leo E. Allen [R., Ill.], member of the rules committee, who said that Illinois has a flourishing oil industry in the southern end of the state. He remarked that the new pipe lines will give an advantage to southern oil companies over oil producers in other states.

On May 1, the maritime commission asked tanker owners to allocate 50 ships for British use and received a prompt response. This reduced the fleet of American oil tankers, carrying oil from the Gulf of Mexico to eastern ports, from about 260 to 210.

Atlantic coast stocks of crude oil and petroleum products were reduced thereby in recent months by 11,684,000 barrels. A daily deficit of 300,000 barrels is anticipated, roughly one-fourth of the expected Atlantic coast consumption in the present year, unless other means of delivery are provided.

Illinois Seeks Information.

Springfield, Ill., June 3 (AP). — An Illinois senate subcommittee considering state oil conservation legislation took steps today to learn from Harold L. Ickes, oil coördinator, the extent to which the federal government intends to go in regulating the oil industry.

The subcommittee voted in executive session to consult with Gov. Dwight Green on a proposal to send a delegation to Washington to determine, if possible, whether a state regulatory program could be drafted to dovetail with the prospective federal supervision of the oil industry.

Clarence T. Smith, Illinois' representative on the interstate oil compact commission by appointment of Gov. Green, suggested that federal officials be contacted and his proposal was promptly concurred in by former Democratic Gov. John Stelle. Stelle suggested that Gov. Green arrange an interview with Ickes for an Illinois delegation.

DEMAND MARTIAL LAW WHERE ARMS WORK IS CURBED

Louisville, Ky., June 3 (AP).—Establishment of martial law where interference with national rearmament requirements are involved and "summary execution" of convicted saboteurs was demanded of congress and the national administration today by the National Aeronautic association.

The organization, in convention here, adopted resolutions demanding:

1. Eligibility requirements for flying cadet personnel be made more practical by reducing the minimum age limit from 20 to 18.
2. Revised aviation organization structure in government.
3. Standing committees on aviation in congress.
4. Experienced aviation men and women in aviation jobs.
5. Immediate maximum expansion of the federal airways system.
6. Immediate construction of maximum national airport system protected by uniform zoning principles.
7. Immediate construction of an adequate high-frequency radio system.
8. Overnight delivery of all first class mail.
9. Maximum expansion of weather service, implemented by expansion of training in higher educational institutions.
10. Continuation of civilian pilot training.
11. Further development of aviation curricula in the public schools.
12. Technical aviation training in certified trade schools by government contract.

WIFE ACCUSES EX-CONVICT OF 3 GUN ATTACKS

Three mysterious night shootings in which bullets crashed into the home of Mrs. Phyllis Orlando and her two children were revealed yesterday in the Desplaines street court with the arraignment of her husband, Ralph Orlando, an ex-convict, who served 10 years for rape.

Mrs. Orlando accused him of the shootings. The charge against him, however, is disorderly conduct. Orlando is 34 years old. His case was continued to June 19 by Judge Justin F. McCarthy.

The Orlandos separated seven months ago. She and her children, Phyllis, 4, and Peter, 2½, went to live with her family at 931 Garibaldi place. Several bullets were fired thru a window soon afterward. On May 26 another blast shattered a pane. At 4 p. m. Sunday a third fusillade rattled thru a window of her home.

Early Monday, 23 hours after the third shooting, police seized Orlando near his wife's home. He was not armed. Orlando denied the shootings. With no witnesses and no proof that he did the shooting, police booked him for disorderly conduct.

FORMER GERMAN KAISER IS DEAD AFTER RELAPSE

End Comes Suddenly to War Emperor.

saw that, in the event of the war going against the central powers, an effort would be made to fasten the responsibility for it upon him.

Disclaims War Responsibility.

"I do not envy the man who has the responsibility for this war upon his conscience," he was quoted as saying in 1916. "I, at least, am not that man. I think history will clear me of that charge, altho I do not suppose history will hold me faultless. In a sense every civilized man in Europe must have a share in the responsibility for this war, and the higher his position the greater his responsibility. I admit that, and yet claim that I acted thruout in good faith and strove hard for peace, even tho war was inevitable. I think the next generation will strike a more just balance in apportioning the blame."

Despite his protestations of innocence, the one time Wilhelm II., the allies believed, stood sponsor for the terrorism which, under the guise of warfare, ravaged Belgium, bombed England with Zeppelins, laid in ashes the cities of northern France, depopulated Serbia and sent the Lusitania with her precious freight of women and children to their graves in the Atlantic.

Appeals to People.

For months before the armistice the former emperor had tried in every way to bolster his already lost cause. The preceding August, in a proclamation on the beginning of the fifth year of the conflict, he urged the German people to "fight on to victory," altho his generals told him defeat could not be long delayed. About this time the allied air raiders were bombing cities along the Rhine.

Hopeful as late as September, 1918, of averting the inevitable crash, the war lord, in a speech to the toilers in the Krupp gun works at Essen, avowed he was using all his efforts to "shorten the struggle." That same month he issued an order directing the German forces in Russia to join with the bolsheviki against the allies. Altho the American army had long since made its power felt, the emperor, in a personal address to Austrian officers at Briey, expressed the confidence that they would give the "right answer" to the fighters from overseas.

A few days later he received the resignation of Chancellor Hertling, who was succeeded on Oct. 4, 1918, by Prince Maximilian of Baden, who subsequently announced to the allies the inability of Germany to continue the war.

Accused by Von Tirpitz.

Events which forecast the disintegration of the German empire, however, seemed to make but little visible impression on the mind of the man who had set out to cut a road from "Berlin to Bagdad." With all his old-time fire and pomp, he visited Kiel to see maneuvers in which U-boats showed how they attacked and sank convoys, noncombatant passenger liners and hospital ships. Admiral von Tirpitz later blamed him for starting the "ruthless submarine warfare." Less than six weeks before his flight from Germany, the emperor told a Westphalian audience that his troops were prepared to "fight to a victorious end," and that the people should resist the enemy to their "last breath."

German newspapers for the first time openly hinted at Wilhelm's possible abdication. On Oct. 8, 1918, in a proclamation to the army and navy, less grandiose than usual, the emperor announced his decision "to offer peace to the enemy," and four days later, Prince Max of Baden summoned a conference of the sovereigns of the German states.

The conference resulted in the announcement that certain amendments to the German constitution had been accepted and that the emperor's power to make war and sign treaties had been "curtailed." About this time provincial German papers reported that the German royal family was sending valuables to Holland and that the Socialists were prepared to take control in event of abdication. The press clamor for the emperor's retirement became more insistent and abusive placards condemning the once idolized war lord were posted all over the capital. Berlin crowds demanded the formation of a republic.

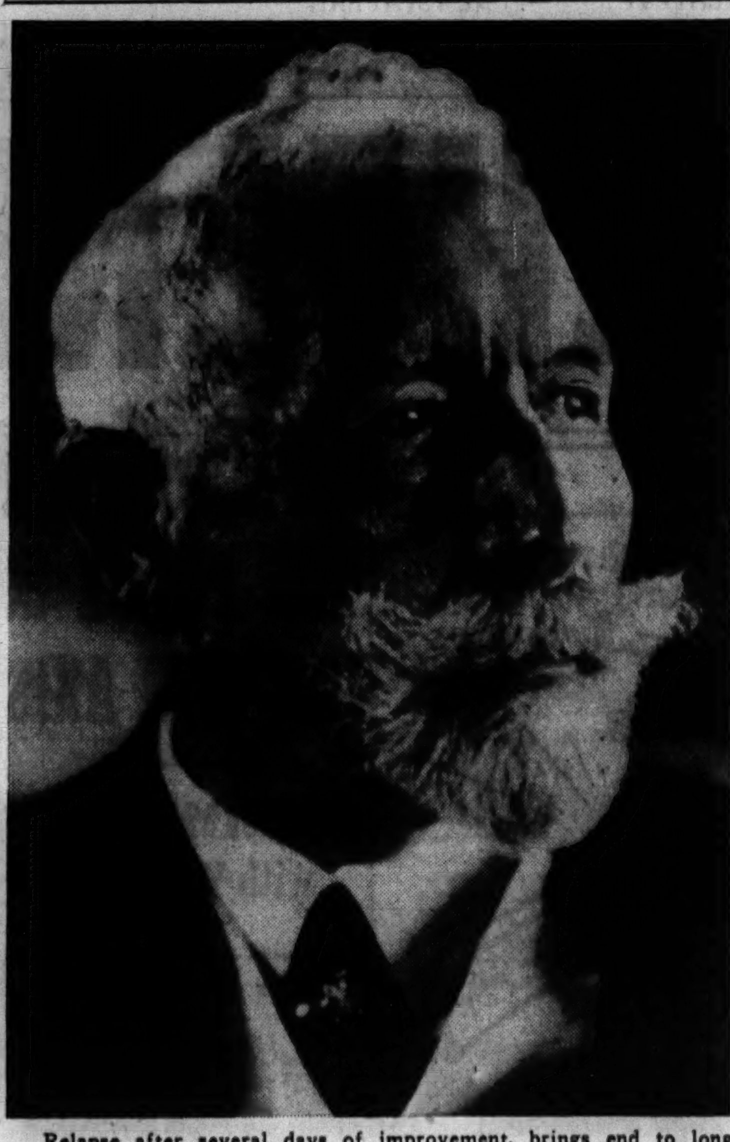
Austria-Hungary Quits.

Austria-Hungary asked and was granted an armistice which ended her participation in the war. The German government followed with a similar request.

Emperor Wilhelm left Berlin for grand headquarters at Spa, where the allied armistice terms were being examined by the German envoys. Announcement of his abdication came shortly after the issuance of a Socialist ultimatum demanding that he quit the throne.

The emperor crossed the Dutch frontier in an automobile and went to the château of Count Bentinck at Amerongen. It had been fitted up to receive him and there he remained for more than a year. He then purchased an estate at Doorn, near Utrecht, where he was joined by his late wife, the former Empress Augusta Victoria, and a retinue of servants.

Ex-Kaiser of Germany Dies



Relapse after several days of improvement, brings end to long career of former German emperor.

The residence of the former emperor in Holland for a time threatened serious complications. Having decided to place the former kaiser on trial, the allies on Jan. 20, 1920, addressed a note to Holland, informing that government that they intended to put into action article 227 of the treaty of Versailles, "which publicly arraigns Wilhelm II. of Germany for a supreme offense against international morality and the sanctity of treaties." Accompanying the note was an official demand of the allies that the government of the Netherlands "deliver into their hands Wilhelm Hohenzollern, former emperor of Germany, in order that he may be judged."

Holland Refuses to Give Him Up.

Four days later the Dutch government in a note to the peace conference unqualifiedly refused to surrender the former kaiser for trial under article 227, declaring that "neither the laws nor the traditions of Holland will permit the government to defer to the desires of the powers by withdrawing from the former kaiser the protection offered by his sanctuary in Holland." The note asserted that both justice and honor forbid Holland to yield to the demand and further stated that "the treaty of peace cannot serve to determine the duty of Holland, which is not a party to the treaty."

During the early days of his residence in Holland, and while the national assembly at Weimar was drafting a constitution for the new German republic which had succeeded the monarchy, 432,000 Germans signed a petition appealing to the government to "save the kaiser." Prussia, however, withdrew his royal immunity.

Chafing in his new surroundings, the former emperor on March 11, 1919, complained to the new German government and asked it to request the allies to permit him to go to Egypt or to the Riviera.

Blamed Von Hindenburg.

From the time of his abdication the former kaiser apparently never let pass an opportunity to attempt to shift the responsibility for the war to other shoulders than his own. Correspondence between him and Field Marshal von Hindenburg, who later was twice elected president of the republic, published in Berlin by the latter in December, 1921, created somewhat of a sensation, as it placed the responsibility for the abdication of the former kaiser on Von Hindenburg and other advisers. The exchange of letters had taken place about eight months previously and apparently was withheld from the public until it became quite certain that the allies would make no further efforts to bring the former kaiser to trial.

Any sketch of the former emperor would be incomplete without reference to his personal part in the war. Early in the summer of 1914, as a result of the Austro-Serbian crisis growing out of the assassination of the Austrian Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife at Sarajevo, the German ruler was said to have called a conference in his palace at Potsdam of representatives of the German and Austrian armies, navies, and commercial interests. There, according to the allies' charges, the decision was reached to make the assassination of the archduke a basis for the world war. Emperor Wilhelm after this conference went on a yachting trip to Norway. He returned to Berlin to find all Europe ablaze.

In the diplomatic exchanges between Germany and Austria on one side and Great Britain, France and Russia, on the other, Wilhelm took the attitude of one wishing for peace but driven to war. He signed on Aug. 1 the order for the mobilization of the German army and from that moment war was inevitable. Emperor Nicholas, in response to Austria's ultimatum to Serbia, ordered on July 25 the mobilization of the Russian forces.

The German ruler set upon himself the task of drawing England to his side against France and Russia. How well he thought he had succeeded in this may be gathered from a letter it was reported he wrote to President Wilson in which he said King George had promised Prince Henry of Prussia, on July 29, 1914, that England would remain neutral in a war involving the central powers with France and Russia.

Gives Threat to U. S.

Until the United States was drawn into the war on the side of the allies in April, 1917, Wilhelm professed friendliness for the great democracy overseas. He encouraged the foundation of "exchange professorships," by which prominent German educators visited this country and lectured in the colleges here, while American professors served similarly in Germany.

Before the entry of America into the world war, the emperor endeavored to stop her exportation of arms and munitions to the allies. When it became evident no official action would be taken to put an embargo into effect, Wilhelm apparently lost his admiration for the United States and declared to Ambassador Gerard: "I shall stand no nonsense from America after the war."

After the United States had entered the war and before the tide of victory had turned to the entente, it was said that the former kaiser had determined upon an indemnity of 30 billion dollars from the United States in the event of the central powers winning the war.

Cup of Sorrow.

After the former kaiser's removal from Amerongen to Doorn, he began to live the life of a country gentleman. He chopped wood as a means of exercise, and occupied himself by various studies and in writing his memoirs. But whatever happiness he had was interrupted by tragedies in his own family. In July, 1920, his youngest son, former Prince Joachim, ended his life by shooting himself. Joachim's suicide greatly depressed the former emperor and it was made the harder for him to bear because of the condition of the former kaiserin. She had been a sufferer from heart trouble and her condition was aggravated by the many unfavorable events that began with the kaiser's abdication.

The former kaiserin died April 11, 1921. She was Augusta Victoria, eldest daughter of Grand Duke Frederick of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Augustenburg, and was married to the kaiser Feb. 27, 1881, about seven years before he ascended the throne. They had six sons and one daughter, the eldest child being the former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm.

Marries Kaiser for Love.

After his wife's death the former kaiser was variously reported as suffering from nervous depression, melancholy, collapse, and paralysis. It also was rumored that he had lost his mind and on more than one occasion his death was reported. However, within a year from the date of his wife's death there were reports that the former emperor was contemplating a second marriage. These reports were denied as was also the first one concerning Princess Hermine, to whom he was married at Doorn Nov. 5, 1922.

When the announcement of their engagement was officially made it brought forth strong opposition from members of the former royal family as well as from monarchists in Germany, the latter's opposition being on the grounds that Hermine was not of royal blood.

Hermine said she married the former kaiser for love and because she wanted to make his lonely life more bearable. In a few months there were reports of strained relations between the former kaiser and his bride, and even separation, but they proved false. These reports grew out of the fact that Hermine often made trips from Doorn for extended periods.

Various reports were circulated as to the former emperor's financial condition while living in Holland, some saying he had great wealth, while others had him living in meager circumstances. In 1920 the government of the Netherlands taxed him on the basis of an income of $600,000 a year. He was continually in controversy with the Netherlands government over the payment of taxes.

Deny He Had Vast Fortune.

Before the war the kaiser was reputed to be the wealthiest of European monarchs. Even in 1929 a German magazine declared he was worth 103 million dollars, making him still the richest man in Germany. The assertion, however, was vehemently denied by the Hohenzollern family administration, which put the value of his property at only a little more than 6½ million dollars.

The Prussian government in 1926 reached an agreement with the Hohenzollerns for a final payment to the former kaiser in settlement of all claims against it for 3 million dollars.

During his long stay at Doorn the famous exile was a favorite subject for sensational rumors. Every year bore a crop of reports that he was on his way back to Germany to seize the throne or that monarchist followers in Germany were preparing intensively for his return.

The "Doorn woodchopper" perhaps innocently watered the crop of rumors by maintaining a consistent silence. He granted few interviews and only occasionally did the outside world learn of the goings on at House Doorn.

Gather in His "Kingdom."

Rarely, too, did the former ruler allow photographs of himself to be taken after his exile. Those which were taken showed him no longer with fierce, warlike mien and bristling mustache, but instead with a beard and placid features which gave him a kindly, grandfatherly appearance.

On festive occasions, such as Christmas or his birthday, the ex-kaiser's Hohenzollern relatives and other once mighty mon[illegible] ers were wont to gather in his "kingdom." On many such occasions his second wife, Hermine, absented herself because of the coolness existing between her and the former emperor's family.

Watches Another War Begin.

The outbreak of another European war in September, 1[illegible] [illegible] former kaiser sitting before a radio in his Doorn castle, placing [illegible] pins in a large map of Poland to indicate the position of the opposing armies.

One of his grandsons, Oscar, 24 years old, an infantry lieutenant, son of Prince Oscar, fell while leading a charge in Poland. At that time 21 other grandsons also were serving in the army under the swastika banner of Adolf Hitler.

When Russia attacked Finland, the ex-kaiser expressed his sympathy for the smaller country.

"The belligerents should stop fighting and join their forces to help the Finns," he wrote to a friend in America. "They should fight in one line to rid the world and civilization of bolshevism."

Hitler Sends a Letter.

When the Germans occupied the Netherlands, Hitler sent a personal letter to Wilhelm. German troops appeared at Doorn on May 14 and a colonel appeared at the castle with the message, which contained three points:

1. The former kaiser and his entourage enjoy the protection of the German army.
2. He may remain in Doorn if he chooses.
3. Should the army withdraw, German police will look to his safety.

Wilhelm replied that he would remain at Doorn.

His Boyhood Days.

Friedrich Wilhelm Victor Albert was born on Jan. 27, 1859, and became Emperor Wilhelm II. on the death of his father, Friedrich III., June 15, 1888. He came out of the University of Bonn fully prepared to enter the school of statecraft. Set to work in the government bureaus, he was early taught the routine of official business under the tutelage of the great Bismarck.

Milk Mixture For Stomach Ulcer Pains

A recent medical discovery now being used by doctors and hospitals everywhere has proven unusually successful in the treatment of stomach ulcer pains caused from excess acid. It is a harmless preparation yet so effective that in many cases the pains of stomach ulcers disappear almost immediately after it is used. Also recommended for gas pains, indigestion and heartburn due to hyperacidity. Sufferers may now try this at home by obtaining a bottle of Lurin from their druggist. Lurin contains this new discovery in its purest form. Easy to take. Just mix two teaspoonfuls in a half glass of milk. Costs but little and sold under an absolute guarantee that it must satisfy or money refunded. Lurin for sale by Walgreen, Stineway, Service, Fay and drug stores everywhere.

ACTION ALREADY BEGUN IN SYRIA, LONDON BELIEF

British Seek to Forestall German Moves.

LONDON, June 3 (AP).—The belief grew in London tonight that a rigid official silence on the middle east concealed swift British action already undertaken to forestall a German move into French mandated Syria.

Informed sources intimated that the middle east communique reporting "no change in the situation" hardly told the whole story of what is under way.

Some quarters said reports of large German troop movements into Syria may have been encouraged or even inspired by the Nazis to draw attention from other scenes of impending operations.

Full Authority for Action.

It was recalled, too, that the middle east command, on the word of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, has been given full authority to do whatever it deems necessary in all that section of the world to defend the Suez canal and its approaches.

Some qualified sources, noting the ostentatious manner in which German "tourist" infiltration and other moves toward Syria have been conducted, said they believed these might be intended to alarm Turkey and weaken her faith in Britain.

It was predicted here that Britain soon will officially declare Syria to be "enemy occupied territory."

Describe Nazi Infiltration.

ANKARA, Turkey, June 2 [delayed] (AP).—Reports of mass German troop movements into Syria, following up infiltrations by "tourists," threw that French-mandated region into sharp focus today as a possible zone of armed conflict. Unofficial sources here and in Istanbul gave this account of the Nazi thrust into the Levant [near east] states:

Recently numbers of Germans in civilian clothing and with Bulgarian passports went thru Turkey to Syria. Since their papers were in seeming order, Turkey let them pass.

Then 500 German soldiers with armored cars and mobile field guns landed last Thursday at Latakia, directly opposite the British island of Cyprus.

Now a dozen freighters flying swastika flags have been assigned to carry German troops and heavy military equipment from Rumania's Black sea port of Constanta to Syria.

Observers here already have told of seeing as many as 200 German planes in the Aleppo area, near the Turkish frontier, and within close operating range of Iraq, Palestine, and Cyprus.

150 Planes to Syria.

VICHY, France, June 4 [Wednesday] (AP).—One hundred fifty army aircraft have been flown to Syria in recent days, it was reported without confirmation here today.

Dispatches from Beirut, Lebanon, reported that a British plane dropped four bombs on Shell Oil company depots there yesterday. Damage was reported slight and only one person wounded.

[The French controled radio at Beirut charged that Britain was preparing to attack Syria and said French forces "know how to reply effectively." The Beirut radio denied that Germany had landed troops in Syria.]

NEW PRO-BRITISH GOVERNMENT IS FORMED IN IRAQ

LONDON, June 3 (AP).—A Reuters [British] news agency dispatch from Bagdad said today that a new Iraqi government has been formed with Jamal al Midfai as premier. The majority of the ministers, Reuters said, have been known previously for their coöperation with the British.

The situation in Bagdad was said to be well in hand, with the city entirely quiet.

Rashid Ali al Gailani, fugitive anti-British premier of Iraq, arrived last night at Teheran, capital of Iran [Persia], a Reuters dispatch from that city said. Rashid Ali, who seized control of the Iraqi government in April, fled from Bagdad last week before British troops entered the city.

BRITISH PARLEY TO PUSH WAR FOR PRESS FREEDOM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 3.—A national delegate conference on freedom of the press will be convened in London on Saturday by the National Union of Journalists and the National Council for Civil Liberties. These organizations a year ago forestalled compulsory censorship on the British press, altho the foreign press was forced to submit to it. The purpose of the conference is to reaffirm the necessity for free expression of public opinion in promotion of the fullest war effort and to thwart any new move to set up machinery thru which criticism of the government might be forbidden.

GERMAN SHIP ELUDES BRITISH ON TRIP FROM CHILE TO ARGENTINA

MAR DEL PLATA, Argentina, June 3 (AP).—The 6,101 ton German freighter Erlangen, one of five which left Chilean ports on May 18, arrived here today with a cargo of coal, cereals, and pharmaceuticals.

The freighter, leaving from Puerto Montt, Chile, avoided British craft known to have been in the area in the long jaunt down the South American Pacific coast and thru the Strait of Magellan to the Atlantic.

[Other German craft had been in widely separated Chilean ports since the start of the war. All of them took to sea on May 18. They were the 6,173 ton freighter Rhakotis, which left the port of Antofagasta just 30 minutes ahead of the British armed freighter Laguna; the 5,522 ton freighter Frankfurt; the 1,230 ton sister ships Quito and Bogota. All carried general cargo and have not been reported since May 18.]

CRASH KILLS FIVE CANADIAN FLYERS HUNTING 2D PLANE

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, June 3 (AP).—Five royal Canadian air force men were killed today when their plane crashed on or near Sable Island, 100 miles off Nova Scotia. The crash occurred while the plane was searching for another RCAF plane previously reported missing from the Grace Bay area with a crew of four.

The dead were: Flight Lieutenant G. V. Snow, Ottawa; Flight Officer I. L. G. Gillis, Paradise, N. S.; Flight Lieutenant F. J. Bell, Toronto; Corp. D. E. Craig, Saskatoon, and Aircraftman G. A. Dillworth, Rush Lake, Sask.

Fog hampered the search for the missing plane, unreported since it took off on a patrol flight yesterday. One officer said fog prevented searchers from reaching a spot where it was thought the missing plane might have landed.

9 BRITISH MINERS KILLED BY BLAST IN UNDERSEA PIT

WHITEHAVEN, Cumberland, England, June 3 (AP).—William pit, 129 year old colliery whose tunnels extend seven miles out under the Irish sea, was shaken today by an explosion which killed at least nine miners, injured 13, and trapped many. It was feared the death list would increase as rescue workers dug into the débris. Three of the missing were believed to have died.

The pit employes 479 men, of whom 339 work underground. Closed for several years, it was reopened with the aid of a substantial grant from the Nuffield trust a few years before the war. It produces 665,000 tons of coal annually.

Two years ago an underground fire raged for days in the mine, but there were no casualties. Otherwise, the mine had been free of disaster since 1839, when a "black damp" explosion killed 23.

HEAR RUSSIANS GET THREE NEW NAZI DEMANDS

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, June 3.—A report from Moscow states another note has been delivered to Russia by Count Werner von der Schulenburg, the German ambassador. It is said to demand that Russia answer three more questions affecting soviet-German relations. These are in addition to three demands previously reported by THE TRIBUNE.

The new demands are:

An explanation of whether Russia will discontinue its help to the Chinese government; the revision of Russia's stand against transit of munitions thru its territory, which is holding up delivery of German munitions to Japan, and an unequivocal statement from Russia that the soviets will remain neutral if Germany and Turkey go to war.

BRITAIN ORDERS NEW SLAUGHTER OF ITS LIVE STOCK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 3.—Because of a shortage of feeding stuffs, the British government has decided on a further compulsory reduction of livestock. An announcement of the government policy is expected to be made this week by R. S. Hudson, minister of agriculture.

Assurances have been made that there will be no "panic" policy of slaughter. Cuts are expected to be decreed in dairy herds, as well as beef cattle, sheep, pigs, poultry. It is possible that Hudson will fix a quota of livestock for every farm in the country.

The ministry of food will become the sole importer of canned fish in Britain starting July 1. Importers have been told that canned fish arriving before that date will not be requisitioned by the ministry which, however, will take over complete control of the distribution of both imported and home produced canned fish next month.

HITLER CONCEDES FRANCE THE RIGHT TO DEFEND SYRIA

Offers Her a Free Hand to Resist British.

BERLIN, June 3 (AP).—An intimation that the French would be given a free hand to defend Syria or other outposts against any British attack was made today by authorized German sources with the declaration:

"We have Marshal Petain's and Admiral Darlan's statements that they will defend all their territory. [Petain is premier and Darlan is vice premier of France.] Germany, altho victor, is ready to concede this sacred right and duty of every nation to the French themselves.

Hint Action by France.

"Whether and in what manner France may desire to throw onto the scales the weight of German-French relationships developed in the course of the last year is something one cannot discuss theoretically. Only a practical case can show."

As to whether Germany herself could afford to let Britain seize Syria, this was the response: "We don't cross bridges before we come to them."

Earlier, authorized persons here had dismissed reports abroad that Nazi motorized infantry had landed in Syria at the port of Latakia with this phrase: "It is unthinkable that this corresponds to the facts."

Next Military Move a Secret.

Germany and Italy have not outlined their next military move. Whether it would be against Cyprus, Egypt, or England proper remained problematical. The results of yesterday's Brenner pass meeting between Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini were hidden in silence.

The German press even before the fall of Crete had called attention to other British bastions in the eastern Mediterranean. For weeks it has made no mention of invasion of England—a circumstance which alone has kept foreign observers alert to that standing threat.

The Berlin press stressed the advantages gained in the possession of Crete as a place from which the air force can take off for Tobruk, Libya; Alexandria, and the Suez canal.

U. S. TURNING SHIPS INTO PLANECARRIERS, SENATORS ARE TOLD

Washington, D. C., June 3 (AP).—A member of the Maritime commission told a senate committee investigating the defense program today that a number of the commission's new cargo vessels had been converted into aircraft carriers for the navy.

The statement was made by Commissioner John J. Dempsey in response to questions by Senator James M. Mead [D., N. Y.] about the government's shipbuilding program.

Observing that the cargo ships had been designed for conversion to naval use if desired, Dempsey said he knew no details of the conversion or what armament had been placed on the ships.

He said the commission was considering ship construction on the Great Lakes. Hulls, he said, could be laid there and towed to New Orleans for completion.

U. S. TO TAKE OVER BRITISH SHIPPING TO AUSTRALIA

Washington, D. C., June 3 (AP).—In a new move to strengthen Britain's Atlantic lifeline, the United States Maritime commission announced today that American vessels would henceforth handle all British shipping services from Canada and the United States to Australia and New Zealand.

"This will release a dozen British vessels for Britain's own war effort," said an announcement.

Arrangements for the shift were made by the commission's division of emergency shipping and the British supply council for North America.

The neutrality act forbids American vessels to carry supplies to Britain because it is in a war zone, and President Roosevelt has indicated he has no plans to ask changes in the act. However, such vessels are not forbidden to go to Australia and New Zealand.

TRINIDAD MAY LET 300 OFF FRENCH SHIP SAIL FOR U. S.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, June 3 (AP).—About 300 of the 751 passengers of the intercepted French passenger ship Winnipeg probably will be permitted to proceed to the United States aboard another ship this week, British officials said today. Among them will be German nationals holding United States visas, it was said.

A Netherlands warship intercepted the Winnipeg in West Indian waters last Tuesday and the Dutch navy announced more than 200 Germans bound for Martinique were aboard.

[The French embassy in Washington, D. C., said the Germans were en route to South America.]

It was not officially disclosed whether Nazi agents were on the Winnipeg, which was en route to Trinidad from Marseilles, France.

NICARAGUAN FIRM AGREES TO CEASE TRADE WITH AXIS

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, June 3.—Manuel J. Riguero & Co., one of Nicaragua's largest commercial firms, which had been on the British blacklist, announced today that it had signed a bond in favor of Great Britain.

This bond obligates the firm to discontinue all relations and dealings with enemies of Britain. In addition to the bond the firm is believed also to have made a cash deposit to guarantee its compliance with the agreement.

Other Nicaraguan firms also are to be removed from the British statutory list if similar guarantees are given. Commercial concerns here believe their business will be ruined if they are not removed from the British blacklist.

HITS CHURCHMEN WHO ADVOCATE U. S. WAR ENTRY

Churchmen who advocate intervention in the war are not following the doctrines of Christ, Dr. D. S. Swain, secretary general of the Order of St. Paul, declared last night at an America First rally in Park Ridge.

"Christ was or was not the Prince of Peace," Dr. Swain said. "If he was, then Bishops Manning, Hobson, Stires, Jenkins, and others who preach intervention are not valid wearers of the cloth, since they preach a doctrine not wholly in conformity with law or theology."

The meeting was held in the Mary Wilson house. Dr. Anton J. Carlson, physiologist at the University of Chicago, also spoke.

2,800 New Zealanders Who Fought in Crete Missing

RADIO HANDLING OF WAR ISSUES FACES FCC QUIZ

Charge of Partiality Told at Senate Hearing.

Washington, D. C., June 3 (AP).—The Federal Communications commission promised Senator Charles W. Tobey [R., N. H.] today that it would investigate to determine whether any radio stations give a one sided presentation of foreign policy issues.

Tobey said at a senate hearing that he had been told by "a representative of one of the large broadcasting companies that many individual stations refrain from carrying the speeches of members of congress who advocate that this country remain out of the war."

Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] and Tobey agreed the large networks have endeavored to carry both sides of foreign policy issues, but added that individual stations should be told to follow suit.

Stations to Be Polled.

James L. Fly, chairman of the communications commission, said he would poll broadcasting stations to determine the names of speakers talking on the issues.

Fly had appeared before the senate interstate commerce committee to oppose a resolution by Senator Wallace H. White [R., Me.] requiring the communications commission to delay application of a set of regulations it issued recently.

The commission said the regulations were aimed at the "monopolistic practices" of certain of the major radio chains. Under the rules, the National Broadcasting company would be required to dispose of one of its two networks.

Monopoly Point Raised.

Fly declared the commission has merely followed the anti-monopoly mandate of congress.

Asked by Senator Ellison D. Smith [D., S. C.] how a monopoly could exist when three network companies were in competition, Fly declared that 86.6 per cent of the total night time radio power in the United States is "sewed up exclusively by two New York corporations [NBC and the Columbia Broadcasting system]."

"Are they competing with each other or are these two in cahoots?" Smith demanded.

"I've thought from my observations that they're pretty footy-footy," Fly replied.

BELGIAN AND SERBIAN ENVOYS QUIT MOSCOW; GREEK IS READY TO GO

MOSCOW, June 3 (AP).—The Belgian and the Jugo-Slavian minister started for foreign lands today and the Greek minister prepared to leave. Russia has informed them that axis occupied countries have lost their sovereignty. The Norwegian minister already has departed.

The Belgian minister, Guy Hendryx, and his family and counselor are going to the United States by way of Siberia. Greek Minister Diamantopoulos, whose wife was American born, also plans to go to the United States. Milan Gavrilovic, the Jugo-Slavian minister, is on his way to Jerusalem, Palestine.

The departure of the Greek will leave Sir Stafford Cripps, the British ambassador, as the last allied envoy in Moscow.

FAMINE SPREADS IN FREE FRANCE, SAYS RELIEF AID

New York, June 3 [Special].—Despite the "intense efforts" of several American relief organizations now operating in unoccupied France, "starvation, want, and destitution are rampant" there, Howard E. Kershner, American Society of Friends [Quaker] director of relief for continental Europe, reported today on his arrival here aboard the Atlantic Clipper.

A serious wave of malnutrition is now sweeping France, Kershner said. Many persons are dying of starvation, he added, and their "deaths are being attributed to other causes because people weak from undernourishment fall prey to all kinds of diseases."

Not only has food become even scarcer, now that the Balkans have been dried up as a source of relief supplies, but it is of "poor quality," Kershner asserted. He said he had lost 20 pounds in the last year "mostly because I couldn't get proper food."

U-Boat Shells Portuguese Fishing Vessel; 2 Killed

LISBON, Portugal, June 3 (AP).—Survivors of the Portuguese fishing steamer Exportador said here tonight that a submarine of unidentified nationality fired nearly 50 shells into their vessel 140 miles off the Portuguese coast. Two of the crew of 24 were killed and three injured. Another fishing boat picked up the survivors.

FOES OF F. D. R. DICTATOR BILL GIRD FOR FIGHT

New Dealers Support It as Curb on Strikes.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 3.—Altho President Roosevelt's new dictatorship bill faces powerful opposition in congress, there were indications today that many senators and representatives, especially southern Democrats, will support it as a strike breaking measure.

At his press conference today President Roosevelt confirmed the general understanding in congress that one immediate objective of the proposed legislation is the seizure of plants to break strikes in armament industries. The war department, he said, prepared the bill as a result of the government's experience with the violent Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company strike at West Allis, Wis. In that strike, the President said, both union leaders and management promised to accept government proposals "if"—the result being prolonged delay before a settlement could be reached.

Questioned on Necessity.

Asked whether it is necessary as a preparedness measure for the government to take over and operate plants permanently, the President said he did not know.

The new bill, submitted to congress yesterday, was assailed by Republicans and anti-war Democrats as a shocking proposal that would give Mr. Roosevelt the power of a Hitler or a Mussolini. It authorizes the President, in any period of "national emergency" proclaimed by him, to commandeer property of any kind or character, real or personal, tangible or intangible.

Objective Previously Denied.

Previously, administration officials and their supporters in congress had refused to admit publicly that strike breaking is an objective of the legislation. Southern Democrats, however, were telling their colleagues privately that the legislation is necessary to put a stop to strikes. For weeks the southerners have advocated government seizure and operation of plants wherever necessary to end strikes, the assumption being that no unions would attempt to strike against the United States government.

Opponents of the bill deny that it is necessary to vest the President with totalitarian powers to curb strikes. They insist that subversive elements should be dealt with under existing criminal law and that radical labor could be restrained by the President if he deemed it politically expedient to put all his tremendous influence and prestige behind appeals to public opinion.

Fear It's Only Pretext.

The opponents fear also that the immediate objective of breaking strikes is only a pretext to get dictatorial power for other purposes. It is a recognized principle of New Deal strategy never to make a frontal approach to anything if there is a chance to sneak up from the side or the rear, according to the opposition leaders.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], leader of the senate noninterventionists, expressed doubt that Hitler and Mussolini have any more power than the bill would give Mr. Roosevelt.

"This measure is a direct threat to every individual in the United States," Wheeler said. "At his whim, the President could take from the farmer his farm and farm machinery, from the laborer his tools, and from the business man his factory.

Warns of Totalitarianism.

"He could take over the press and radio. If the President gets this bill, what is left of our so-called 'way of life?' In order to fight for democracy abroad are we going to set up a totalitarian government here?"

Senator Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.], chairman of the military affairs committee, introduced the bill in the senate at the request of the war department, but refused to commit himself to support it. Reynolds said the committee would determine on Friday whether to hold hearings and that he favors public hearings.

"As a general proposition, I feel that so long as we are drafting man power, for which I voted, we ought to draft property if it is needed for national defense," Reynolds declared. "But I'll have to consider this particular bill carefully."

KNOX DEMANDS 'MIRACLE' TO GIVE U. S. MORE SHIPS

Washington, D. C., June 3 (AP).—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox today demanded a production "miracle" of the nation's warship building industry in order to assure the United States and Great Britain command of the seas.

"There no longer can be any doubt," Knox said, "that this war will be determined by two things—no, one thing—a successful combination of sea and air power."

Speaking to a conference of shipbuilders, he told them it "is up to you to see that America and Britain are equipped with the warship half of the combination necessary for victory."

"There is no criticism of what has been done to date," Knox said. "It has been well done, but it is not enough. We've got to do more. We must have something more than an honest day's work. We must have the kind of spirit and the kind of zeal that animates men when they go into battle."

To make a start toward such a high morale level, Knox proposed that a system of government financed competitions be worked out between shipyards, and that government bonuses be offered to "leading men" in each yard who would take on the task of stimulating competitive spirit.

SENATE CRUSHES STATE RULE OF COUNTY WELFARE

Springfield, Ill., June 3.—[Special].—The senate tonight turned in the most astounding vote of the session—two for and 45 against a bill to permit Rodney H. Brandon, director of public welfare, to appoint county directors of public welfare.

T. Mac Downing [R., McComb] who frequently criticizes Brandon, led the attack on the bill which was sponsored by Arnold Benson [R., Batavia]. Downing called it a violation of every precept of home rule, and his argument seemed to carry crushing weight since only Benson and Richard J. Barr [R., Joliet] favored the measure. The latter said he was taking the affirmative position merely so that Benson would not feel lonely.

Norwegian Tanker Sunk with Loss of Four Lives

WINANT REPORTS TO ROOSEVELT ON BRITISH PLIGHT

Envoy Presumed to Have Brought Grave Tidings.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ambassador Winant.

Washington, D. C., June 3.—John G. Winant, American ambassador to the Court of St. James's, today gave President Roosevelt a report on the plight and needs of Great Britain as seen from the vantage point of the United States embassy in London.

Winant, who arrived in this country last Friday by trans-Atlantic Clipper plane after serving three months at his post, spent more than an hour with the chief executive. He is believed to have delivered a prepared report on the present ability of Britain to continue the war and her immediate needs to stave off Nazi invasion.

"Inside" of Hess Mystery.

It is understood that the lanky, slow speaking diplomat brought his chief a full report on the war's most dramatic mystery, the parachute arrival of Rudolf Hess, No. 3 Nazi, in Scotland early last month.

The Hess incident, at first hailed by the British as evidence of a serious split in the Nazi high command, has come to be regarded as an adroit peace maneuver.

If the incident had not already been cleared up for the President, it is believed here that Winant made it so from confidential information given him to repeat to Mr. Roosevelt. It is presumed that Winant also reported on what peace sentiment, if any, exists among the British.

Mum on Conversations.

Neither Winant nor the President would throw any light on the nature of their conference. Asked at his afternoon press conference if the ambassador came back on his own initiative or was asked to come, the President replied: "I cannot tell you—it just isn't anybody's business."

Winant would say only that he is here for general consultations, rather than for any special mission. He said he expect to remain in the United States three or four days more, and then return to London.

This statement gave rise to speculation that Winant brought to the President some confidential information or appeal too grave to be trusted to ordinary channels of communication and would carry Mr. Roosevelt's reactions back to the British.

Calls on Secretary Hull.

Before he went to the White House, Winant paused at the state department, where he called briefly on Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Following his conference with Hull, Ambassador Winant told reporters that the British remain a "gallant and united people" despite recent war reverses and continued bombardment of their homeland.

Outside the secretary's office, Winant was asked if he had detected any British sentiment for a negotiated peace with Germany. Winant replied that he had not.

Late in the afternoon Winant returned to Hull's office for a lengthy conference. Hull had just completed lengthy conferences with Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, who with him are actively urging convoy of supplies to Britain by American naval vessels. Hull also conferred with N. M. Butler, British minister, and Prof. Noel Hall, representative of the British ministry of economic warfare.

It is understood that Butler and Hull discussed the economic blockade of axis powers.

Confers on British Aid.

At the White House, President Roosevelt's conference with his ambassador was sandwiched between a series of conferences on national rearmament and aid to Britain. The President spent 1 hour and 40 minutes with congressional leaders.

Mr. Roosevelt also conferred with William S. Knudsen, co-director of the Office of Production Management, and Admiral E. J. King, commander of the Atlantic fleet, which will be employed to carry out any method Mr. Roosevelt devises for protecting shipments of materials to Britain, whether by convoy or by the maintenance of a sea lane to Britain.

BRITAIN'S CHIEF AIM IS HITLERISM'S END, HALIFAX REITERATES

New York, June 3 (AP).—Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, reiterated today that Britain's first war aim is destruction of Hitlerism and said that before that time came, this country and his must devote "much hard thinking" to post-war solution of political, financial, and economic problems.

"I hope that the best minds both here and in the British commonwealth may find means of working closely together over all this field," he told the commencement day alumni luncheon at Columbia university. "For one thing is very sure. There is little hope for the world's future, unless your people and ours can join hands to build it."

American-British collaboration on world problems, he continued, would provide the firm ground on which other nations might stand and take part in the task of world reconstruction.

Britain's Clothes Ration Slashes Tailors' Trade

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 3.—Britain's first day of clothes rationing resulted in a big drop in trade for tailors and outfitters. Second hand clothes dealers and stores selling salvaged goods did a roaring business, however, no coupons being required. Rationing became effective Sunday, but two Whitsuntide holidays made this the first day of trading under the system.

FORT SHERIDAN CENTER CLOSED BY QUARANTINE

Fort Sheridan's 1,000 man recruit reception center was closed yesterday by a precautionary scarlet fever quarantine after eight cases occurred in three days among incoming draftees and station personnel. The quarantine isolated 350 draftees in the center.

Lieut. Col. Fred During, executive officer of the fort, said the step was taken to protect all personnel and prevent an epidemic, but that the outbreak was not of serious proportions. The eight cases are in the base hospital.

Officers in charge of mobilization at corps area headquarters said closing the center would not impede the induction program, because facilities at Camp Grant and Camp Custer, Mich., are adequate for absorbing those who would have been sent to Fort Sheridan. Draftee contingents who left Chicago yesterday were distributed between those two camps.

SANK 746,000 TONS OF SHIP SPACE IN MAY, BERLIN SAYS

BERLIN, June 3 (AP).—The German high command today reported that the German navy and air force destroyed 746,000 tons of British merchant shipping space in May. Of this total, a communique said, 479,000 tons were accounted for by submarines, 215,000 tons by planes, and the remainder by surface craft.

The high command said that yesterday and last night the air force sank five merchantmen totaling 21,100 tons, and damaged five more in raids on heavily guarded convoys off the British east coast.

DNB, official German news agency, said that since the beginning of the war German armed forces have sunk 11,664,000 tons of "enemy" shipping. Its total showed that since February, 1941, with the exception of the "especially successful" month of April, the Germans sank a round total of 730,000 tons a month.

[British figures on allied losses for the same period were 5,961,044 tons.]

U.S. PAYS PENSION TO DEAD; SUES 4 BANKS TO RECOUP

Charge $10,345 Forgery in Names of Two Vets.

Altho the federal veterans' administration paid $106 in 1927 to bury Louis Woodall, a Spanish-American war veteran, it kept sending his monthly pension checks to his home until Aug. 6, 1934. Woodall's daughter, Mrs. Lula Franklin, cashed each check, the government alleges, signing her father's usual "X." The checks totaled $7,645.

This was disclosed yesterday by civil suits filed in the federal District court, in which the government seeks to collect $10,345 from four Chicago banks. It is charged that the banks cashed forged checks issued to Woodall and to Frank Oden, a civil war veteran, whose pension continued for nearly eight years after his death in 1928.

Refuse to Prosecute Daughter.

The banks named are the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, First National, Mercantile National and Mid-City National. Sylvester White, an assistant district attorney, said no action was taken against Mrs. Franklin because the district attorney's office refused to prosecute.

In the Oden case, White said, checks totaling $2,700 were cashed by Mrs. Bertha Oden Baugh, a daughter, who was committed to a state hospital in 1936, and died there later. The error was not found until her husband, William, brought several uncashed checks to a government office to see whether they were valid. Officials said he was not involved.

Banks Refuse Restitution.

Austin Hall, assistant United States attorney in charge of the civil branch, said the suits were filed because the banks refused to follow their previous policy of making restitution on fraudulent pension checks. The cases are not expected to come to trial until fall.

Attorneys for the banks said they would contend that the fault lay with the government's negligence in issuing the checks, and that the banks were not notified of the fraud within a reasonable time after the government "learned, or should have known, that the indorsements were illegal."

Three other suits asking $1,675 from two banks and a loan company for cashing fraudulent veterans' adjusted compensation certificates also are on file.

GEAR SHORTAGE SHOWN AT ARMY CORPS EXERCISES

Divisions Lack Weapons, Soldiers Lack Clothes.

enemy if war came now. He has been in service four months, but his name is so far down on the troop's alphabetical list that the troop's rifle and pistol issue was exhausted before his name was reached. A similar shortage affects the entire 107th regiment.

Umpire System Improved.

Despite shortages of equipment, officers in charge of the training are attempting to make the field exercises as practical as possible. The system of umpires has been improved in line with a plan of Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear, commander of the 2d army, to record the deficiencies of command and operations for the purpose of using the lessons in later training.

Exercises today consisted of troop movements on the basis of reconnaissance operations of yesterday. The invading force from the north has reached the Cumberland valley, south of Murfreesboro, and the defending 5th, 27th and 30th divisions have moved north from bivouacs east and west of Tullahoma.

The 27th division is in the center sector, flanked on the east by the 30th and on the west by the 5th. The 27th was far in advance of the flanking divisions early this morning and they had to be brought into position. Most of the movement was by truck and tractor, the shuttle system being used when transportation was scarce.

Scouts Run Into Ambush.

Umpires assisted by the 153d [Arkansas] infantry make up the enemy force, using scout cars to get over the terrain and post flags to mark the invaders.

Scouting operations during the day by one of the 5th division's combat teams resulted in a surprise when concealed machine guns of the enemy opened fire with blank ammunition. The umpires ruled that in actual combat the battalion commander and his adjutant would have been killed in the first burst of gunfire.

At daybreak tomorrow the 27th and 30th divisions will launch a frontal attack against the foe. Half an hour later the 5th division will start a flanking attack from the west. Subsequent developments will depend upon the efficiency of corps operations.

Co-Stars of Revue

Jack Haskell and Edna O'Dell, who will appear on the premiere of the Summertime revue over W-G-N tonight.

Edna O'Dell, W-G-N songstress, and Jack Haskell, Northwestern university singer, will be cofeatured on the new Summertime Revue which will have its première from W-G-N's main audience studio at 9:30 tonight. It will be broadcast over the Mutual system. The studio audience is to join in singing a medley of some of the most popular tunes of this generation.

Harold Stokes and the W-G-N Dance orchestra will round out the musical company with Lou Jackobson as the producer. Miss O'Dell is to sing "Does Your Heart Beat for Me?" and "Speak Your Heart." Haskell will sing "Star Dust" and "I Surrender, Dear." Haskell was one of the stars of the Northwestern Waa-Mu show which was previewed on W-G-N prior to its campus presentation.

Drowns in Vain Attempt to Save Youth in Lagoon

Cleveland Cain, 27 years old, colored, 3534 Indiana avenue, was drowned yesterday in the Washington park lagoon in a vain attempt to save the life of James McClinton, 21, colored, of 5641 Calumet avenue. McClinton was in a row boat which capsized about 15 feet from the boathouse where Cain was an attendant.

DRAFT EXAMINER TELLS EFFECT OF NEW I. Q. LEVEL

Maj. E. Mann Hartlett, chief medical examiner for the selective service administration in Cook county, said last night that since May 15, when the required intelligence level for draftees was raised from a "normal understanding" to that of an average fourth grader, 15 men have been rejected in Cook county.

Maj. Hartlett, speaking before a group of Chicago physical education instructors in the Chicago Teachers' union headquarters, 509 South Wabash avenue, said that in view of the strict physical standards which must be met by draftees he thought that the 40 per cent rejected to date was a low percentage.

Twenty per cent of those rejected are physically hopeless from the military standpoint, he said. Twelve per cent, placed in class 1B, can be used for at least limited service if needed, and another 8 per cent have been ruled out as psychiatric cases.

Reports Employe Missing with $3,000 in Cash, Gems

Police were asked yesterday to search for Terry Felowitz, 19 years old, 1446 Fullerton avenue, employed by Harry Levinson, a diamond dealer at 739 North Clark street. Levinson told police that he sent Felowitz to the loop Monday to deposit $1,500 in checks and cash and to pick up $2,500 in diamond rings from other gem dealers. Felowitz, according to Levinson, picked up the jewels and deposited $1,000 of the sum intrusted to him, leaving unaccounted for $500 in cash and the $2,500 in diamonds.

$679,500 MILITARY RECREATION FUND DRIVE TO START

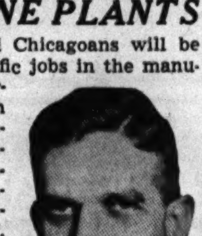
A drive to obtain $679,500 in Chicago for the United Service organization's movement to establish recreation centers for the armed forces will be opened tomorrow night at a dinner in the Stevens hotel. Hughston M. McBain, first vice president and general manager of Marshall Field & Co., is general chairman of the campaign in metropolitan Chicago.

Thomas E. Dewey, district attorney of New York and national chairman of the USO, will be the principal speaker. He has been making a tour of army camps and navy bases and will report finding meager facilities for recreation outside of the cantonments.

Philip R. Clarke, president of the City National Bank and Trust company of Chicago, will be toastmaster at the meeting. Representatives of the army and navy will be present, as will leaders of the YMCA, YWCA, National Catholic Community service, Salvation Army, Jewish Welfare board, and National Travelers' Aid association, the six United Service organizations. Quota of the national campaign is $10,765,000.

800 TO GET FREE COURSE FOR JOBS IN ENGINE PLANTS

Eight hundred Chicagoans will be trained for specific jobs in the manufacture of airplane engines in a tuition free preparedness program this summer at Illinois Institute of Technology. H. T. Heald, president of the institute, announced yesterday that authorization for the courses, which will begin June 23 and continue until Aug. 30, had been received from the United States office of education.



H. T. Heald.

Heald said registration was begun yesterday and will continue until June 23. John I. Yellott, institute director of engineering defense training, said the training classes are open to America citizens by birth, high school graduates [preferably from technical schools], employable, willing to work, not now employed in preparedness industries, and not intending to go to college next fall.

Yellott said registration will continue between the hours of 7 and 9 p. m. each day at the Armour college of engineering campus of the Institute at 3300 Federal street. He said applicants also will be interviewed from 1 to 4 p. m. Saturdays.

POSTAL AUCTION ENDS TODAY; 700 ATTEND OPENING

An estimated 700 bargain seekers crowded the ninth floor of the new postoffice building yesterday for the opening of the semiannual two day auction of unclaimed merchandise in the Chicago postoffice. John C. A. Consoer, assistant superintendent of mails, in charge of the sale, said buying was more brisk than it has been in years and that only about 265 lots of a total of 765 will be left for today. Articles sold included 1,000 marbles, a black caracul fur coat, golf clubs, corsets, and machine tools.

WICKARD'S AID FACES REBUKE ON WAR SCARE

Washington, D. C., June 3 [Special].—A department of agriculture public relations official will receive a stern reprimand for having urged his departmental assistants to spread to farmers a warning on "the perilous situation" of Great Britain and the western hemisphere, it was revealed today. The disclosure was attributed to officials close to Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard.

The warning was contained in a confidential memorandum of May 7, prepared by John Fischer, chief of the information division of the Farm Security administration.

The memo declared that British ships are being sunk "twice as fast as they can be replaced" and that "many of the best informed people in Washington predict an invasion of the western hemisphere within 90 to 120 days, if Britain is defeated."

Secretary Wickard learned of the memo's circulation only today, it was reported, and there was official expectation he personally would warn Fischer against letting his "zeal exceed his judgment" in the future.

SANITARY BOARD CUT FROM 9 TO 3 MEMBERS URGED

Economy Survey Also Asks Tax Levy Slash.

A recommendation that the board of trustees of the sanitary district of Chicago be reduced from nine members to three in order to save $60,000 a year was made yesterday in a preliminary report by a special administrative survey commission. The commission also urged reductions in the pegged tax levies sought by the sanitary district for 1941 and 1942.

The survey group of three members was appointed early this year by Ross A. Woodhull, president of the district, to suggest methods for increasing the efficiency of sanitary district operations. Its report was based on findings of a technical staff recruited by the Civic Federation and the Chicago Association of Commerce. The three members of the survey commission are Joshua D'Esposito, engineer; Tappan Gregory, attorney, and Francis E. Manierre, real estate operator.

Legislative Sanction Needed.

The proposal to reduce the number of trustees would require legislation by the state assembly.

Each of the nine sanitary district trustees is paid a salary of $7,500 a year and has a secretary who draws

$2,500 a year. The commission suggested that the present trustees remain in office until the expiration of their six year terms and that two trusteeships be abolished as vacancies occur in each of the election years of 1942, 1944, and 1946.

"The commission is in agreement with the staff that there is no necessity for having nine trustees to supervise the work of a single function agency such as the sanitary district," the report said. "The larger number may possibly have been justified during the period of tremendous construction, but certainly is no longer necessary."

$600,000 Tax Slash Urged.

Other recommendations by the survey commission were:

1. That the sanitary district's requests for pegged tax levies of $5,500,000 in 1941 and $7,000,000 in 1942 should be reduced by $100,000 for this year and $600,000 for 1942. The levies apply to the corporate [operating] fund.

[At Springfield last night the house committee on municipalities amended the sanitary district's peg levy bill to reduce the totals of the amounts suggested by the committee. By agreement final consideration was deferred until next Tuesday.]

2. That consideration be given to the appointment of a "general superintendent" who would be responsible for carrying on the operating activities of the district effectively and economically.

3. That the amount of money which the district can borrow by selling bonds without public referendum be reduced from the present limit of 95 million dollars to $27,500,000.

4. That the fiscal machinery of the district be simplified and modernized by improved budget procedures and an annual independent audit.

The report said that "so far as we have been able to ascertain the main activities of the district are being conducted in an efficient manner." The commission subscribed to the technical staff's proposal that arbitration machinery be set up to determine what constitutes fair compensation for union workers.

Pass Law to Drive Bund Auxiliary from Jersey

Trenton, N. J., June 3 (AP).—Gov. Charles Edison signed into law tonight a legislative act repealing the charter of the German-American bund auxiliary. He signed the measure soon after it was rushed thru both houses of the New Jersey legislature. The bill was drawn at the direction of Attorney General David T. Wilentz. The bill would force the group to dispose of its property and wind up its affairs in New Jersey. Its Camp Nordland, at Andover, in the north Jersey hills, was closed by Sussex County Sheriff Denton J. Quick on Memorial day as a public nuisance.

Little Girls Adopt Two Orphaned Baby Robins

Washington, D. C., June 3 [Special].—Mrs. Katherine Byron, widow of Representative William D. Byron, Maryland Democrat who was killed in an airplane crash, today was sworn in to succeed him in office. A son, James Edgar Byron, 13 years old, saw his mother take the oath.

HOUSE KILLS BILL AIMED AGAINST MACHINE HERE

Springfield, Ill., June 3 [Special].—The house today killed a bill designed to smash the Chicago Democratic machine by prohibiting legislators from holding jobs on the pay roll of any local government, a movement backed by the Legislative Voters' league and sponsored by Representative J. S. Mundy [D., Marshall].

Mundy's bill would have barred any legislator-elect who had not signed a pledge that he does not hold and will not attempt to hold any other lucrative public office during his term as a member of the assembly. Roland V. Libonati [D., Chicago], a former Republican, led the fight against the bill. He offered an amendment which would have barred any legislator whose vocation, profession, or employment tended to influence his attitude toward legislation.

From all sides came protests that the amendment, adopted by a vote of 73 to 61, would bar almost any one who had not led a hermit's life. R. J. Branson [R., Centralia] moved then to strike the enacting clause from the original bill and this motion was carried by a voice vote.

SCIENCE MUSEUM NAMES 5 TO FILL BOARD VACANCIES

Five new trustees, including three outstanding scientists, have been named to fill vacancies on the board of the Rosenwald Museum of Science and Industry it was announced yesterday by Lenox R. Lohr, president, following a board meeting. All the officers were reëlected by the board.

The scientists added to the board are Dr. Arthur H. Compton, Nobel prize winner in physics and Swift professor of physics at the University of Chicago; Dr. James R. Angell, professor emeritus of Yale university, who was acting president of the University of Chicago in 1918-'19, and Dr. Ludvig Hektoen, Chicago pathologist.

The other new trustees are Edward J. Engel, who began his career as a railway clerk in 1899 and is now president of the Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe railroad, and Nathan W. Levin, operator of a financial management service principally representing the Rosenwald family.

BRIDGES ADMITS HIS TALKS WITH LEADER OF REDS

San Francisco, Cal., June 3 [Special].—Harry Bridges, alien CIO director, admitted at his deportation hearing today that he had conferred numerous times since 1936 with William Schneidermann, No. 1 California communist whose citizenship certificate recently was canceled.

Bridges said they conferred on political matters but sharply denied accusations by Chief Government Counsel Albert Del Guercio that the meetings were principally to discuss communist party policy.

Del Guercio sought to show that massmeetings at which Bridges spoke in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Baltimore during the east coast seamen's strike in 1936 had been arranged by communists. The alien labor leader denied the charges.

Charge 53 with Tooting Car Horns Just to Be Tooting

Police Commissioner James P. Allman announced last night that so far this week tickets have been issued to 53 motorists for tooting their horns unnecessarily. On Monday he ordered all police districts to enforce the ordinance which bans unnecessary noise.

OPPONENTS WIN HOUSE TEST ON REMAPPING BILL

Downstate Votes Help to Postpone Action.

BY PARKE BROWN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 3.—Downstate Illinois indicated on a test vote today in the house that hostility there toward the bill for remapping the congressional districts of the state is stronger than the feeling against the bill in Cook county and probably will be sufficient to kill the measure.

The test came on a motion to postpone consideration after several amendments to the Luckey bill for reapportionment had been proposed from the floor. It was not completely clear cut since T. J. Sullivan [D., Springfield] who made the motion based it largely on the argument that time should be allowed for consideration of the proposed changes. Nevertheless all of the known advocates of reapportionment voted against the postponement.

Majority Favor Delay.

The roll call showed 97—a substantial majority — favoring delay and only 44 for immediate action. The majority—for postponement—included 64 downstaters and 33 members from Cook county. The 44 against postponement consisted of 24 Cook county members and 20 downstaters.

The Illinois congressional districts have not been altered since 1901 and the proposal to attempt it this year on the basis of the 1940 census was begun last March with the warm support of Speaker Elmer J. Schnackenberg, who now is considered the real power behind the bill introduced by Hugh M. Luckey [R., Potomac], chairman of the committee on reapportionment.

Leaves Chair to Speak.

So strongly is Schnackenberg behind the measure that, for the first time since his election as presiding officer, he left the rostrum and took the floor to speak ardently against delay.

Despite his plea, which came during the roll call, Republican party lines as well as Democratic lines were forgotten. The opposition is charged up to two basic reasons. One is the opposition of the present members of congress to having their district boundaries changed. The other is that redistricting would increase Cook county's share in congressional seats and, it is said, increase the number of downstate districts which would be controled by Republicans.

BOYS' TOWN GRAD MARKS BIG DAY ON CITIZEN HOUR

Sam Turner, 18 years old, a graduate of Boys' Town, had a big day yesterday. He was named to the Roll of Honor of the Citizens of Tomorrow broadcast on W-G-N and started his new job at the Stevens hotel.

He received two congratulatory telegrams—one from Mickey Rooney and one from Spencer Tracy, stars of the two motion pictures based on Boys' Town. In an interview on the broadcast he said his ambition is to make good for his new boss, Joseph Binns, manager of the Stevens hotel.

George De Witt, 17, of Burlington, Ia., also was named to the Roll of Honor. Yesterday's program saluted Lane Technical High school of Chicago. Approximately 600 boys from the school took part in the broadcast. The Lane chorus, directed by Hugh Dickerson, sang several selections and R. C. Rada, assistant principal, spoke.

SENATE REFUSES TO CUT U. OF I. TO BUDGET FIGURES

Green's Veto Threat Still Stands.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 3.—Altho he still will have the last word on the matter, Gov. Dwight Green suffered a setback today when his leaders failed to convince the senate that it should reduce the University of Illinois biennial appropriation bill to $17,467,000—the figure set by the budgetary commission.

The governor's floor general, Arnold P. Benson [R., Batavia], made it quite plain to the Republican majority that Mr. Green would veto any university items in excess of those established in the budget, yet on roll call, 11 Republicans ignored the warning, and voted with 21 Democrats against reduction.

The Republican group was led by Everett M. Peters [R., St. Joseph], who represents the Champaign-Urbana district. Peters had just voluntarily cut the appropriation by $250,000 bringing it to $17,705,000 when Benson moved to slice another $238,000, which would drop the total to the budgetary commission's figure. This lost.

"It wasn't any trouble to increase the old age pension appropriation by 8 millions because that has political significance," Peters said, "yet no one says anything about it."

Senator Thomas P. Gunning [R., Princeton], supporting Benson's proposed reduction, drew Peters' attention to the fact that the budget figure would allow the university $1,100,000 more than it received two years ago.

The roll call followed, leaving the appropriation at the amount set by Peters' reduction of $250,000.

Fuel Company Appeals Ordinance Case Conviction

The Chicago Waterways Fuel company, 1110 Division street, has taken an appeal from a conviction May 23 on charges of violating the city ordinance requiring a weighmaster to state separately the grades of coal in one load. The case was heard by a jury in the court of Judge Erwin J. Hasten and the company was fined. Officers of the company said the coal in evidence was sold to another fuel dealer and not to a consumer.

BILLS TO REPEAL POLICE WAGE LAW PUT UP TO HOUSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 3.—The Illinois house committee on municipalities today sent to the floor, without recommendation, the Davis bills to repeal statutes requiring the payment of certain minimum wages to policemen and firemen employed by cities of the state.

An effort to kill the repealers was made by Representative William J. Lawler [R., Springfield], who moved to table the motion of Representative James E. Davis [R., Galesburg] that the bills be recommended for passage. The motion was lost by a tie vote of 9 to 9. Then a motion by Representative J. L. Wellinghoff [D., Belleville] to report them out without recommendation was passed, 11 to 6.

Five Cook county members, although representing a city constantly demanding home rule, voted for the Lawler motion to table. Voting thus were Matt Franz, William J. Gormley, Vito Marzullo, and Emmet McGrath, Democrats, and William J. Warfield, Republican.

Three of these members, Franz, Marzullo, and Warfield, also voted to keep the bills from going before the house for consideration.

PUPILS WILL AID MAYOR'S DRIVE TO SAVE WATER

Stop Waste Appeal to Be Distributed in Schools.

Chicago's 600,000 school children will be asked by Mayor Kelly to cooperate in his drive to stop the waste of city water. The mayor announced last night that copies of an appeal to all Chicago residents to observe the city ordinance regulating lawn sprinkling and to repair all leaking faucets and pipes will be given to the pupils to take to their parents.

"I am not asking people to decrease or stop the legitimate use of water," the mayor said, "but the city has a right to ask that people stop wasting water. National defense authorities say there will be a great lack of water for use in factories unless it is conserved."

Police Get Orders.

Police Commissioner Allman earlier had ordered all districts to enforce the lawn sprinkling ordinance. It permits sprinkling from June to September between 5 and 7 a. m., 2 and 4 p. m., and 8:30 and 10:30 p. m. The fine for each violation is from $5 to $200. Allman also directed that fire hydrants are not to be opened except by the fire department or on order of the commissioner of public works.

Approximately 7,000 industrial and commercial users of metered water already have shown an increase of 3 per cent in water consumption for the first four months of 1941 compared with the same period a year ago, the mayor said. An even greater increase is expected, he asserted.

[Last three ciphers omitted.]

Packers	351,210	416,180	428,355
Gen Manufactu'g	508,505	533,870	608,815

"Chicago's water plant is capable of supplying sufficient water for all uses," Mayor Kelly said, "but when water is wasted it is impossible for the water bureau to keep pressure at its normal 25 pounds. That is why on exceptionally hot days when people open fire hydrants illegally to cool streets, the pressure drops to about 10 pounds and industrial plants and third floor residents complain they have no water."

Capacity Never Approached.

Water bureau records show that at no time since 1910 has the average daily pumpage [consumption of water] come close to the capacity of the water system. The highest pumpage for a single day in that period was 1,399 million gallons last July 24.

Actual pumpage capacity, City Engineer W. W. DeBerard explained, is dependent on the capacity of the city water tunnels to supply water to the pumping stations from the cribs.

The capacity of the tunnels last year was 1,830 million gallons a day, compared with 660 million gallons in 1910. The rated [theoretical] capacity of the pumping stations last year, with 12 stations in operation, was 2,308 million gallons a day, compared with 635 million gallons in 1910, when seven stations were functioning.

Peak Was Reached in 1930.

Pumpage has varied from an average of 518 million gallons a day in 1910 to 963 million gallons last year. In 1930 pumpage reached a peak average of 1,059 million gallons a day.

In 1910 the per capita water consumption amounted to 232.1 gallons a day. This increased to 274 in 1920 and 297 in 1930. Last year it was found to have dropped to 270. The reduction was attributed to city water main repairs. Experts say the figure can be reduced 100 gallons a day if waste is stopped.

Water bureau experts estimate that 20 per cent of the water goes for industrial and commercial use, 61 per cent for household use, 4 per cent to the 37 suburbs supplied with city water, and 3 per cent for municipal use. The other 12 per cent is lost thru underground leakage from water mains.

FORMER TEACHER DIES.

Sycamore, Ill., June 3 [Special].—Mrs. Norman Westlake, 72 years old, former school teacher, died yesterday. She was born in a log house built by her father at Sauk Centre, Minn., and had lived here since 11 years old. She taught in rural schools for five years and for two years in East school here. Her husband and three daughters survive.

PRINTERS' UNION VOTES AGAINST RETURN TO AFL

Ousted After Refusing to Pay $20,000 Levy.

The International Typographical union, which has 5,000 members in Chicago, has voted against reaffiliation with the American Federation of Labor, it was announced yesterday by Claude M. Baker, international president, in Indianapolis, Ind.

The vote, held in shops thruout the country, was 33,498 against reaffiliation to 25,632 for it. The international has 80,000 members in more than 900 locals. Voting started May 21.

Ousted Over $20,000 Levy.

The union was suspended from the AFL Jan. 29, 1940, for refusing to pay $20,000 in assessments levied in October, 1938, to finance the AFL fight against the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

At that time the AFL assessed each of its more than 4½ million members 1 cent a month. The typographical international fought the assessment and as a concession the AFL at its New Orleans, La., convention in November wiped out the $20,000 and technically canceled the 1 cent a month payment.

William Green, president of the AFL, discussed a possible reaffiliation with Baker last February and announced the international was welcome to return. The general referendum followed.

Hailed as Proof of Independence.

Baker interpreted the vote against reaffiliation as a mark of his union's independence and its disinclination to mix into quarrels in labor's ranks.

"This referendum was a democratic process," he said. "It means that the International Typographical union will stand alone until this fight within labor's ranks [the feud between AFL and CIO] is over."

The vote of Local 16, the Chicago unit of the union, recently was announced at 2,185 against reaffiliation to 1,510 for it.

ORDER DETECTIVE SUSPENDED FOR FAKE FIRE ALARM

Police Commissioner Allman ordered the suspension yesterday of Detective Patrick McMahon of the New City district, who was arrested shortly before dawn after he had turned in a false fire alarm at 71st and Loomis streets.

McMahon admitted pulling the alarm, but denied having anything to do with a dozen other false alarms that had been sounded between 1 a. m. and 4 a. m. yesterday. He was formally charged with disorderly conduct and released in bonds of $25.

Sixteen days ago McMahon, who is 40 years old and lives at 5653 Justine street, went on sick leave. He was said to have reported he suffered an attack of pneumonia, but a doctor who treated him Monday night said he saw no evidence of anything more severe than a sore throat. A number of false alarms were turned in during that period.

4 TAVERN LICENSES REVOKED BY MAYOR IN MORALS CLEANUP

Mayor Kelly revoked the licenses of four taverns yesterday. Among them was one operated by Susan Thomas at 419 South Clark street, where investigators said they found hostesses soliciting drinks from customers.

Louis Cortina lost his liquor, music, and dancing licenses after policemen found minors being served, and men with police records in his place at 2142 Madison street.

A complaint that women solicited drinks, and that there were obscene pictures on the walls at 2345 Madison street caused revocation of the license issued to Abraham D. Paule and Irving Biegel.

Police found two runaway girls from other states working as hostesses in the tavern of Anthony Russo, 1924 Ogden avenue; the fact that they were minors was the basis of license revocation.

Jay Frederick Reeve Opens General Law Office in Loop

Jay Frederick Reeve announced yesterday that he has opened an office for general law practice at 111 West Washington street. Mr. Reeve, a well known trial lawyer, resigned from the firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin and Ellis with whom he has served for many years. A graduate of Loyola university, Mr. Reeve was an American army aviator during the world war.

WORK TRAINING SPURS SCHOOLS, SAYS JOHNSON

Chief Tells Gains Made Thru Shedding of Fads.

BY THOMAS MORROW.

Chicago taxpayers are buying 100 per cent more education for their dollar than they did in 1923. Superintendent of Schools William H. Johnson said yesterday as he prepared a term-end report on educational advances.

Johnson said that in 1923 only 31.9 per cent, or 4,747, of 14,683 high school enrollees completed their courses and obtained diplomas. In the 1941 graduating class there are 17,851 pupils, or 66 per cent of the 27,064 students who were freshmen in 1937, the report said.

The most important factor in the increase, Johnson said, was the decision to shed educational fads and to shape the school system to the needs of the pupils and the community. This determination gave the students opportunity to choose between courses which would prepare them for college and courses which would fit them for jobs.

Shift in Trend Shown.

"The school system formerly was spending 90 per cent of the available money to train the less than 10 per cent who went on to college," Johnson said. "Since 1937 we have fitted approximately 19,650 students for jobs and graduated them from our technical schools.

"Our research and that of firms seeking employés convince us this number has been absorbed 100 per cent into industry. Nor have we neglected the tacademic training for college work in taking this step. This is evidenced by the fact that all Chicago high schools are on the accredited list of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools for the first time in Chicago educational history."

Johnson said Lane, Crane, and Tilden high schools have been established as the basic technical schools under the new system, and students also are given technical training in Lucy Flower, Jones Commercial, and Washburne Trade schools. In these schools courses are given in such diversified fields as millinery, air conditioning, beauty shop work, forging, photography, steam fitting, tailoring, and advertising.

Student's Field Studied.

Talks with students and their parents, teacher evaluation, adaptibility tests, personality, Johnson said, are among factors considered in determining the field for which the job seeking student is best fitted. Failure or loss of interest at the end of a trial semester may result in the withdrawal to or removal to a straight high school course until the student has determined upon a field in which he would be more successful.

"Nor do we consider our job ended when the student has been graduated and has obtained a job," Johnson said. "A recent survey showed that 3,100 technical graduates were not working at the jobs for which they were trained. These students were recalled and given additional training and now are working at the jobs at which they aimed in their school work.

"The Pullman company has claimed 200 of the vocational and technical graduates, and the entire 3,000 technical and vocational graduates in 1941 are being absorbed by the major defense industries represented by Buick, Studebaker, Buda, International Harvester, Western Electric, Howard Air-Craft, Carnegie-Illinois Steel, Stewart-Warner, and Crane companies."

Sets Porch Fire

James Castro in police station before he was taken to Juvenile home.

James Castro, 5 years old, was taken to the juvenile home yesterday for starting a bonfire on the rear porch of his home at 112 South Hoyne avenue. He explained to Warren avenue police that he was soaked by the rain and his mother was not home, so he started the fire to keep warm. But the landlord told police that Jimmy had set several other fires on the premises recently. Police will question his mother and father.

SLUGS CLERK IN $1,600 HOLDUP.

A slugger-bandit stole $1,600 from a currency exchange at 910 East 47th street yesterday. He struck Louis Woods, 6212 Ellis avenue, a clerk, on the head with his gun, and forced him to open the safe.

EKMAN IS NAMED ACTING EVANSTON CHIEF OF POLICE

Lieut. Carl Ekman was appointed acting chief of police of Evanston yesterday by Mayor S. G. Ingraham. Ekman has been on the Evanston force 22 years, 12 as chief of detectives.

Mayor Ingraham said Ekman's appointment was a temporary one to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation Monday night of Chief Charles F. Paasch, who retires on pension.

The mayor's original choice for the job was William O. Freeman, who was chief from 1927 to 1939. A citizens' committee which looked into Freeman's fitness for the position, reported that he is competent, but that certain "loose and slanderous talk" against him might make his appointment unwise.

Here's One Way You Can Co-operate in the National Emergency

THE Chicago Coal Merchants Association has received a communication from the Acting Director of the Department of the Interior's Consumers' Counsel Division stressing the following:

"Consumers' Counsel Division proposes to launch a campaign to encourage the purchase and stocking of bituminous coal, particularly of domestic coal, during the summer as a direct and substantial contribution to national defense.

"If household purchasers can be effectively reminded that by buying their winter fuel now, they will be relieving pressure on production and transportation facilities when the burning season begins, this will be of material assistance to the national defense effort.

"This letter is written for the purpose of enlisting the co-operation of wholesalers and retailers in the undertaking. A similar letter is being addressed to the American Wholesale Coal Distributors Association."

With the full realization of the importance to defense of the request stated here, the members of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association are in full accord with the effort to move coal during the summer months.

The government asks you to co-operate

If you, too, would serve defense, fill your coal bins now so the mines and railroads will have the task behind, not ahead of them! And, by putting your country's interests first in this important matter you will also be doing yourself a good turn because for twenty years homeowners, foresighted enough to fill their coal bins in the summer, have saved money.

Thus, both prudence and patriotism point a course of immediate action for you. Every member of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association is ready to help you co-operate with the government in this effort.

6 CARS DIED in overheated Death Valley to prove that YOURS CAN LIVE LONG

NEW OIL A LIFE-GIVER. 5-QUART FILL–NONE ADDED–LASTED 13,398 MILES

—more than Twice the mileage averaged by 5 other big-name oils in fiendish Destruction Test... Impartial... Certified THIRST killed gold-feverish Forty-Niners in Death Valley. Down at Bad Water, undrinkable Death Valley puddle, you can stand today on our Hemisphere's bottom, 279 feet below sea level. And some of the worst heat on U. S. Weather Bureau records will be drying you up.

... America's hotspot! ... where 6 identical everyday cars were kept scorching along, testing 6 different motor oils, till 6 new engines were junk.

Every test condition was the same for all. Qualified authorities eyed every move—every mile. Speed: 57 miles an hour for all. The Official Referee had bought 5 of the oils right off the market; millions know their names well. The other oil was decidedly new—with a name you are sure to know better and better. This new oil that authentically delivered more than twice the mileage averaged by the others is named

CONOCO Nth MOTOR OIL
—Now on Sale here for Your Car

How could exactly one fill of this popular-priced Conoco N^{th} oil keep lasting—without one added drop—for an official total of 13,398.8 miles? How could Conoco N^{th} oil outlast them all by 5,683 miles or more, even outlasting one "rival" by 8,268 miles! ... Certified.

Conoco Nth oil is preserved by Life-Giving New Synthetic

You know of vitamin synthetics ... man-made ... replacing Nature's life-giving elements sacrificed in some modern food processing. Similarly, the latest refining methods steal some of Nature's best life-giving elements from motor oils. But more than making up for that today —in popular-priced Conoco N^{th} oil—is a new synthetic called Thialkene inhibitor ... man-made by Conoco. U. S. Patent 2,218,132 tells what it is. And Death Valley showed what it does. It inhibits or checks the effect of foul leftovers always created by the normal explosions in every car engine. That's what makes Conoco N^{th} stay more like its own good self ... helps the engine stay in shape—good way to save quarts.

A triumph matching Conoco OIL-PLATING

Another wondrous synthetic, remember—man-made and long used under the famed Germ Processed oil patent—still gives your engine OIL-PLATING. This lasting lubricant can't all drain down from inner parts though the car speeds or stands all day. Instead of allowing the engine to start dry and run raw till oil gets pumped up, this faithful OIL-PLATING stays plated up ... on guard against wear in advance, all the while you use Conoco N^{th} oil. And in addition you get the latest life-giving aid that foiled fearful Death Valley ... that eclipsed other oils tested ... that made one 5-quart fill of new Conoco N^{th} oil last 13,398 miles. Certified.

That's like a mad extreme; over-stretching the limit—far beyond the utmost distance allowed for one fill of oil by authorities on the subject. You'd never make your own car stand any such proving-ground torture. Certainly not. But you want as wide a margin of engine protection and oil economy as your money will buy this Summer. On both counts Conoco N^{th} oil has nailed up plain evidence. Ask today for Conoco N^{th} at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. Continental Oil Company—Pioneers in Bettering America's oil with Synthetics

IMPARTIAL The 6 new cars were broken-in alike, after engines had been taken apart for the Referee, to double-check uniformity. All cars were tuned alike. Same desert route for all. Even the handling was evened up by alternating drivers. One 5-quart fill per car and no more ... engines were under lock.

In the Indian language, red-hot Death Valley was called "the Land Afire."

CERTIFIED The Engine Destruction Test in Death Valley, testing Continental Oil Company's new motor oil and five other well-known advertised competitive brands, was closely observed by me and my assistants during the preparation of the test fleet and during the entire period of the test.

The five competitive brands were bought by us at retail and handled only under our observation. Closest possible uniformity was attained in the cars and driving conditions.

I hereby certify that the work and tests were thoroughly and fairly conducted. Engine Destruction occurred in each case at the mileage stated.

BOOKS

Recent Poetry Fare Includes Varied Works

BY RUSSELL MacFALL.

"I am collecting my poems," writes Louis MacNeice in the preface to "Poems 1925-1940" [Random, $2.50], "not because I am dead but because my past life is. Like most other people in the British Isles, I have little idea what will happen next." And much of the importance of his collection is its rounding out of the poetic decade which has been dominated by W. S. Auden, Cecil Day Lewis, Stephen Spender, and MacNeice—the young English school—and their disciples.

More importance attaches to the panorama which the book affords of the work of perhaps the most literal and easily understood master of the group.

Louis MacNeice also is author of "The Poetry of W. B. Yates" [Oxford, $2.50]. As an Irishman and a poet, his discussion of Yeats, greatest of the Irish poets, is understanding, trenchantly critical, and most valuable when it is most concrete. Its ventures into the philosophy of criticism and of poetry, however occasional, are apparently derived less from his study of Yeats than from his own ruminations about the course poetry must take in the future.

Portraits and legends of the rugged, sententious Irish peasantry are the material for Arthur Stringer's easy verses in "The King of Loved Old Clothes" [Bobbs-Merrill, $1.50].

"Siren Song," by A. P. Herbert [Doubleday-Doran, $1.50], might appropriately be called the song the air raid sirens sing, for his light verses rag the dictators with the usual skill of Punch.

Elder Olson of Chicago is among those represented in "Best Poems of 1940," edited by Thomas Moult [Harcourt, $2.50]. The annual, now in its 20th year, includes work by Auden, Benet, Frost, Engle, Sassoon, Jeffers, and Hillyer, among others.

Jan Struther carries over many of the magic qualities of "Mrs. Miniver," her widely read volume of essays about English life, into "The Glass Blower and Other Poems" [Harcourt, $1.50]. There are the same ease and urbanity of style, the same scene—the same easily worn acuteness of observation and wit in expressing it. With her new poems are some from "Bethsinda Dances" [1931].

New Novel Out

Phil Stong, whose latest novel, "The Princess," is reviewed below.

"The Princess," by Phil Stong. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.] Published Monday.

Phil Stong, who has become a sort of unofficial novel laureate of Iowa, sticks to his native state for the background of his latest novel. It concerns Arnie Edeson and the farm which nourished and influenced her as directly as if it had been her mother.

Arnie, left an orphan by the very act of coming into the world, was brought up by a grown-up brother and an ancient hired man who was the most notorious hurly-burly Don Juan in the neighborhood. She was well brought up, too—with all the scientific help that books could give in her babyhood care, all of the loving understanding that two adoring grown-ups could heap upon a child, no formal schooling whatever [apparently there were no truant officers in them tha'r parts]—to become a superbly attractive, honest big woman in every sense of the word.

There is gusto in Mr. Stong's pages. The story isn't anything epic, but he tells it with such zest that it becomes something bigger and better than the literary shadow it casts. F. B.

Fisherman's Experiences.

A trout fisherman's experiences of 35 years are told entertainingly by Leighton Brewer in "Virgin Water" [Coward-McCann, $2.50]. It is illustrated with beautiful photographs taken by Mrs. Brewer.

Bertita Harding Garnishes New Page of History

"Amazon Throne," by Bertita Harding. [Bobbs-Merrill, $3.50.] Published last Thursday.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Bertita Harding is one of literature's best gossips. She can take a pocketful of facts, and when she is thru manipulating them they emerge a book full of posies. She chooses royalty of the past tense, but in most cases not so long past that readers' memories of their names are dry. She tells their story with all of the literary arabesques of the rococo novelist. She presents fact with the most tempting of fictional sauces to garnish it.

Her story of the Braganzas who ruled Brazil is in the traditional cycle of three generations from shirtsleeves to shirtsleeves. The dynasty began as fugitives from Portugal to Brazil. It ended as fugitives from Brazil to Portugal. In the record of those three generations Bertita Harding tells an almost fiction-like tale of royal arrogance, royal flaunting of convention, and finally royal defeat by the very strength of the emperor's belief in freedom.

Every kind of political intrigue is recorded in "Amazon Throne," but I suspect that it is the minutae of the amorous intrigues detailed in its pages which will give it its greatest popularity—for, as I said before, Bertita Harding is a born gossip, and when she sets herself to tell the story of a flagrant love affair which shocked the world, it loses none of its piquancy.

And those of us who know little—too little—about our great and powerful neighbor will find this chronicle of Brazil's history in the 19th century highly enlightening.

Writes Another

An Early Day Gun Girl

"Belle Starr, the Bandit Queen," by Burton Rascoe. [Random, $3.]

Burton Rascoe, author of "Belle Starr," is listed as "deputy sheriff of Pottawatomie county, Oklahoma," but he is really a two pen man rather than a two gun man. Once literary editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, for many years a New York critic and essayist, he has never lost his interest in the Americana of his native Oklahoma. "Belle Starr" is the result of that nostalgia.

About Belle Starr, as about Billy the Kid and the James boys, the Daltons, the Youngers, the Murrell gang, and the Jennings brothers [all of whom appear in this book], there has been written as much twaddle as about the brave little boy who heroically admitted that he had chopped down the cherry tree with the words: "I cannot tell a lie. I did it with my little hatchet." Research has chopped that legend to the ground, and Mr. Rascoe's research of the Belle Starr and related legends of the desperadoes has proved equally razing.

Mr. Rascoe gives Belle's story in its gaudiest trappings—most of which were pinned on it by the old Police Gazette and the subsequent dime novels [which, incidentally, he says, cost a nickel]. And then he shatters the baubles the way Annie Oakley used to splatter bullets into bits on the landscape in the old Buffalo Bill wild west shows. When Mr. Rascoe reassembles the pieces, Belle emerges as a highly over-advertised gal. Mr. Rascoe's literary sharp-shooting and his rebuilding of Belle Starr legend nearer to the truth if not to the reader's heart's desire of adventure are exciting and skilful.

Nancy Johnstone Tells Delightfully of Life in Mexico

"Sombreros Are Becoming," by Nancy Johnstone. [Longmans, $2.50.]

Readers of "Hotel in Spain" and "Hotel in Flight" will be delighted to know that the Johnstones are again flourishing in Mexico [but without a hotel]. They lost theirs when Franco's rebels swept up the Spanish coast, driving Nancy and Archie and their brood of refugee children into France.

But the Johnstones are irrepressible. They earned a few dollars writing news dispatches, borrowed more, and, with two suitcases, a typewriter, and a charming Portuguese woman and her son, embarked for Mexico.

Nancy's story of their hegira and new life, told in "Sombreros Are Becoming," is as witty and amusing as she always is, with a deeper overtone. She and Archie have excellent feuds with the local foreign stuffed shirts at Cuernavaca. They rehabilitate a cottage and live well on $28 a month, even if it is on the wrong side of the burro track. And a brush with the Mexican secret police who think Nancy is an international spy seems inevitable. J. H. T.

HARD CASE

By Luke Short

[Copyright: 1941: By Luke Short.]

DEFENSE LAWYER.
INSTALMENT XLV.

Dave sneered and slipped to the floor and hitched up his pants. The men moved backward a step.

Beal said, "Ernie, unlock that corridor door."

Ernie did, and stood aside.

Dave turned and walked into the cell block. McFee's guards, who waited each morning to be let out of the cell block by Beal, were standing by the door when Dave walked in. Dave marched past them, stopped, looked at McFee.

Carol's father had lost 10 pounds during the time he had been in jail. All the fight had gone out of him, and now his face looked gentler, less like a bigot's.

Dave said, "How they treat you here, general?"

"All right," McFee said quietly. "So they got you, eh?"

"For a while," Dave said, indifferent. He turned to Beal and said, "Don't stand there like a knothead, Beal. Give me a room. And hurry up with breakfast. I'm hungry."

Beal made an inarticulate noise, and Ernie laid a hand on him. "Just get him a cell before you blow up, Harve! What about that one across from McFee?"

Dave was put in a cell opposite his partner, and then Beal relaxed. The others crowded around Dave's cell and looked at him. This was the man with the $20,000 reward on his head. The rest of the town, men, women, and children, were pouring into the cell block now, for the word had spread like a grass fire.

Beal did his best to keep them out, but there were too many of them. They flocked into the narrow way between the cells, fighting for a chance to see and insult Dave Coyle, the famous outlaw.

Ernie and Beal fought for half an hour to clear the crowd out, and while Beal didn't fight too hard, since these people elected him, he finally succeeded in making his authority felt. The cell block was cleared, and a man was sent for the breakfasts.

Dave sat on his bunk and yawned partly out of sleepiness and partly out of boredom. He observed McFee from time to time, but they did not talk. All the bluster and the truculence in McFee was gone. He was just a patient, soft-spoken old man.

Ernie and Beal brought in the breakfasts, and watched their two prisoners eat. Ernie kept watching Dave for some sign of success, and finally, when Beal had turned to say something to McFee, Dave nodded imperceptibly. Ernie felt a vast relief flood him. It had worked.

Dave, finished, said, "Beal, come here."

Beal and Ernie came up to the bars. Beal had a look of smug self-satisfaction on his cherub's face.

"Favor?" Beal echoed. "How?"

"By givin' up. By not shooting you. I was awake when you came into the office alone this mornin'. I could have gunned you."

Beal flushed. "All right. Maybe you did, only we'd of caught you anyway."

"But you admit I done you a favor?"

Beal nodded cautiously.

"Then do me one."

"Depends," Beal said skeptically, and added, "I don't see why I should be doin' you any favors, Coyle. You've kept this damn county in a holy hell of a uproar for too long."

"I want my preliminary hearin' today," Dave said.

Beal just stared at him. Ernie said, "Why?" truculently.

"I want to git it over with, that's all."

"Why, damn your gall!" Ernie blurted out. He knew Beal well enough to know that Beal would invariably take the opposite side he took in any argument. His cue was to object, and Beal would be contrary enough to contradict him. "Why should we be doin' favors for a coyote like you?" Ernie asked hotly.

"Wait a minute," Beal said pacifically. "Judge Warburton's here now, Ernie. Why not?"

"Why not?" Ernie glared at him. "Hell, just because he asked us to, if for nothin' else!"

Beal said grimly, "The sooner it's over, the sooner he hangs."

"Why, I wouldn't——Ernie began. Beal laid a hand on his arm and took him over to a far corner.

Beal said sternly, "Remember our talk the other day, Ernie? You're thru tomorrow."

"I remember," Ernie said glumly.

"Just so you do," Beal said. "Now, since you're still a deputy, I'll tell you why I agree with Coyle. The longer we keep him here, the more chance there is of him breakin' out. The sooner I get him in Santa Fe for the trial, the happier I'll be. No, sir, I'm going to talk to Warburton."

"He's your prisoner," Ernie said sulkily. "I'd keep him here till he rots, if I was doin' it."

"But you ain't!" Beal said emphatically.

Beal walked over and said to Dave, "You'll get your hearin' just as soon as I can arrange it."

At that moment, the corridor door opened and a man poked his head in. "What about Miss McFee seein' her old man with Maitland?"

Beal felt magnanimous, now. "Bring them in."

Carol came in. Dave could tell by the dazed expression on her face that she had heard the news. Senator Maitland, beside her, looked with firm disapproval at Dave. Ernie, down at the far end of the corridor out of earshot, smoked in silence.

Carol spoke to her father, but she came to Dave's cell. "What happened?"

Dave said, "It's so simple you wouldn't believe it."

"Tell me."

Dave said bitterly, "I slept out last night. I got cold. Then I got to thinkin' of all the other nights I'd have to sleep out, waitin' for a shot in the back, hidin' out, goin' without food and sleep, tired and hungry and broke. I—just decided to give up."

Carol didn't say anything, and Dave thought she was going to cry. "I got the money," he said softly. "It's hid. Your dad will get out, so don't worry."

"O, I'm not worrying about him. What about you?" Carol cried passionately.

Dave only shrugged carelessly and said, "I'll break out, when I'm rested up." He rose and called, "Senator."

Maitland came over to the cell. "I'm havin' my preliminary hearin' this mornin'. I want a lawyer or I'll get framed for a dozen things I didn't do. You figure you'd take the job?"

Maitland's kindly face sagged in amazement. Then his mouth clamped shut, and he said emphatically, "I would not!"

"O, Uncle Dan. "Why not?" Carol cried.

"Here's one reason," Maitland said bluntly. He pulled out the letter from Dave, offering the deed for sale. "This shabby little piece of blackmail is mainly my reason for objecting." He ripped the letter in small pieces. "On behalf of my client, I wouldn't consider paying ten thousand dollars for a deed that was never legal. It's cheap and ugly blackmail. I suppose you sold it."

"To Wallace," Dave said. "If you'd been smart, you'd of bought it for McFee."

"Quite right," Maitland said coldly. "If McFee had had the money, if I'd had the money, if I could have raised the money, I would have bought it back from you. But you see, Mr. Coyle," he added with elaborate sarcasm, "McFee is broke and I am poor, so the deed goes back to that band of robbers."

Carol was about to say something to Maitland, but the warning light in Dave's eye stopped her. She said instead, "Uncle Dan, Dave helped us once, or tried to. This isn't much I'm asking you, but please won't you be Dave's lawyer? Don't let them frame him with every crime that's been committed in the county for the last three years."

Maitland's face softened. "I suppose I could. It's just a formality."

"I'll pay you," Dave said.

"I won't take it," Maitland said coldly. "It doesn't change my opinion of you. You're still an outlaw, a bad one, and I won't represent you after today."

"Bueno," Dave said softly, and in a way that made Carol look sharply at him.

When they had gone out, Ernie strolled down from his end of the corridor. "Well?" he asked softly.

"It'll be easy," Dave said. He was smiling in anticipation.

VACATION—WHERE AND HOW—SEE SUNDAY TRIBUNE

Section Will Be Devoted to Travel News.

BY FREDERIC BABCOCK.

America is on the march again. But—so far—the march is one of peace. Whole armies are moving from the cities to the mountains, the seashore, the woods, the lakes, and the streams. But they have only one objective. They're looking for a place in which to rest, play, and forget about war and taxes.

By way of marking the occasion and making vacations more profitable to those who take them, next Sunday's TRIBUNE will devote an entire section to the subject of travel. The section will be a complete directory of where to go, how to get there, and what to see and do after you get there.

A large number of staff members and special writers will help tell the story.

Sketch by McCutcheon.

John T. McCutcheon, world traveler and dean of American cartoonists, will contribute one of the sketches that have made his name known to nearly every one who ever got a mosquito bite or a touch of poison ivy in the country.

Bob Becker, outdoors editor, will write an article about where to fish in the north woods. Hal Foust, auto editor, has written about the unbeatable delights of touring the American west. India Moffett, society editor, has dashed off a story on the trip thru western Michigan to Mackinac Island. Rea Seeger, fashion editor, tells about what to wear en route to and at the summer resorts. Philip Hampson, railroad editor, relates how the whole country can be seen on one circle tour.

Others Who Will Contribute.

John Menaugh, Percy Wood, Mason Warner, George Tagge, Parke Brown, Dorothy Schmidt, Harold Murray, and June Provines are a few of the others who have been around a good deal and who will write what they have experienced and seen.

This year, for obvious reasons, most of the summer vacations will be limited to the western hemisphere. But, ever since Sept. 1, 1939, travelers have been finding that there are a lot of places worth visiting in North and South America and that the old idea that you have to go to Europe for a real holiday has gone by the boards.

Sunday's section will describe these places.

BIG CRUISE SHIP WILL OPEN LAKE SEASON FRIDAY

The Seeandbee, largest cruise ship on the Great Lakes, will open its season Friday at Cleveland, O., where it has been refurbished, and will make its first 1941 sailing from Chicago Sunday, June 15. This was announced yesterday by Thomas J. McGuire, president of the Cleveland and Buffalo Transit Company of Illinois.

Thruout the early part of the summer the 500 foot liner will go on week-end cruises from Chicago to Mackinac Island, Georgian bay, Lake Huron, and St. Mary's river. On July 12 it is scheduled to begin a series of seven day journeys from this city to Mackinac Island, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo, and return.

For the last two weeks in June there will be a number of daytime and moonlight trips from Navy pier. These will be sandwiched in between the week-end cruises.

Temperature in Tunnel Stays at 40 All Summer

Lake Placid, N. Y., June 3 [Special].—There is one place, a 35 minute drive from this resort in the Adirondacks, where the mercury stays at 40 degrees thruout the summer. That is the inside of the tunnel leading to the electric elevator which takes tourists to the top of Whiteface mountain. The tunnel, 424 feet long, pierces the side of the mountain at a point nearly a mile above sea level.

On an Inland Waterway

Each summer the fjords of the Saguenay river attract crowds of vacationists to the province of Quebec. This summer's cruises on the Saguenay will begin June 20.

ANCIENT AZTEC DANCE WILL BE SEEN IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, June 3 [Special].—Papantla's "flying squadron" will go into action June 12.

Papantla is a little village in the state of Vera Cruz. Its flying squadron, more often called "the Flying Men," is an ancient Aztec dance. And June 12 is Corpus Christi day, a fiesta day in Mexico.

The dance is performed in the village square at sundown as a climax of a program of singing and feasting. A pole fashioned from a large tree is set in the ground, and heavy ropes lead from its top. Five men, dressed to resemble brightly plumaged birds, climb to the top, wrap themselves in the ropes, and, at a signal, leap headfirst into the air, their arms outstretched like wings.

As the rope unwinds the men fly around in widening circles. Finally each of the five makes a "forced landing," and the spectacle, which makes the American Maypole look like a kindergarten routine, comes to an end.

Papantla is reached by river boat from the city of Vera Cruz, or by horseback, or by a combination of train riding, auto driving, and hiking.

Milwaukee Clipper, New Lake Ship, to Visit City

The Milwaukee Clipper, newly finished Great Lakes streamlined ship, will be brought to Chicago tomorrow for a day of inspection by travel officials, newspaper men, and others. Starting June 15, the ship will make round trips daily between Milwaukee, Wis., and Muskegon, Mich.

Poinciana Festival Opens Next Sunday in Miami, Fla.

Miami, Fla., June 3 [Special].—Selection of Alvalyn Boege, a junior at the University of Miami, as queen of the Royal Poinciana festival marks the completion of plans for this city's chief summertime event. The festival will begin next Sunday and last a week.

Anglers to Win Prizes at Michigan Fishing Fete

Hastings, Mich., June 3 [Special].—At the Barry County Bluegill festival, to be held here June 27 and 28, prizes will be given for the largest bluegill, perch, large and small mouth bass, and pike caught in this county of 228 lakes. The season opens June 25.

Travel Queries Answered

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

I am told that Minneapolis is to have a water carnival this summer. Kindly give details.—F. S. B.

The celebration, called the Aquatennial, is to be held July 12 to 20. Among its features will be a canoe derby, a combined swimming, diving, and fashion show, a rowing regatta, parades, and water pageants. The canoe derby will be run from the source of the Mississippi river in northern Minnesota to Minneapolis, head of navigation on the river.

How much territory, and how many scenic places, do the railroads' circle tours of the west include?—R. A. K.

There is a wide variety of tours, but most of the itineraries call for visits to the southwest, the entire Pacific coast, and the northwest. A sample tour is the one to the Grand Canyon, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Vancouver, and the Canadian Rockies.

I wish to get specific information regarding vacation spots in New England. To whom should I apply? —D. M.

Write the New England council, Boston, Mass., and ask for a copy of the booklet, "Your New England."

How many lakes are there in Minnesota? —T. F.

Visas Needed for Visits to America.

Detroit, Mich., June 3 [Special].—The Canadian government, in an attempt to hold Canada's 300 million dollar annual American tourist business, is offering unusual inducements to lure Americans to Canada for vacations. The principal inducements are the 10 per cent premium on American money and the fact that no passports are required for entry. Never before have American tourists been greeted with so much courtesy and hospitality.

At the same time wartime restrictions have made it almost impossible for Canadians to enter the United States. They must obtain a registry permit at no cost and a visa at $3 which is good for one year. They are permitted to carry no more than $5 in Canadian currency with them, and cannot take American merchandise back home.

Affect Nearly 3,000 Persons.

The regulations affect nearly 3,000 persons who commute daily across the international boundary between Detroit and Windsor, and, of course, those who commute at numerous other points along the border. They do not affect 150 Americans who enter Canada to work in Windsor and nearby cities.

About 700 Americans residing in Windsor and working in Detroit must comply with virtually the same border regulations which affect 1,800 resident Canadians employed in Detroit. The only difference is that the Americans do not have to obtain a visa to enter the United States as do the Canadians.

The passport requirement was placed in effect July 1, 1940, by the state department at Washington, D. C. The currency controls were instituted by the Canadian government.

Curtail Foreign Exchange.

The foreign exchange control board issued a statement last July when the problem of obtaining enough American cash to pay for war supplies purchased in the United States became apparent. It read:

"Canada needs airplanes, air engines, parts, and other vital requirements from the United States. To secure these less important calls upon Canada's available supply of foreign exchange must be subordinated. Heretofore, when Canada experienced an unusual and temporary increase in its requirements of United States funds, it was possible to arrange the financing in the United States. The United States government now forbids this.

"By limiting travel of Canadians in the United States, Canada will divert approximately $75,000,000 to more important uses. This imposes a sacrifice of personal pleasure and convenience upon the Canadian people but it has been willingly accepted."

Plug Leaks in Currency.

While plugging the leaks in currency, Canada does everything possible to lure American tourists to come to the dominion for a summer vacation or sightseeing trips and to leave United States currency behind them. The inducement of 10 per cent premium on their cash is cited, plus the fact that no passports are required to enter Canada. A glance at any travel agency placard bears this out.

Americans remaining in Canada more than 48 hours may bring out duty free $100 worth of purchases, plus $100 in American money, their personal effects, and car with which they came.

'HOME, SWEET HOME' PARTY WILL OBSERVE PAYNE ANNIVERSARY

New York, June 3 [Special]. — A costume garden party, celebrating the 150th anniversary of the birth of John Howard Payne, author of "Home, Sweet Home," will be given Saturday at Payne's birthplace in East Hampton, N. Y.

Villagers attired in the styles of 1823, when the song first was sung in Payne's opera, "Clari," are to welcome visitors to the old saltbox house which has come to be known as "Home, Sweet Home."

The house is vine embowered and filled with relics of the composer and furnishings of the colonial period. It is open to the public daily.

Save Our Republic

REACHING FOR MORE POWER.

Mr. Roosevelt is now asking congress to authorize him to commandeer any private property that he wants to take. He has been given extensive powers of that sort already, but he wants them expanded. The bill provides that the price to be paid the owner is to be fixed by the President. If the owner is not satisfied he must take 75 per cent and sue for what he thinks is a fair price in the Court of Claims. He doesn't get a jury trial.

The New Deal has been hankering for legislation of this Mexican sort ever since the first brain trust was assembled but has been approaching the goal gradually and by indirection. Now the goal is acknowledged. Whenever the President in his judgment declares a national emergency to exist—and that he has already done—the taking of private property can begin.

It should be unnecessary to point out that this is revolutionary legislation. Hitler has no greater power to seize what isn't his than this bill would give to Mr. Roosevelt. Nobody ought to be astonished that the administration is seeking such an extension of its authority, but it is somewhat remarkable that the administration made so little effort to justify its bill.

Robert Patterson, the undersecretary of war, failed to mention a single instance in which the need for any such legislation had been disclosed. He said it would help to control prices, but didn't say what experience had suggested the need for a remedy, or how the bill would operate to achieve the purpose. He said the bill would enable the government to take part of a factory, but did not indicate what owner of a factory had refused to coöperate in this way with the government. And so on. There were no specifications. It is difficult to avoid the conclusion that the administration wants this bill enacted, because the administration is avid for power and for revolution. National defense and emergency are only excuses.

Off the record it is being said that the bill is required to prevent strikes in munition factories. The theory seems to be that a union may strike against a private employer but not against the government. It is not easy to see just how the seizure of a factory would restore industrial peace. It is easy to see that if the purpose of the proposed legislation is to prevent strikes in munition plants, the easy and direct means of doing so is to pass a law for compulsory arbitration. Whether legislation of that kind is necessary or desirable is a question upon which opinions differ, but certainly, if this is in reality an anti-union and anti-strike bill its purpose ought not to be concealed. The question ought to be faced honestly and directly.

Mr. Roosevelt has been singularly slow to use the immense moral force of his position to prevent strikes, even in the airplane factories. It would be much easier to believe that he now wants added power to deal with strikes if he had exhausted his present powers of persuasion and his existing authority in law. He hasn't done either.

All of these considerations point to the conclusion that what is desired is legal sanction for a revolutionary overthrow of property rights. Mr. Roosevelt appointed three of the five judges of the Court of Claims. His appointees are already in the majority on the Supreme court and will shortly number seven out of nine. It is to be hoped that congress in considering the bill will not overlook those facts.

LAKE MICHIGAN FERRIES.

On June 2 the Milwaukee Clipper, a new streamlined car and passenger ferry, was christened in Milwaukee harbor. The Clipper, which was built at a cost of a million dollars, will carry passengers and automobiles in regular service between Milwaukee and Muskegon, Mich. Its cruising speed of 17½ miles an hour will enable the ferry to make the trip across the lake in 5¼ hours. It is equipped with all modern safety devices, conveniences and luxuries, including ship to shore telephone service. It is expected that Chicago residents wishing to drive to Michigan vacation points will take the short cut to Milwaukee and then ferry across Lake Michigan to Muskegon, rather than battle with the traffic congestion found in the industrial district at the south end of the lake.

The touring board of the American Automobile association recently held a two day conference in Chicago. The president of the association predicted that the coming summer will be a banner gasoline travel season and that 5½ billion dollars will be spent during 1941 on highway holidays.

The president of the Chicago Motor club says Chicago is not getting its natural share of this roadside trade. He estimates that the traffic by-passing Chicago en route to Michigan and Wisconsin carries an estimated 400 million dollars and 300 million dollars respectively to those vacation territories. The cause of the by-passing is blamed on poor city paving, traffic congestion and the failure of our leading hotels to meet the tourist competition of cabins, auto courts, and such roadside establishments.

We are pleased to note that Louis N. Biron, president of the Wisconsin and Michigan Line, which built and will operate the Milwaukee Clipper, has said that if that service proves popular with Chicagoans his company will study the possibility of opening a direct ferry service from Chicago across Lake Michigan. An improvement in our city highways and a real effort by our hotels to meet the competition of the tourist cabins, auto courts, etc., in addition to speedy and efficient ferry service across the lake, would capture some of the millions now passing us by.

PUBLIC OPINION ON WAR QUESTIONS.

Dr. Gallup recently, on the University of Chicago round table, discussed his Institute of Public Opinion poll. One of the points considered was whether the questions were framed to suggest answers or whether without being so framed did suggest them. Altho only about 21 per cent of the persons questioned want the United States to go to war, the war party has relied upon the collective response to affirm that a majority of the people are backing Mr. Roosevelt in everything he does, altho everything he does advances to the war which the people say they do not want. Mr. Gallup defended the integrity of the poll.

It was agreed by the debaters—William B. Benton, vice president of the University of Chicago, and Harold D. Lasswell—that the phrasing of a question might influence the response. "Do you think the United States should aid Great Britain at the risk of war?" That would be one form of the question. "Do you think the United States should aid Great Britain at the risk of 50,000 filled coffins, of 500,000 filled coffins, of a million filled coffins, or 5 million filled coffins?" That is the same question stated in the terms of its possible reality.

The risk of war is an impersonal thing to many people. It does not mean anything. It does not picture its consequences. The filled coffins do contain the consequences. Any poll can be diverted to the purposes of its takers in times of emotional confusion. Dr. Gallup is regarded as sympathetic by the interventionists.

The Kokomo [Ind.] Tribune, took a poll of its readers in five Indiana counties and found that 89.8 per cent of the people were opposed to convoys and that 95.6 per cent were opposed to entering the war and sending troops abroad. Those were simple, unconditioned questions. They do not get a confused response. When a great majority of the people declare they do not want to enter the war they are dealing with a reality which presents itself in terms they understand.

A majority of the people of the United States are opposed to Hitler. They are opposed to the Nazi system of government; they are opposed to its oppression of other peoples, and they certainly do not want Hitler to win. They are correspondingly sympathetic with Great Britain. They would like to see the war ended with the release of subject people. In other words, they would say they do not like what they regard as evil. They would like to see evil vanquished and vanish from world affairs.

When Mr. Roosevelt indulges in certain expressions of his dream life and utters platitudes about good and evil, the sentimental instinct of some of the people is to agree with him. They aren't asked how he is going about all this, with what he is going to do it, what chances he would have to remake the world in the terms of the four freedoms, how many American lives it would take, where they were to be expended, how many American families would be in mourning, or what would happen to the American republic.

AN AVIATION FAKE.

The British magazine Aviation has printed an article asserting that the Germans and Italians are now using four types of bombers capable of attacking the eastern seaboard of the United States. The Canal Zone, the magazine asserts, might be attacked from Dakar, 3,600 miles away on an air line.

With more favorable European bases, the fantasy continues, the Germans might be able to increase the weight of their bombs to 15,000 pounds. Why they have used nothing heavier than about a ton over England is not explained.

These statements are totally untrue. As this war has demonstrated repeatedly, there is a vast difference between flights for distance records, with every pound of a plane's carrying capacity devoted to its fuel load, and round trip attacks carrying bombs. German attacks on England, it will be remembered, did not become serious until the channel ports were seized.

The Germans, American aviation authorities say, have one type of plane that could fly from Germany to New York. It might carry a ten pound bomb. It couldn't get home after it dropped it. There is, of course, the physical possibility of attack from an airplane carrier making a hit and run voyage into American waters. There is the same chance for an American carrier to launch such an attack on Germany. The Germans would be as foolish to attack us as we would be to attack them in such circumstances, because it would mean the almost inevitable loss of the carrier for no military advantage.

The British people and British publications, while they have frequently voiced their hope that the United States will join them in the war, have exhibited wise self-restraint about urging us to do so. An attempt to reverse those tactics, and particularly one based on the scare propaganda already tried by our own war mongers and thoroly discredited, cannot fail to hurt Britain more than it helps her.

Editorial of the Day

TVA HAS COST ENOUGH ALREADY.
[Philadelphia Inquirer.]

Congress has frequently been advised to look beneath the label of alleged defense projects and see if they are needed for the emergency or are only more excuses for spending the taxpayers' money. This counsel may well be applied to Senator Norris' proposal to have the Tennessee Valley authority take in a lot of new territory.

He wants to have the 688 mile long Cumberland river and its basin included in TVA. The basin covers an area of 18,000 square miles. Obviously the proposed enormous power development could not be concluded in time to aid in the defense emergency any more than could the St. Lawrence seaway. If more electric power is needed it can be supplied much more quickly and cheaply thru steam plants.

Nearly $400,000,000 has been sunk in the TVA project, with an exceedingly doubtful prospect of corresponding returns to the country, altho special benefits have inured to the people of a single section at the cost of the rest of us.

Certainly, even as a long range project, Senator Norris' proposal is ill timed when every dollar that can be raised should be devoted to defense. At the best, TVA is still an experiment. This is no time for further experiments that would divert man power, money, and materials from the nation's imperative enterprise.

In a few weeks the little boys can begin experimenting with that interesting pastime of eating green apples.—Indianapolis News.

Some day a book will be written about the history and lore of the Auditorium theater. Its career as an opera house is so frequently mentioned that the many other ways in which it has contributed to the Chicago tradition are slighted.

A Fine Point in Lease-Lend Diplomacy.

Your contemporary, THE TRIBUNE, announces that due to the war, exports from Portugal to the United States have increased tenfold in the first four months of this year. This brings to mind a day back in the "Sahara era" when a guest from London sat at my table. My wife had placed before us roast beef and Yorkshire pudding. In honor of the guest I had opened a long-treasured bottle of port [American made]. Our guest admitted that he had never tasted better beef or "puddun," even on its native heath of Yorkshire. Then he sampled the wine.

"Very good," he commented. "But it's not port. You must know, port comes only from Oporto, Portugal. England buys practically the entire supply. We're very fond of it over there."

But now the "real port" is coming to the United States. Do you suppose we'll do the right thing and send it back to England under the lease-lend act? G. J. S.

The Strange Case of Chiggers vs. Hon.

So Chig deigns to contribute a mote of blandishment [May 29] to the domestic comedy! O, it's all right with me—after 25 years that animated cartoon still doesn't realize he's on a leash and can be brought to heel. Heel, now there's a word that stirs my memory—O, yes, it's about my forgetting and I'll have to admit a certain talent there.

Well, this heel gives me a turkey roaster for Christmas and later, when I'd clean forgotten the circumstance, he deducts the cost from my allowance as a household expense. To further confuse the transaction he orates for 20 minutes because I didn't get a trade-in on the old can. Now, it's a hot, muggy day and I'm expected to go shopping for his dinner request—frog legs or channel catfish. Ugh! I hope I forget 'em. Hon.

THE BOOTLESS BARRIER.
(A Brookfield Ballad.)

There are no bars out at our zoo
Because such things obstruct the view,
And in this animal hotel
Moats serve the purpose just as well.
They are not deep or very wide,
Since all the visitors outside
Are bright enough to realize
It's better not to fraternize;
While those within, as they appraise
The world we live in nowadays,
Give thanks as often as they can
That they are safe from brother man.

How to Become an Honorary Doctor.

Institutions of learning award the honorary doctor's degree for notable contributions to learning or culture, but they also are susceptible to glamor, oomph, personality plus, spotlight haloes, radio voices, and the romantic spell of the stage door. All of which leads up to the news that Katharine Cornell will be awarded her seventh honorary doctor's degree by Clark university [Worcester, Mass.] on June 8.

TRUE AND FALSE APPENDICITIS.

IS appendicitis ever a chronic malady? Can we assume that when inflammation strikes within this blind pouch it will proceed to the abscess stage? Or shall we take it for granted that a mild infection with low grade germs may recur at intervals?

We know that there are many degrees of virulence on the part of microbes. Take sore throat, for example. One may waken in the morning with a moderate irritation which will disappear within an hour or two. True enough, bacteria are present about the mucous membrane, but they are not vicious enough to do much damage. On the other hand, if they win control because resistance is not sufficiently high to overwhelm them, tonsillitis may develop.

Perhaps the region of the appendix offers a somewhat similar situation. We have a perfect right to suppose that a single acute attack may be so slight that it will pass unrecognized. Neither the patient nor the physician, if he is called, can spot trouble in this location. Yet even this simple form of annoyance may be adequate to produce adhesions or other local changes quite sufficient to render the area uncomfortable. In fact, thereafter it may constitute a zone from which impulses [reflexes] will throw the delicately poised machinery of the intestinal tract out of kilter.

The result is that there may be a flareup a few weeks or months later, with another healing period — all without operation. Then it is that routing out the offending organ will bring prompt and complete restoration to health.

As a rule, however, an inflamed organ which has quieted down of its own accord is rarely the cause of indigestion. This is borne out by actual cases in which removal of a so-called chronic structure has failed to prove curative.

When a patient presents nebulous complaints, we need not anticipate that a surgical procedure will help nervous indigestion. If attempted, the victim, the family, and the physician will be grievously disappointed. Some cases, however, appear to be "cured" as the sufferer will blossom into glowing health — for a time. Within a few months, if the disturbance is truly functional, there will come a return of the particular emotional conflict which started off the chain of symptoms.

Recently a careful investigation of several hundred individuals of this type, wherein operations were resorted to for various reasons, revealed that in no single instance was so-called indigestion remedied permanently. The following incident may be considered typical:

A young man in his early 30's had been bothered for several years by recurring bouts of nausea, vomiting, and abdominal pain. He had been examined on at least four different occasions. Finally, one of his doctors advised that he part with his appendix. The suggestion was adopted and, for six months, he was immeasurably improved.

Things went well for a while, when the responsibilities which had brought on his original symptoms again began to weigh heavily. Whereupon every manifestation which he had exhibited previously reappeared in full force. In consequence, he was able to do his work with the greatest difficulty. But with belladonna and plenty of bromides he is now making steady progress.

We may say then that as an escape from what is clearly an emotional upset within the alimentary canal, taking out some part of the anatomy is not the answer. True enough, rest in bed, the solicitude of friends, and gifts of flowers and books, will ease tension for a time. But when one gets back into harness, the nervous system may fail to adjust itself to the load imposed by business and family life. Then comes a relapse.

No, we must not expect surgery—no matter how skilled—to "cure" frayed or tense nerves. Furthermore, we must understand that agitated sensibilities can "play act" every malady.

TURNING ON THE POWER

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

ALUMINUM WATER PITCHERS.

Chicago, June 1.—We have been reading a great deal about the necessity to conserve the aluminum supply for defense purposes and I see in THE TRIBUNE an article with a heading reading: "OPM's Aluminum Haul in Madison Is 40,000 Pounds."

That is a good demonstration of the coöperation of the people in doing their share toward supplying the government with material needed for defense purposes.

Why don't the men in authority in the OPM do as much toward watching the interest of the people?

In last Thursday's TRIBUNE among announced awards to manufacturers by the government for war material appears the following:

"Aluminum Products company of La Grange, Ill., aluminum water pitchers, $61,373."

Can any one by the greatest stretch of imagination see why the government should spend over $61,000 for aluminum water pitchers for defense purposes?

If they want water pitchers for camps, government offices, etc., they could be made out of plastics, glass, and other materials. This is only one instance where government management is about as inefficient and ridiculous as can be imagined.

The people save, pay taxes, and their representatives throw the money away like drunken sailors. F. A. MUDGETT.

A LONELY SOLDIER'S PLEA.

Fort Eustis, Va., May 31.—Would you put this in your Voice of the People? I am a lonely soldier and would like to receive some letters from some young ladies if they have time to write to me. I will answer all letters I receive.

It sure is hard for me, day in and day out, to see the other boys receive mail and packages from home, and I don't receive any. All the boys are sure nice to me; some of them even let me read their letters.

I am from Chicago and always read your paper. I was drafted April 3.

LET HIGHER-UPS START IT.

Chicago, June 1.—As to tightening our belts, the cutting down should begin with the higher-ups in Washington. If the President would cut his salary from $75,000 to $25,000, no doubt many senators and congressmen would follow his example. Many of them have incomes that make their salaries unnecessary. If we the people, about 90 per cent of whom have very moderate means, have to tighten up our belts, then high officials should do likewise. MADGE COOKE.

SOCIALISM UNFETTERED.

Lombard, Ill., May 31.—Herbert Spencer said: "If development of socialism be unfettered, it can lead to no other result than slavery."

We have socialism with us. Is the age-old guise of a national defense emergency again to be the means of forcing on a nation an era of "unfettered socialism" with its inevitable result—despotism? Have we forgotten that "the price of liberty is eternal vigilance"? V. GODDARD.

FROM THE MINING REGION.

Calumet, Mich., May 30.—I work for a lady who gets your paper—and I read it all the time.

My people were Poles and Croats. They worked here in mines and on farms. They came here because they were slaves in Europe. Here they were happy and earned and saved and gave their children good schooling and trades. They have homes and farms and everything nice. Now their children and some grandchildren are in Detroit and Akron and far places. They all have good jobs but they have to join unions. They don't want to strike and they hate the agitators and strike leaders, but are afraid to say so for fear their families will get punished. Is that America when a man is afraid to do what he wants lest some rank European Red will hurt him? Can you answer that? Or are you afraid, too? Why don't you put all this sabotage on your front page? ROSA HERTHY.

HOSPITABLE TO THE BOYS.

Nashville, Tenn., May 31.—Hello, Chicago. I am a Camp Forrester, in Nashville for the second time. Nashville has the true southern spirit; provides free dances, lounges for writing home, a place to meet your buddies, free coffee and doughnuts; last week free beer.

Private citizens ask you to their homes for dinner and a night's lodging if you care to go. They take you for a drive all over town and ask you to come back.

One southern gal said to me: "Grandfather would turn over in his grave if he knew I was dancing with a Yankee soldier boy. But I like Yankees." Best regards.

PRIVATE B.,
Soldiers' and Sailors' Lounge.

THE "FLAG" PAGE.

Chicago, June 2.—I thank THE TRIBUNE for the page: "Our Flag—How to Respect and Display It." Memorial day was most appropriate for its publication.

Incorrect use of the flag is due to a lack of information and is not the result of intentional disrespect. I am sure that in many thousands of homes and schools this page will be treasured and will be referred to countless times.

At a time when the flag is being displayed daily in many places you have rendered a real service by showing the correct use. FLORENCE DENEEN.

DOGOWNER BOILING MAD.

Chicago, May 30.—It's about time that people who pay a dog license go on strike unless every dogowner is compelled to obtain a license. There's something rotten about the whole affair and I am boiling mad. There are plenty of dogs in our neighborhood but only a few with a license, and I've made up my mind to report all dogowners who don't obtain one. Then we'll find out if this drive is just the bunk. READER.

BUT WASN'T D. D. IRONICAL?

Chicago, June 1.—In reply to D. D.'s letter, I cannot understand this attitude of mind in an American citizen who says that Independence day, celebrated July 4, is obsolete.

We commemorate the birthdays of some of our Presidents, why should we not commemorate the birthday of our country? E. E. MILLER.

PAY FOR JOHNNY'S PRANKS.

Chicago, May 31.—I have been in a position to observe that many parents nowadays do not teach their children to respect other people's property. If Johnny decides to remove some of the plumbing, don't stop him, for he, no doubt, is going to be a plumber when he grows up; if Tommy hammers nails in the window sills, he'll likely be a carpenter, etc.

However, I feel that children have more right to a nice home in good neighborhoods than dogs. And for the benefit of all concerned the property owners should get together and insist that tenants who destroy their property pay for all damages. In time the parents whose children destroy other people's property will teach their children better. They will then be money ahead in the long run and landlords will be eager to rent to families with children. X. Y. Z.

FOOD FOR CHILDREN.

Chicago, June 1.—So England is getting soft hearted about the children. That is, about her own children. She wants our children to go without butter so that it may be sent to her own tots. She says two millions of her offsprings will have to go without this commodity unless our children make a sacrifice.

Very well, here should be our proposition. We will feed two millions of her children if she will allow us, under her strict control, to feed two million children of the occupied areas of France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, and Norway.

This should be fair enough. Or am I out of order, and a Nazi, and appeaser for making such inhuman proposition?

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

STOCKHOLDER'S LIABILITY.

Chicago, June 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My wife owned two shares in a state bank which failed in 1931. They now want to collect double indemnity [$200]. Isn't this outlawed? C. A. M.

The limitation period would not start to run until the cause of action accrued. The period on written contracts is 10 years—on oral agreements and civil actions not otherwise provided for—five years. We incline to the opinion that the five year period applies. A part payment or new promise could extend the period.

ALDERMEN WILL OBSERVE HABITS OF LADY BARFLY

Plan a Little Round of the Drink Emporiums.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] and seven of his fellow city fathers sat in the city council rooms for an hour yesterday and waited for a public which never arrived.

Ald. Wm. A. Rowan.

Finally Ald. Rowan looked at the clock. He looked at the empty chairs. He looked at the other aldermen, and he said that since the mountain would not come to Mahomet, Mahomet must go to the mountain. At this the aldermen brightened visibly and said, "Sure, sure" and "Why not?"

They'll Make the Rounds.

Consequently some evening this week Ald. Rowan's subcommittee plans to make the rounds of the bars in Chicago's loop. Is it true that women are elbowing men out of the bars? And does any one mind?

Yesterday's silent hearing was to have shed a possible light on this problem, introduced to public attention when Ald. James J. McDermott [14th] proposed an amendment prohibiting the sale of liquor to women unless they are seated at tables. Ald. McDermott said women at bars are a prolific source of quarrels. He predicted that bartenders and women's clubs alike would agree.

No woman showed up to speak for either side, but Martin Moran, chairman of the state council of tavern owners' associations, was there. He quickly developed into a proponent of equal rights for women. If they can serve on grand juries, he said, they can sit at bars.

Doesn't Care Where They Sit.

Moran added that he and all the boys behind the bars think it makes no difference whether a woman, if she is going to come in to buy a drink anyway, sits at the bar, on the bar, at a table, or under a table.

"But tell her she can't have a drink at the bar," he predicted gloomily, "and she'll drive 15 miles out of town to a place where she can get it."

Ald. Rowan sighed politely. He said one school thinks women a refining influence among bar patrons, but in his ward he knew a saloonkeeper who disagreed. This saloonkeeper banned women. "And now," Rowan said morosely, "he's out of business."

A city hall habitue who seemed to have a working knowledge of the city's taverns then arose, grasped a firm hold on a table, and spoke.

Times Hash Changed!

"Woman ushed to be a houshwife," he said thickly. "Now she ish a voter. I don't shee how a shivic counshil can posshibly shay to her: 'Tsthools aren't for you. You've got to ush thish chair.'"

Ald. Rowan sighed again, and then he asked for the floor. He said maybe he should invite members of women's clubs to come in. He asked the aldermen what they thought. "I think," said one, "we should adjourn."

They did—until the second hearing at noon tomorrow.

RAINFALL TOTALS 1.28 INCHES FOR DAY IN CHICAGO

A total of 1.28 inches of rain fell on Chicago in the 24 hours ending at 6:30 p. m. yesterday. This generous portion of moisture raised the total rainfall here since Jan. 1 within a few hundredths of an inch of normal.

Forecaster R. E. Gumpf said precipitation had been general in the middle western states for the last few days and that farmers in Illinois, Missouri, Indiana and Ohio had been greatly benefited. Many sections have had far less than normal rainfall during the last nine months.

MAYOR SUGGESTS 60 MILLION LOAN FOR TRANSIT LINE

A suggestion that the proposed federal loan to Chicago's prospective unified transit system be increased from 53 to 60 million dollars has been made by Mayor Kelly to Jesse H. Jones, federal loan administrator, according to a letter made public yesterday.

The mayor informed Jones that the unified system would have to borrow 20 million dollars within three years in addition to the 40 millions which, it is contemplated, would be used for partial redemption payments to surface and elevated lines' bondholders. A loan of 60 million dollars, together with the cash the lines now hold, would provide 45 to 50 million dollars for transit improvements after the redemption payments, the mayor said.

The mayor's letter expressed confidence that the city council would pass the long pending transit unification ordinance by June 30. Mayor Kelly told Jones he hoped to be able to assure Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe at a traction hearing June 13 that the transit lines can be merged on a sound financial basis. He asked Jones to "advise me of your decision with respect to a traction loan" and to set out the required loan terms.

ERASE PROVISION FOR ICKES' SALE OF ALASKA LAND

Washington, D. C., June 3 (AP).—The senate territories' committee struck from a bill [S-1289] today a provision that would have permitted Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes to dispose of property along the Copper river in Alaska.

Chairman Millard E. Tydings [D., Md.] said "we don't want United States territory disposed of by some administration secretary. That should be done by an act of congress alone." Tydings added that his committee would "make Ickes give a full report on the matter. Why," he said, "there might be gold, or copper, or anything there, and we might have another teapot dome scandal on our hands."

Delegate Anthony Dimond of Alaska said the bill would authorize the Copper River and Northwestern Railway company to give all its property and equipment in Alaska to the United States government. The measure also would empower the secretary of the interior to accept the property. Power to dispose of it was eliminated from the bill by the committee.

WOMAN FINED; SEEKS TEST OF 1879 BLUE LAW

An appeal to the Criminal court was taken yesterday by attorneys for the Schlosser chain of bakeries after Miss Mary Jack, an employé, was fined $25 on a charge of violating the 1879 Illinois blue law by selling bakery goods on Sunday in the chain's Oak Park store at 1145 Lake street.

Justice of the Peace Joseph E. O'Connell agreed to defer his action in three similar cases until the Criminal court rules on the appeal. An attempt will be made to get a decision soon.

The old law allows only boatmen and trainmen to work on the Sabbath. Attorney Ode E. Rankin, who represented the company, contended the arrests were discriminatory because Oak Park police do not interfere with Sunday operation of movies, gasoline stations, and bowling alleys.

RULES MAYERS ARE RECONCILED; DISMISSES SUITS

Judge John C. Lewe in Superior court ruled yesterday that the Gottfried O. Mayers are reconciled because they are living together and therefore dismissed both Mayer's suit for divorce and Mrs. Mayer's cross-bill.

Mayer, vice president of Oscar Mayer & Co., meat packing concern, filed his suit last Jan. 8. He charged he was forced to leave his home at 2505 Orrington avenue, Evanston, last October because of his wife's drinking.

His wife, Mrs. Ruth McKenna Mayer, charged he was guilty of misconduct, desertion, and cruelty. Her attorney threatened to file an amended complaint giving the details if the reconcilation failed. The Mayers were married in 1935. They have three children.

MARRIAGES SET ALL-TIME MARK; SO DO DIVORCES

But Percentage Gains of Former Are Higher.

Both marriages and divorces boomed to record heights in the year ended May 31, a survey showed yesterday. Optimists noted that the percentage increase in marriages was five times that found in the Cook county divorce courts. The figures showed that an average of 154 marriage licenses were issued and 31 divorces granted on each working day in the year.

Dan Cupid used so many carloads of arrows that County Clerk Michael J. Flynn was able to announce that there were 46,914 marriage licenses issued in the last 12 months. This is an increase of 27.5 per cent over the 36,791 licenses issued in the comparable period during 1939-'40.

All Time Record Set.

The increase of 10,123 brought the marriage license bureau total to an all time high. The normal average was 40,000 a year prior to the enactment in 1937 of the Illinois marriage laws requiring three days' notice of intent to wed and a physician's certificate. In the year just preceding the effective date of the law the total of licenses soared to 46,837, but in the year following the number dropped to 32,591.

Divorces during the year just ended rose to 9,737, an increase of 5.6 per cent over the 9,207 divorces granted during the previous 12 months. In the Superior court, where three judges hear divorce matters, there was an increase of 16.5 per cent to 8,281, while in the Circuit court with only one judge assigned to such work there was a decrease of 44.4 per cent to 1,456.

Figures for Last 4 Years.

Figures for both courts since 1937 follow:

	'37-'38.	'38-'39.	'39-'40.	'40-'41.
Superior	6,071	5,661	7,104	8,281
Circuit	2,084	3,092	2,103	1,456
	8,155	8,753	9,207	9,737

Opinion around the courts was that one factor for the increase in divorces is that there are now better facilities for attorneys wishing divorce suits to be heard.

F. E. MARSHALL, RETIRED BANKER, DIES AT AGE 81

Finis Everett Marshall, retired banker and former official of the Federal Housing administration, died in Kansas City, Mo., Monday, according to word received here yesterday. He was 81 years old and lived at the Lake Shore club of Chicago.

Mr. Marshall was born in Unionville, Mo., and served as cashier of the family's bank, the Marshall National. Later, after four years as a federal bank examiner, he became vice president of the National Bank of Commerce in Kansas City, resigning to become cashier and finally president of the Continental National bank of St. Louis, Mo. He retired in 1912 as president of the Phenix National bank of New York.

When the FHA was formed Mr. Marshall became deputy regional director for the Chicago district, and in 1935 he was appointed special assistant to the national administrator, serving for about two years. His duties were the handling of relations between the FHA and life insurance, mortgage, and large financial firms in the middle west. He leaves two sons, Trenholm and Hugh D. Marshall of Greenwich, Conn.

WIDOW OF ARTIST HONORS HIM WITH SWISH OF A KNIFE

New York, June 3 (AP).—John [Wichita Bill] Noble's widow took a knife today and slashed a piece out of one of his paintings she bought with savings she had intended to invest in a tombstone for his grave. John would have wanted her to do just that, she said, and his memory thus has been fittingly revered.

Mrs. Noble told today how she took the body of her husband, colorful frontiersman artist, back to Wichita, Kas., after his death in 1934 and of her difficulty in choosing a gravestone. Some friends solved her problem when they saw the picture in the Hearst collection and told her it was not up to the Noble standard.

"They were right," said Mrs. Noble. "Parts of it were bad. I know John would not want this bad painting to survive—as it was before I cut it, I mean. I think he would like the part I have saved. That is good—very good."

C. Bruce Roberts, La Porte Business Leader, Dies

Martin Ward Takes Oath as Referee in Bankruptcy

Judge William J. Campbell of the federal District court yesterday swore in Martin Ward as a federal referee in bankruptcy. Ward was nominated by Judge Campbell and the ceremony took place in his chambers. A score of Ward's friends and former associates on the staff of United States Attorney J. Albert Woll attended the ceremony. Until his resignation a few days ago Ward was head of the criminal division in Woll's office.

Joan Carroll, who at the age of 9 is a star of both Broadway and the movies, arrived at the La Salle station from New York City yesterday on the New York Central railroad train. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Freda Carroll. After visiting friends, they left for Hollywood, Cal., at 8:15 p. m. on the Santa Fe's Super Chief.

Joan will begin work immediately on "An Obliging Young Lady," a full length RKO picture. She has co-starred with Ethel Merman for the last nine months in the Broadway show, "Panama Hattie." Previously she appeared with Ginger Rogers in the motion picture, "Primrose Path."

A dancer, singer, and actress, Joan is also a west coast championship figure skater. Her principal hobby is collecting dolls, and on her arrival here yesterday she carried the first "parachute" doll to be distributed by the American Flying Services Foundation. The doll, which was presented to her Monday by the foundation, is a replica of others to be sold for the benefit of flying cadets in service.

LIFER, RELEASED, SEIZED FOR NEW TRIAL AS SLAYER

James Anderson, 27 years old, was released from the Indiana State prison at Michigan City yesterday after serving six years of a life sentence for murder. He was rearrested, taken to the Crawford county jail, and held for a new trial in the same slaying.

Anderson was found guilty in 1934 of the murder in Crawford county of Lawrence H. Reinforth. He recently filed a writ of habeas corpus thru Attorney Oscar B. Thiel of Gary asking his release on the ground the court which sentenced him failed to inform him of his right of counsel, thus causing him to enter a plea of guilty without proper representation.

The plea was upheld Monday in Superior court in LaPorte by Judge James P. Gleason. If found guilty in the new trial Anderson could conceivably be sentenced to the electric chair.

Expect 1940 Tax Payments to Reach 100 Millions

Clerks in County Treasurer John Toman's office yesterday began the job of tabulating more than 200,000 bills for 1940 taxes paid by mail in the final rush to beat the June 1 penalty date. Collections tabulated thru yesterday totaled $51,126,659, and Toman estimated the total may reach 100 million dollars when all payments made by mail and in person have been counted. The job is expected to take about two weeks.

Bioff Waives Extradition on Extortion Charges

Los Angeles, Cal., June 3 (AP).—Willie Bioff, Hollywood labor leader accused in New York of attempted extortion, waived extradition today and posted a $50,000 appearance bond. Bioff, who served a jail term in Chicago last year for pandering, and George E. Browne, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employés, are accused of attempting to extort $550,000 from four movie producers.

Gen. Kleeberg of Poland Dies in Nazi Prison Camp

MONTREAL, Que., June 3 (AP).—The Polish consulate here today announced that it had received notification of the death in a prison camp of Brig. Gen. Franticiszek Kleeberg, the last Polish military leader to submit to the Germans in the fall of 1939. Gen. Kleeberg carried on the struggle in Poland into October, weeks after the country had been forced to capitulate.

Mrs. Annie Dixon McClure.

Mrs. Annie Dixon McClure, 89 years old, a resident of Lake Forest for 60 years, died last night in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dumont Clarke of Asheville, N. C. Mrs. McClure was the widow of Dr. James G. K. McClure, pastor of the Lake Forest Presbyterian church from 1881 to 1905 and president of the McCormick Theological seminary from 1905 to 1928. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Clarke and Mrs. R. Douglas Stuart of Lake Forest; two sons, James G. K. McClure Jr. of Asheville and Nathan D. McClure of Geneva; 15 grandchildren, and 1 great-grandchild. Services will be held at 5:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Lake Forest Presbyterian church.

Mrs. Catherine Hughes Dunne.

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Hughes Dunne, 88 years old, will be held from her home at 2505 Pershing road to St. Agnes' church, 2648 Pershing road, at 9:30 a. m. Friday. Mrs. Dunne, a resident of Brighton park and the old Archer road district for the last 51 years, died yesterday morning. She was the widow of Arthur James Dunne, a Brighton park brickmaker. Surviving are two daughters, Margaret Keate and Emma O'Neill; three sons, Arthur, Clarence, and Earl S., all of Chicago, and six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Burial will be in Mount Olivet cemetery.

Robert Warner.

Services for Robert Warner, 38 years old, violinist and guitarist with the WBBM studio orchestra of Cæsar Petrillo, will be held at 2 p. m. today in the chapel at 316 West 63d street. Mr. Warner died of a heart attack yesterday in his home at 1400 Lake Shore drive. He leaves his widow, Florence; a son, Robert Jr., and a stepdaughter, Peggy. Burial will be in Sioux Falls, S. D.

Mrs. Jane Elizabeth Hiland.

Mrs. Jane Elizabeth Hiland, widow of James Henry Hiland, vice president of the Milwaukee road, died yesterday at 6017 Kenwood avenue, where she had been ill for two years. She was 49 years old. One son, Harry H. Hiland, president of Interstate Dispatch, Inc., survives. Services will be held in St. Paul, Minn.

Gilbert Willard Blanchard.

Passaic, N. J., June 3 (AP).—Gilbert Willard Blanchard, 86 years old, an executive during early development of American rubber companies, died tonight. Blanchard entered the industry in 1882 as vice president of the Cleveland Rubber company and was manager of the Chicago branch.

Mrs. Norman Mason.

New York, June 3 [Special].—Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon in Westport, Conn., for Mrs. Helen Osborn Mason, wife of Norman Mason, artist and a former Chicagoan. Mrs. Mason, who was 44 years old, died yesterday.

FORMER CAPTAIN OF ROOSEVELT'S YACHT ENDS LIFE

Washington, D. C., June 3 (AP).—The Navy department said today that Lieutenant Commander Walter Raymond Jones, assistant naval attaché in London and former White House aid, had committed suicide. A member of the embassy staff in London said death came yesterday in Londonderry, Northern Ireland.

No details of his death will be given out, the navy said, pending an investigation.

Commander Jones, 43 years old, was a native of Grand Ledge, Mich., and a 1921 graduate of the naval academy.

As aid to the White House he was in command of the U. S. S. Potomac, the Presidential yacht. He was relieved last November when he left for London.

DEATH TOLL IN BOMBER CRASH IS RAISED TO 5

San Diego, Cal., June 3 [Special].—The death toll caused by the unexplained crash of a $250,000 British Liberator bomber was raised to five today with the death of Lewis M. McCannon, 25 years old, of Woodstock, Ill., flight engineer aboard the plane.

Four other aviation experts died yesterday when the big camouflaged ship sideslipped into San Diego bay a few moments after taking off from Lindbergh field. They were Bruce Craig, 27, Chicago; Alan T. Austen, 28, Kansas City, Mo.; William Wheatley, 38, Chester, N. Y., and William H. Rieser, 23, Cambridge, Mass.

A spokesman for the Consolidated Aircraft company, which was about ready to turn the plane over to the British, said evidences of sabotage had been found in the crash, which apparently was caused by failure of controls. Federal and company agents are awaiting salvaging of additional pieces of wreckage for examination.

For Once, Bathing Suits Are No Press Agent Gag

Pomona, Cal., June 3 (AP).—Orange pickers donned bathing suits and rowed to the harvest in boats. For once the bathing suit angle was no gag in this land where publicity men are wont to lure a beach beauty into an orange grove for the sake of a picture. High waters impounded by Puddingstone dam, in the San Jose hills, backed up 6 to 9 feet deep yesterday. In shallow water pickers used ladders as usual to reach the fruit, but in many places they just rowed up to a tree, reached out, and picked the oranges.

200 ROUTED IN APARTMENT FIRE.

More than 200 Negroes were routed from a four story flat and store building at 734-44 East 44th street yesterday by fire which damaged a grocery and a furniture store.

Gardens Share Spotlight with British Relief

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE Casino was the scene of two luncheon parties yesterday, both of enough interest that some of the guests had luncheon at one party—that was given by the Lake Forest Garden club—and then went into the Fountain room where the larger party was, to hear Mrs. J. Borden Harriman tell of her experiences in Norway.

At the smaller luncheon Mrs. Clymer S. Bowen, president of the Lake Forest club; Mrs. Wesley Dixon, cochairman with Mrs. George F. McLaughlin of the committee in charge of the garden walk and horticultural exhibit to be held on June 28 and 29; Mrs. Thomas A. Connors, Mrs. Dexter Cummings, Mrs. Kirk Williams, Mrs. Thomas G. Cassady, and Mrs. Stephen Hord discussed plans for the walk and exhibit.

This year's Garden club show is going to be different from any the Lake Foresters ever have had before, and in many ways it probably will be of more interest to women than any previous one. Gardening for defense is the theme and one of the features will be a vegetable garden sufficient to supply a family of five and small enough to be cared for by a man who has only two hours a day to give to gardening.

The garden is planted and is growing splendidly in a field near the Lake Forest Day school gymnasium where the horticultural exhibit will be displayed. The North Shore Horticultural society planted this model garden and two lads—sons of professional gardeners—are watering and weeding it.

Canning Demonstration in a Modern Kitchen.

On the stage of the gym there will be a model kitchen where an expert will lecture and demonstrate the proper methods of canning vegetables. Mrs. Roy Sturtevant is in charge of this portion of the show. All around the gym will be booths—red, white, and blue, for the color scheme is patriotic—where there will be flower arrangements, six luncheon tables, a hat shop and an herb shop.

Mrs. Albert Day Farwell, as usual, will be in charge of the last named. The hats on display will not be for sale; they will be trimmed with fresh flowers, vegetables, or fruits, and will be the entries in a class called Fantasia.

Mrs. Connors will be in charge of a flower market and in the courtyard the Trading Post will have a shop where garden furniture and accessories will be on sale. The Trading post is a shop in Lake Forest that is run for the benefit of the Alice Home hospital. Mrs. Williams will be in charge of a tearoom on the school terrace, where the Onwentsia club will serve light luncheons and teas. Mrs. Mahlon Bradley of Highland Park will demonstrate flower arrangements off and on during both days.

Seven Estates Open to Garden Pilgrims.

The seven estates that will be open on the garden walk are all on Green Bay road. Those who take the walk will start at the W. Roy Carneys' and from there will go to the John Colemans'. Then to Edward I. Cudahy's and to the Charles S. DeLongs', and from there to the J. Andrews Kings'.

These five places connect, but to reach the next two, the Laurence H. Armours' and Mrs. Edward L. Hasler's, one will have to go out onto the road. All of the places with the exception of the Armours', are smallish, places that can be cared for by one gardener each. The owners have done much of the planting themselves and the DeLongs have a greenhouse that they built themselves. Mr. Coleman planned and planted their garden, which is a choice one.

Tickets at $1 each [children 50 cents] include the horticultural exhibit and the garden walk. They may be obtained in advance from Mrs. Owen B. Jones, 10 West Deerpath, Lake Forest.

Raise $81,841.59 in Campaign Here.

The luncheon at which Mrs. Harriman, former United States minister to Norway, spoke was given by the executive committee of the women's division of the British War Relief campaign. Reports that they have raised $81,841.59 for the million dollar drive the British War Relief society is conducting were made by the women. Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence presided.

One of the guests at the speaker's table was Mrs. Walter Dillingham, who has been visiting the John Alden

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

"With what do you associate the words, 'blood' and 'sand'"?

"With Rudolph Valentino."

So, in any I. Q. test, would reply most of us older movie fans—quickly. We would probably add as an afterthought that Vicente Blasco Ibañez wrote a novel by that name.

The story of the poor and ignorant bullfighter, Juan Gallardo, who became the greatest matador in Spain, which so colorfully vehicled the glamorous Valentino back in 1922, forms thru benefit of technicolor an infinitely more effective setting for the exploits of Tyrone Power.

As a whole, this picture is lushly beautiful, many-mooded melodrama—too long, but maintaining suspense pretty evenly. . . . Its pull on nerves and emotion, however, is NOT due to the performance of the star, but to craftsmanlike support and cunning direction. Tyrone Power is just NO bullfighter, and all efforts to make the young elegantė appear crude, hard-boiled, and floridly virile fall by the wayside in sad futility.

Tyrone remains Tyrone—a bit swollen and unnaturally flushed, mayhap—but still Tyrone. Impossible to believe for a minute that the beautiful creature can't read or write. Which he can't in the story.

[The man who meets the bull in the ring is Armillita, said by press agents to be the world's foremost bullfighter and the highest priced entertainer in Latin America. He makes his debut in this movie, doubling for Mr. Power.]

The tale picks up Juan as a boy, possessed with the flaming determination to become as great a matador as was his dead father, and depicts interestingly grilling experiences that are his before he attains his goal. . . . Then comes his happy marriage to the gentle Carmen, exquisitely portrayed by Linda Darnell, and his disgraceful descent from fame down the toboggan slide of his unhappy passion for the ruthless Doña Sol [Rita Hayworth].

O, what that girl could learn about vamping from some of the older actresses—Barbara Stanwyck—yes—Nazimova!—who plays the hero's mother with such beautiful and appealing reticence. . . . Miss Hayworth simply hasn't got technique.

To me the picture's most thrilling sequences were not the actual arena episodes, but the behind scenes preparations of the matador and his men for the performances, any one of which can so easily be their last. And that moment when a gate is flung open and the waiting bull plunges from darkness into the hot glare of the great sandy space soon to be wet with his blood and that of his tormentors—crazed by the howls of the mobs who wait to see it spilled—the mobs who are "the real beast" . . . !! Whew!!

Finest performances are by Laird Cregar as an unctuous, sycophantic, viperish newspaper critic—with a sleek smile under baggy eyes; by John Carradine as Juan's aid and friend—whose likeness to familiar pictures of Christ on the cross I have often noticed and which is mentioned in this movie; by J. Carroll Naish as a once famous fighter fallen on evil days; by Nazimova as the mother, and by Anthony Quinn as he who steps forth to take Juan's place in the affections of a fickle mob and mistress.

QUINN, now—you can believe in him! THERE would have been a Juan Gallardo!

See you soon.

WEDDINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Peel of Chicago and Crystal Lake announce the marriage of their daughter, Harriette, to Edgar H. Stokes of Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Stokes are spending their honeymoon at Virginia Beach. After the middle of July they will be at home at Leonard Manor, Crystal Lake. In the autumn they will come to Chicago to live.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Victor Sheagren of South Shore drive announce the marriage yesterday of their daughter, June, to Wilfred James South.

Plans Drafted for '41 Season at Algonquin

Maintaining the health front at home is just as important this year as it was last year—even tho many Americans are deeply concerned over the suffering of civilians in war scarred countries abroad, Joel D. Hunter, superintendent of United Charities, said yesterday.

He was discussing plans for the 32d season of Camp Algonquin, which on June 24 will open its 43 acres of grass and trees along the Fox river northwest of Chicago.

Algonquin is for families on United Charities rolls. It helps maintain the home health front for 1,600 Chicago mothers and children. "We usually have 300 to 400 mothers and their children," Hunter said. "And, besides, we have a special group of 80 children without their mothers. They are sent to camp because they are undernourished. We must remember we have a feeding problem in Chicago as well as abroad."

This year's first Algonquin train will carry mothers and preschool children for the opening period. Three trained nurses will be on the camp staff and one of these will be in charge of a nursery. The mothers will have a complete rest.

The former superintendent, Mrs. Astrid Save, will be back at camp this year. Last year she visited her son, in school in Sweden. Because of the war she was unable to return when she planned.

Last year's season at Algonquin cost $17,877.89. This represents 3,233 outing weeks at $5.53 each.

"Prices are rising now," Hunter said, "so we may have added difficulty in maintaining our health front. We've stocked many of our staples and we have gardens at the camp, but there will be meat bills and other expenses to add to our problems."

The Algonquin program is linked to United Charities' year round work in the city, Hunter explained.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

Rich Actress.

Helen Hayes, who left Chicago Monday morning, after her Sunday night radio performance, is shortly to rehearse a new play of Maxwell Anderson's, the setting of which is France just before the recent débacle. Miss Hayes is to play the rôle of a rich American actress.

"And I'll never be able to look like a rich actress," worried Miss Hayes, distinguished actress, whose stage and radio salaries make her one of the great money earners of America. "I might wear sables," she added thoughtfully. "But, no, it's June in the play."

Mild Admonition.

Cornelia Otis Skinner was in Chicago for a day during the Twelfth Night run, and during a discussion of Katherine Dunham's dancing in Cabin in the Sky some one mentioned that Georges Balanchine had rather limited her in his direction.

"If direction is the word to use," the commenter added.

"I use choreography in a sentence whenever I can," said Miss Skinner. "It's a beautiful word, but I've never been sure exactly what it means."

"It is a beautiful word," agreed Miss Hayes. "But of course it is better if you can use it in a conversation about dancing."

Garblings.

Miss Hayes' remark mightily tickled Ernest Byfield, and reminded him of a conversation with the late Percy Hammond and Actress Regina Connelli.

"I can't join in the acclaim over Augustus Thomas' play, 'As a Man Thinketh,'" Byfield told the drama critic.

"You are making it unnecessarily hard for yourself, Ernest," responded Hammond. "The name of the play is As a Man Thinks."

Reading Matter.

A patient who entered Passavant hospital was unpacking her suitcase. Her little daughter had asked if she might pack it for her, she explained to a member of the hospital staff who was in the room. She took out toilet articles and nightgowns and bedjackets, and at the bottom she found two books.

"My little girl asked if I didn't want to take something to read," she added, removing the books. The titles were The Little Colonel's House Party and The Bobbsy Twins Take a Trip.

Adler Supreme, Sidney Capable in Selwyn Play

"ACCENT ON YOUTH."

Comedy in three acts and four scenes by Samson Raphaelson. Staged by Mr. Raphaelson. Presented by Harold J. Kennedy in the Selwyn theater, Tuesday evening, June 3, 1941:

THE CAST.

Linda Brown	Sylvia Sidney
Steven Gaye	Luther Adler
Frank Galloway	Clyde M. Waddell
Miss Darling	Valerie Valaire
Dickie Reynolds	Kevin McCarthy
Flogdell	Oscar Stirling
Genevieve Lang	Dorothy Libaire
Chuck	Philip Arthur
Butch	John Triggs

BY CECIL SMITH.

Samson Raphaelson's "Accent on Youth" is not technically a novelty upon the professional stage of Chicago. Luther Adler and Sylvia Sidney—who are man and wife offstage even if Mr. Raphaelson's triangular and quadrilateral plot never permits them to attain that relationship on the stage—make something new and fresh of it, however, and help obliterate from memory that Civic theater production in 1939, which blurred and dulled a bright and intelligently constructed comedy.

It is a far cry from "Golden Boy," Clifford Odets, and the theater of social significance to the rôle of Steven Gaye, the playwright who loses his head and nearly loses the woman he loves, merely because he is confused and unstrung by the realization that he is 53 years old.

But Mr. Adler, one of the truly stellar craftsmen among American actors, makes the jump neatly and securely. Apparently the much advertised Stanislavsky method of the Group theater's acting is not so heavy or burdensome that it cannot be applied to light comedy with equal success.

Despite the charm, and, after things get going in the second act, the warmth of Miss Sidney, it is Mr. Adler who keeps the whole performance in focus. Even a supporting cast which is obviously acting most of the time cannot go far astray, for Mr. Adler has a commanding way of speaking in the simplest but most commanding terms, and the whole tone is set by him.

The climactic second act scene, in which Mr. Adler provides Kevin McCarthy, a young exponent of the body beautiful, with a text with which to woo Miss Sidney away from under Mr. Adler's very nose, is tremendously effective and theatrical. Here, as elsewhere, Mr. Adler knows how to carry a situation forward with increasing intensity, and then how to drop it to the level of comedy at the most adroit moment.

If these remarks have developed into a monograph upon the superior merits of Mr. Adler's skill of projection, no slight is intended toward Miss Sidney. The fact is simply that her part is less challenging and less intrinsically interesting. It is her duty, with time duly allotted to a couple of prima donna emotional rampages, to be a young woman who must be reacted upon before she can react.

She must discover, thru three acts, the axiomatic fact that shallow young love may prove to be less satisfying than experienced older love. This she does with winsomeness, and occasionally with a suggestion of an inner fire that seldom reaches the surface.

It would be stretching the truth to attribute real distinction to any of the subsidiary acting. Oscar Stirling makes a good comic butler of the conventional variety, and Clyde M. Waddell is stiffly likeable as an aging actor. The rest of the people are all right as long as Mr. Adler and Miss Sidney are there too.

Bows and Colors for Contrast

Distinctive colored print sandal for summer contrast and color accent duty is made with a kerchief tie bow on the instep, slender high heels and narrow straps in yellow, red, green, white, and blue.

BY REA SEEGER.

Summer shoes are 50-50 play models and definitely urban affairs with graceful outlines and high heels. And white is again the top of the list favorite. There are abundant collections of plaster white sandals, street pumps, and spectator sports models.

The summer dancing sandals in white allow for tinting some particular shade to match a gown or serve as cool white foot notes for high colored or all white party, evening, and dance dresses.

Perforated summer thin suedes make the largest assortments of street footgear. In them your feet are supercomfortable, sleekly smart and cool—no matter how the temperature zooms. White linen and mesh textured materials, cottons and combinations of two materials make other extremely smart finds for the summer wardrobe.

The classics of white combined with brown, black, or navy still are the choice of exacting women as the best foot notes for the many smart spectator sports outfits, such as cool white dresses with gay colored wool jackets, pleated silk dresses, linens, cottons, and the many colored cotton suits. The heels are moderately high, tips and side trim matching the heels.

Plenty of good looking bags of white to match the footgear provide the right duet for smart costumes.

Next to the white finds come the linen color fabric shoes. These are made of a semicoarse material, and usually boast copper colored leather trim, laces, bows, and so on.

Two Families Send Pleas for Wheel Chairs

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Perhaps some reader who has a discarded wheel chair would like to pass it on for the use of the invalid described in the following letter:

"Dear Miss Brown: A case worker suggested that perhaps you could help me locate a wheel chair for my wife, who has been afflicted with heart trouble for many years. A year ago she suffered a serious fall, and has been very ill since that time. After six months of hospitalization, she is now at home.

"Her injured limb and her heart condition prevent her from doing any walking, and she is confined to the house. An opportunity to be outdoors in the fresh air and sunshine would mean a very great deal to her, and would help both her spirits and her health. W. K."

A similar request comes from Mrs. S., who is anxious to obtain a wheel chair for her brother. He is crippled and gradually becoming paralyzed. Because she is working to support the family she is forced to leave him alone during the day and a wheel chair would be of great assistance to him in caring for himself. Transportation can be arranged in both cases.

Styles Beloved of Children

CHILDREN'S SUMMER FROCKS.

Two styles beloved of children are offered in the patterns today. One is a practical jumper model with square neckline, so that the jumper part may be worn individually as a sun dress. The other is the broomstick frock, the skirt wrinkled by being wrapped, while still wet, around a broomstick and tied, thus left to dry and never pressed. In prints or plain colors these frocks will meet with the approval of fashion conscious juveniles.

Style No. 2840 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

After having watched a so-called expert pair in a recent tournament, I was filled with doubt as to the merit of that term "expert." The declarer in the hand presented below has quite a reputation, I would not dare mention his name, and I didn't say a word as I watched him mangle a contract that would be brought home, I feel sure, by the average player.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding was nothing if not aggressive but, as a matter of fact, the final contract was not too bad.

West opened the six of diamonds. Apparently with the notion that he always would be able to make dummy's queen if the king were in West's hand, declarer played low from dummy and, when the ten went up from East, ducked in his own hand, to preserve the diamond ace for later entry. Unfortunately for him, the subsequent play did not work out that way. East returned his remaining diamond, declarer ducked, the king won, and a third round then took out dummy's last diamond. The ace still was intact, all right, but as a communication card it was worthless. Now, when the nine of clubs was led, both defenders ducked. East had to win the club continuation, but the club suit was still one precious round from establishment, for declarer had left only one possible entry, the spade king. East exited with a spade, and from that point declarer was "stuck." There was no sense in continuing the clubs, since he could never regain the lead; hence, he cashed the diamond ace and tried the heart finesse. The queen lost to East's king. The defenders could not avoid leading into dummy's spade or heart tenace, but this did not give declarer his nine tricks!

Declarer's first play had been his undoing. It was vital to conserve his diamond ace for eventual entry to the club suit. The diamond six lead obviously was the fourth best. Therefore, by the Rule of Eleven, East had only one higher diamond. It might be the king, but surely this was unlikely, since then West would have started with J 10 9 6 and would have led the jack.

Had declarer boldly put up the diamond queen on the opening lead, he could have established and cashed four club tricks which, obviously, would have made the contract a laydown.

The Esquire "RAGE IN HEAVEN" Robert Montgomery has fashioned a superb characterization of an unbalanced personality in this tensely exciting film. The story is always believable, and increases in tension until it reaches its climax, which finds the sympathetic characters in an almost unsolvable dilemma. George Sanders and Ingrid Bergman help to make this brilliant adult entertainment. And THE ESQUIRE HOUR Feature at 2:34, 4:31, 6:28, 8:28, 10:28

Rhubarb, crisp, long, rosy stalks of it; biscuit, feathery, brown-crusted and tender, these two make rhubarb cobbler. Some cooks put strawberries with the rhubarb to make a strawberry and rhubarb cobbler. Either way, there's a delicious dessert, one to be served warm with cream.

Rhubarb Cobbler

[Serves four]
1 cup sifted flour
1⅓ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
2⅓ tablespoons butter
1 egg
¼ cup milk
2½ cups diced rhubarb
⅔ cup sugar
3 tablespoons butter

Put mixed rhubarb, sugar and butter [last three ingredients] into a buttered casserole. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and the tablespoon of sugar. Cut in butter. Beat egg and add to milk. Stir into dry mixture. Stir vigorously for 30 seconds, then pat out on a floured board and shape to fit casserole. Cover rhubarb mixture with dough and bake in a 400 degree oven until crust is light and golden brown on top. Serve, while hot, with cream.

There are several ways to prepare a sweet potato and pork sausage casserole. Canned sweet potatoes may be used if fresh ones aren't available or convenient. The cooked potatoes may be sliced or mashed and seasoned and placed in a greased casserole. Then the sausage cakes or links, whichever you choose, are placed on top. It's best partly to cook the sausages first so that some of the excess fat will have been removed and so that they will finish cooking in the time needed to heat the potatoes thruout. A moderate oven, 350 degrees, is required for the baking.

Hollandaise sauce is slightly tricky, but it is so delicious on asparagus and some other green vegetables that it's worth learning to make well. If these directions are carefully followed results should be gratifying.

Hollandaise Sauce

½ cup butter
2 egg yolks
1 tablespoon lemon juice
⅛ teaspoon salt
Few grains cayenne pepper
½ cup boiling water

Cream the butter thoroly. Add egg yolks one at a time, beating well after each. Add lemon juice gradually and beat constantly. Add salt and pepper. About 5 minutes before serving add boiling water, a little at a time, stirring constantly. When all has been added, place mixture over hot water. Stir vigorously until the sauce thickens to a custardy consistency, when it is ready to use. If you cook it beyond this point it will curdle.

Fresh Raspberry Mousse

[Serves six or more]
1 pint whipping cream, whipped
1 cup raspberry pulp and juice
¾ cup confectioners' sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon gelatin

Put raspberries thru a sieve and measure a cup of pulp and juice. Mix with sugar, lemon juice and salt. Fold into whipped cream. Add gelatin, which has been softened in one tablespoon cold water, and dissolved over hot water. Freeze in refrigerator tray without stirring.

Tierneys Are Agreed on Gene's Count—They Don't Like Him

Hollywood, June 3 (AP).—The parents of Screen Actress Gene Tierney are in full accord on her choice of a husband, Count Oleg Cassini. They don't like him.

Mrs. Belle Tierney, wife of Howard S. Tierney, New York insurance broker, puts it this way: "Gene is just a misguided child [20 years old]. She has been carried away by this . . . this man of the world." [He was Merry Fahrney's third husband.]

In New York, Papa Tierney said: "Gene has gone Hollywood, I'm afraid." The countess, who was on a movie set today, portraying "Belle Starr," a woman of the old west, said she is going to remain a countess.

June 4, 1941.

Universal day—A quiet, at-home day, or to be spent at the library or in the country.

Flowers—Since when you are in a three year you are in the mood for expressing yourself joyously, the flowers you should plant in your garden can be of every color, size and shape. The idea is one of cheerfulness, so the gay colors will be best. The yellows of sunlight, and the good looking flowers, such as the rose and orchid, can be worn with good effect. Then for the garden you can plant the gregarious flowers such as the nasturtium and honeysuckle. The three's like to congregate and mingle with people, and how they like to talk, so don't forget the pretty-faced pansies which not only fulfill the requirements of an attractive personality but carry with them the suggestion of thoughts and ideas. The names of these flowers work out in numbers to a three.

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., June 3.—When Samuel Goldwyn was preparing Gary Cooper's "The Westerner" he fussed around a lot about the costumes. When Walter Brennan showed up in some old clothes for the character of Judge Roy Bean, Goldwyn was dubious. For one thing, Brennan didn't have scraggly whiskers. Goldwyn worried. Brennan, a master of makeup, reassured him. When shooting time came he'd have on the right outfit and a ragged beard. "All right," Sam agreed. "I'll leave the costume up to you—but I gotta see it!"

Another time talk got around to the hundreds of lovely young things in Hollywood, and how, despite the greatest concentration of beauty this side of the New York musical comedy stage [which for my dough knocks the spots off the movies]—and how there are so few girls of real star caliber among them. And one veteran who has had a hand in building dozens of babes into national prominence observed:

"They're buying the wrong thing now. They're buying ordinary beauty. They're buying ankles and bosoms mostly, and sometimes pretty faces. Did you ever notice how hard it is to remember a pretty face? You see one of them on the screen and it is all right, but you're damned if you can place it the next time you see it.

"Lots of gals who are getting star billing right now are like that. People can't remember 'em. Look at Lana Turner. She was so pretty she nearly lost her chance. Metro worked on her face for months, trying to make it look distinctive. They managed it, too, and Lana's all right."

At Catalina, where Frank Lloyd has been making "I, James Lewis," there's a harbor master with a sense of humor. He's in charge of traffic around Avalon, the tourist place where they have glass bottomed boats. He was telling Carol Bruce and John Carroll the other night about the time he decided to give the tourists something remarkable to look at.

He got himself a diving helmet, some lead shoes and a wheelbarrow full of lead and went below. He reported that when a boatload of tourists saw a guy pushing a wheelbarrow on the ocean floor three women fainted.

There's a still fotog at Columbia nicknamed Lippy and he's a good man because, like a first rate newspaper cameraman, he's always in there trying for more shots with that "just one more" line. He's assigned to "Our Wife" now and he is driving Director John Stahl nuts because Stahl doesn't like still men anyway.

Nothing personal about it, but they hold up work. The other day in complete exasperation he told Lippy to hurry up and get the hell out. Lippy pulled his head from under his focusing cloth and said, mildly, "Mr. Stahl, when you're working I never hurry you."

Which recalls the yarn about Bert Lynch, Metro still man, who once had the same sort of difficulty with the late Richard Boleslavsky. Bert's historic remark to the great Boleslavsky was "I'll see that you are never assigned to another of my pictures."

Cercle Francais Luncheon.

Miss Mary West is entertaining board member of the Cercle Francais at luncheon at 12:30 o'clock today at her home in East Division street. The luncheon will follow the final board meeting of the season.

Two Proteges Thrill Music Club Hundreds

BY BETTY BROWNING.

A long legged 15 year old, wearing socks and a blue hair ribbon, provided moments of delight and self-congratulation for the hundreds who attended the Illinois Federation of Music clubs' silver anniversary white breakfast yesterday at the Woman's Athletic club.

She is Jean Graham, winner of the 1941 state and district scholarship contest sponsored by the federated music clubs to encourage student musicians. The young Chicago pianist included in her varied and difficult program a work of her own, composed when she was 12.

"Turn to art, and remain faithful to art. Art is the only way out when spirits are downhearted."

Edward L. Ryerson Jr., president of the Chicago Symphony Orchestral association, thanked the federation for its interest and support.

Mrs. Royden J. Keith, federation president, handsome in white, thanked the Elgin district for the first contribution to the fund which the federation is raising for the symphony. She was applauded when she asked the federation members to write to Mayor Kelly urging the Auditorium theater be saved from demolition.

The white and silver motif of the breakfast was carried out in the table decorations. Mrs. Frank G. Logan awarded a special prize to the speakers' table, which was graced by a white glass harp and half a dozen silver water coolers filled with calla lilies and white leaves.

A table setting contest for the clubs attending the affair was won by the Lake View Musical Society and the Lake View Choral society with a lyre of white carnations flanked by silver candelabra. The Arché club, the Columbia Damen club, and the Organized Women Musicians were next in order.

Mrs. James Allen Young, new Chicago district chairman of the federation, presented a silver coffee and tea set and tray to Mrs. Frank P. Whitmore, retiring chairman, in token of the federation's gratitude for her years of service.

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

Just in time for the school parties, at which all the young girls look so charming in their summer evening frocks, are some new and lovely hair ornaments. Simple things, these are, exactly right with the cotton evening dresses that are such royal raiment on the young and slim.

All these things are attached to barrettes, so they won't wobble, and they serve the double purpose of keeping hair in place and adding glamor, too. To wear in the back of the hair there are curved bands of violets, or of white daisies or little yellow flowers. The flowers are all small and beautifully made—and they're something to see set against shiny hair.

Then there are single flowers. You tuck in one or wear two, one at either side. Our favorites are small, delicately pink carnations that are the "youngest" hair ornaments we've ever seen. Running these a close second in our affections are pink tipped roses.

For the very blonde there is a black felt hairbow, the blackest black imaginable, that looks lovely in golden hair. It also comes in a breath-taking cyclamen shade. These are anchored firmly on the useful barrette.

Some of our greatest pets among the hair bows are those of white pique, crisp and dead white. There are others in silk, in every color imaginable. The pastels are particularly lovely.

These aren't expensive, but they're most effective additions to girlish glamor.

Carpenters. Mrs. Dillingham's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Lowell Dillingham, is in St. Luke's hospital. Her mother, Mrs. John E. Barbour of Paterson, N. J., is at the Blackstone hotel to be near her daughter, who has been quite ill but who is better now.

The Chicago Woman's exchange, which gives employment to self-supporting women who must work at home, will hold its annual summer sale in Lake Forest on Thursday, June 12, in Mrs. Peter Moon's house at 111 Ridge lane. The house is one of the most interesting on the north shore. It was built by the junior William E. Clows and bought a year or two ago by the former Martha Carr and her husband.

Assisting Mrs. Moon in selling that day will be Mrs. William M. Spencer, president of the exchange, and many of the directors. Among the lovely things that will be on sale are matching monogrammed boudoir sets, consisting of bed sheets, blanket covers, and bed jackets, knitting bags, new and novel table decorations, linens, lamps and shades, and various other accessories for town and country houses.

The Gustavus F. Swifts became grandparents again on May 27 when a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Swift Jr. in Cincinnati. The baby is the first child of the former Eleanor Ransom of Denver and Mr. Swift, and has been named Alice. Mr. Swift Jr. is taking a postgraduate course in archaeology in Cincinnati. His parents and the other members of the family have moved from town to their summer home on the grounds of the Shoreacres club.

Swedish Minister Coming to Milles Tea.

The Swedish minister, Wollmar F. Bostrom, is coming from Washington to attend the tea that is being given today by the Society for Contemporary American Art of the Art institute in McKinlock court of the institute for Carl Milles. The party will serve as a preview of an exhibition of the work of Mr. Milles, who is one of the most important sculptors living in this hemisphere.

Mr. Milles, who was born in Sweden, has been living in Cranbrook, Mich., for the last 9 or 10 years. The exhibit, the largest one of his ever assembled in Chicago, will continue thru Sept. 28 in McKinlock court and Blackstone hall.

Today and tomorrow in Blackstone hall from 4 to 5 o'clock there will be free spring concerts by the Glee club of the institute. The public is cordially invited.

SURVEY ORDERED ON 1 WAY ROUTES FOR WEST SIDERS

Traffic Engineer Asked to Report to Council.

BY HAL FOUST.

Ald. George D. Kells [28th], chairman of the city council traffic committee, yesterday directed Leslie Sorenson ,city traffic engineer, to make a survey and report on the feasibility of one or two one-way traffic systems between the central business district and the western city limits.

"The council would have to approve of such a traffic control system," said Kells, "before the city, county, or state gasoline tax money could be spent to inaugurate the improvement. In the past, aldermen in the wards to be traversed have received vigorous protests from owners of real estate abutting the project.

Public Sold on Superhighways.

"I am not sure that these objections can be removed. The public, in the last few years, has been thoroly educated to the advantages of superhighways. It has been so thoroly sold on them that it objects to any plan for grade level arterials.

"Under the best policing and the best control, large volumes of traffic are a nuisance and a hazard to adjacent real estate, either business or residential. A superhighway, isolating the thru traffic from abutting realty as well as from cross traffic and pedestrians, is the only satisfactory method of handling motor travel.

"There is no doubt that the one-way streets are more desirable to motorists than two-way streets. West siders are familiar with the operation of the Warren and Washington boulevards one-way system between Garfield and Union parks. But can you find any residential or business street where the property owners would like to introduce large volumes of thru traffic?"

Trade Effects to Be Studied.

Included in Sorenson's study will be an inquiry into objections by the Chicago Association of Commerce that one-way traffic is detrimental to retail business on the streets traversed. He is asking other cities for reports on before and after effects of one-way traffic on merchandising.

In the meantime, west side and west suburban motorists were jammed in Washington and Jackson boulevards in yesterday's rush hours even more than usual. The all day drizzle slowed the jogging between stoplights and between stops for cross traffic or turning movements.

A few motorists, an observation tour disclosed, are dodging the blockades on these two main west side boulevards by using Augusta boulevard [1000 north]. It reaches a dead end in the congestion of Elston and Milwaukee avenues, but there is new pavement starting there for a fairly serviceable route to the loop.

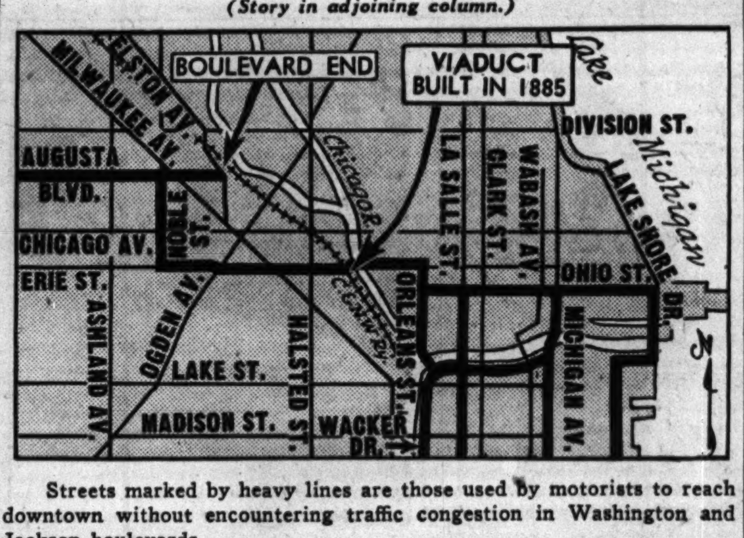
Jogging Route Described.

Drivers familiar with local geography turn south from Augusta at Noble street, traveling smooth concrete laid by the county a couple of years ago in Noble street to Erie street and in Erie street east to a viaduct and bridge over the North Western railroad tracks. East of the river there is new city pavement in Erie to Orleans street and good going south in Orleans to Wacker drive or to Ohio street, which can be used eastbound to La Salle street, Michigan avenue, or the outer drive.

This jogging route is protected by stop signs and by stop and go signals, but there are no signs to mark the route for motorists unfamiliar with the neighborhood. The other weakness in the route is the narrow viaduct over the railroad tracks.

West Siders Find New Route to Loop

(Story in adjoining column.)



Streets marked by heavy lines are those used by motorists to reach downtown without encountering traffic congestion in Washington and Jackson boulevards.

POLICEMAN HURT BY CAR WHILE GUIDING TRAFFIC

Traffic Policeman Bernard Marks, 45 years old, 7041 Jeffrey avenue, suffered a fractured left leg and left shoulder yesterday when struck by an automobile while directing traffic at La Salle street and Wacker drive. Miss Bernadine Walsh, 22, of 65 Maple street, the driver, said she had stopped and that a truck struck her car from behind and pushed it forward. She was charged with reckless driving and disregarding a traffic signal. James B. McCahey, superintendent of city schools, gave Marks first aid treatment.

Miss Gertrude Steinberg, 57, of 910 Lawrence avenue, a stenographer for the sanitary district, was killed when struck by one truck and run over by another as she left a street car at Western avenue and 32d street. Police said the first truck, driven by Martin Doyle, 2107 52d street, had stopped and was pushed forward by a truck driven by Moses Rassaull, colored, 3338 State street.

John M. Soltes, 55, of 2710 51st street, a tavern owner, was killed when his car skidded off route 31 at Glenn, Mich.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 382 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 281 were killed in Chicago, where 9,704 were injured in traffic in the same period.

Seventeen persons aboard a huge Douglas air liner of the Chicago & Southern airlines were shaken yesterday when the ship crashed thru a steel fence and ran into a barn after landing at the airport in Joliet.

The plane was on its way to Chicago from St. Louis with 14 passengers and a crew of 3, but because of smoke, fog and rain over the municipal airport, it was rerouted to the alternate field in Joliet which is used in emergencies. The ship made a normal landing, but it skidded 200 yards on the wet runway, crashed thru the fence and ended up against the barn. The plane's nose was smashed in.

Capt. Ralph Eames of Boston, Mass., the pilot, and J. C. Kelly, the copilot, suffered hand and leg cuts when the instrument board was pressed against them.

Study Proposal to Limit Right Turns Downtown

A council subcommittee headed by Ald. Joseph S. Gillespie [29th], will meet this morning to consider a proposal to limit right hand turns by motorists in the downtown district.

488 PROSECUTED FOR FRAUDS IN JOB INSURANCE

More than 2,700 investigations of persons suspected of using fraud in efforts to collect job insurance have been made since January, 1940, by the state division of placement and unemployment compensation. Commissioner Peter T. Swanish said yesterday that in 488 of these cases facts had been found to justify prosecution by the attorney general's office and that in nearly all such cases prosecution is equivalent to conviction.

Restitution of $7,889 has been compelled in 17 months, Swanish said, and claims for $7,188 are still in process of collection. The law requires that insurance payments obtained by fraud must be returned. Persons making false claims may be sent to jail for as much as 90 days and fined up to $500.

DIES OF INJURIES FROM FALL.

Frank Wasko, 57 years old, 5251 Belle Plaine avenue, died yesterday in St. Mary's hospital of injuries he suffered when he fell in his home May 27.

MINISTER-EDITOR OPENS CRIMINAL LIBEL DEFENSE

Judge Walter J. La Buy in the Criminal court ruled yesterday the state's attorney's office had produced evidence sufficient to support an indictment of criminal libel against the Rev. Elmer Williams, publisher of a magazine called Lightnin'. Judge La Buy refused a motion by Defense Attorney Lloyd Heth for a directed verdict of not guilty after the state concluded its evidence.

As a result of the ruling the Rev. Mr. Williams now must produce evidence before the jury of four men and eight women to substantiate his plea that the article, published in the October, 1940, issue of the magazine, is true and therefore not libelous.

The indictment accuses the minister of libeling Capt. Daniel A. Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney's office, and two furriers, M. L. Zuckerman and Barney Novak, 17 North State street, in an article accusing the three of being in league in a stolen fur racket.

Cross-Examined Two Hours.

Capt. Gilbert was cross-examined several hours yesterday. He denied his police had taken property from Theodore Dalpe, a furrier, in 1938, which did not come within regular police routine.

Dalpe was charged with being the receiver of furs taken in a Champaign, Ill., robbery and was convicted, but the Supreme court reversed the conviction on the ground that the raid was illegal because police did not have a search warrant.

Capt. Gilbert said the furs were moved from Dalpe's store, taken to the state's attorney's office, and turned over to Andrew Cafferata, an adjuster for the Insurance Company of North America, which had insured the furs. Cafferata testified he stored the furs in Novak and Zuckerman's place pending identification and court disposition of them.

Deny Dealings with Gilbert.

Zuckerman and Novak testified as state witnesses that they had no dealings with Capt. Gilbert and had not known him until after the minister published the article.

Dalpe, the first witness for the defense, described the raid on his store by Lieut. Thomas Kelly and Policemen Nicholas Disteldorf and Raymond Burton. He testified that numerous furs and other articles had been seized by the police and said the state's attorney's police never returned a dozen fur coats and scarfs, two diamond rings, a rubber mattress, fishing tackle, a hunting knife, $16 in cash, and some stamps. He also charged that Capt. Gilbert and his police beat and kicked him in Gilbert's office.

Burzner died a "bachelor"... but a wife in the old country claimed his property . . . and won!

The man who bought Burzner's property would have faced serious loss —except for the fact that he had a Title Guarantee Policy

When Burzner came to the United States, he broke all former ties and lived for thirty years, until his death, as a bachelor. His property was sold under the terms of his will—and it was not until several years later that a wife from his native land appeared and claimed her dower rights in the property.

It was clearly proved that she was Burzner's wife, although no one on this side of the water knew of her existence. And according to law, she became entitled to her dower interest.

Imagine the consternation of the new owner of the Burzner property! He was suddenly faced with lawsuits, and possible loss of title to the property which he had purchased in good faith, and even improved at considerable expense. Fortunately, he was protected by a Title Guarantee Policy. Under its terms, Chicago Title and Trust Company had guaranteed the title—even against such unforeseen contingencies as an unknown widow in a foreign country. The widow's claim was paid in full, without cost to the new owner.

shoulders all legal expense, and, in case of loss, promptly pays.

No other form of title protection gives you such complete security against loss : : : and worry.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., June 3.—Tom Hughes, 21 year right hander whom the Phillies obtained from Baltimore before breaking off relations with the Orioles last winter, today pitched eight perfect innings in a one hit, 7 to 0, victory over the Cubs.

The eighth inning was the only one in which the Cubs reached first base, and Augie Galan, who walked to start the inning after a 3 and 2 count to become the first Cub base runner, was victimized by that most embarrassing of drowse plays, the hidden ball trick. Clyde McCullough also walked in the eighth, but died on first.

Hughes, whom the Cubs had expected to see in most of their earlier six games with the Phils this season, showed up today amidst interested observers in the Cub ensemble.

Curiosity Becomes Chagrin.

It wasn't long until all the Cub curiosity about the kid from Ashley, Pa., in the anthracite belt had changed to chagrin.

The three up and three down routine which the Cubs suffered thru in the first seven innings was mostly Hughes' doings, tho he got spectacular support from Shortstop Bob Bragan on two occasions and an off-the-wall catch by Dan Litwhiler in another instance.

Galan, first up in the eighth, had a count of one ball and two strikes, but managed to foul off the good ones until he walked to break Hughes' perfection string. Then Lou Novikoff lined the ball to right. Second Baseman Harry Marnie leaped high in the air, but couldn't get up quite high enough. Galan had destroyed the bid for the first perfect game in 19 years [that one was by Charley Robertson of the White Sox in 1922 against Detroit] and Novikoff had wrecked the chances for the season's first no-hitter.

Perhaps They Hadn't Heard of It.

So there was Augie on second and Novikoff on first. Phil Cavarretta popped to Marnie who ran over to second and handed the ball to Bragan, who concealed the ball without being noticed by Galan, and Manager Jim Wilson coaching at third, Charley Grimm coaching first or any of the tired boys on the Cub bench. Hughes took his place near, but not on the pitching rubber, as the Cubs later screamed. When Galan took a lead off the bag, Bragan, of course, slapped the ball on him.

Players caught by this hoary device always howl murder, for it implies so many things of which big leaguers do not care to be accused. Galan and Wilson, now thoroly awake, set up an awful clamor but Umpire Tom Dunn, who knew where the ball was all the time, paid little heed to their cries of humiliation.

Scored as Double Play.

The play was scored as a double play with Marnie, who caught Cavarretta's fly, getting a put out and an assist for handing the ball to the sly Mr. Bragan.

Merrill May opened the attack on Pitcher Bill Lee with one down in the first inning when he singled. Emmett Mueller grounded out to Lou Stringer, but Nick Etten doubled, scoring May with the run which was enough to win the game. Dan Litwhiler singled, scoring Etten, and Bragan put Litwhiler on third with a single to center. Tom Livingston's strike out ended the first inning.

Marnie opened the second inning with a triple and after Hughes struck out, Marnie scored on Stan Benjamin's double. May singled to right, scoring Benjamin, and took second on Hank Leiber's throw in. At this juncture Vern Olsen replaced Lee and Galan replaced Hank Leiber. Mueller struck out, but Etten again singled, scoring May. Olsen threw out Litwhiler.

Olsen's three base throwing error led to a run which Hughes batted home with a single in the third. Hughes singled and later scored the game's final tally in the sixth.

WHITE SOX, A'S BATTLE UNDER LIGHT TONIGHT

Honor Connie Mack Before Game.

Turn 'Em On!

FOLLOWING is information on Chicago's first night baseball game of the season tonight, in which the White Sox will play the Philadelphia Athletics:

TIME—8:30 p. m., following Connie Mack Night ceremony, in honor of Athletics' 78 year old manager.

PLACE—Comiskey park, 35th street and Shields avenue.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox, who have had a taste of first place and hope to return there in the near future, will take over the night shift this evening for the first time in the current American league race.

Thornton Lee.

Assisting in the Comiskey park lighting up exercises will be Connie Mack's Athletics. They arrived yesterday in hopes of opening a three game series, but were repulsed by the weather man, which might have been better than the Sox could have accomplished. They haven't been kicking the A's around much this year. In fact, nobody has been using the Macks as a doormat for the last several weeks.

In addition to the ball game there will be brief pregame ceremonies in which the venerable Mack will be presented with a plaque and another gift reminding him of his long service. The presentation will take place at 8:30 p. m.

Lee Seeks Seventh Victory.

If yesterday's battle hadn't been erased by rain Thornton Lee would have pitched and Jack Hallett, the rookie giant, would have started this evening. Taking advantage of yesterday's pause, Manager James Dykes came forth with a revised order. Lee, who has six victories entered in his 1941 ledger, will try to grab No. 7 out of the electric lighted atmosphere tonight. Hallett probably will be given tomorrow's assignment in the final with the A's. The Philadelphia pitcher tonight will be Jack Knott or Bill Beckman.

There is an outside possibility that Bill Knickerbocker, who abandoned his second base chores a few days ago because of an ailing back, may be feeling well enough this evening to report for work. The pain in his back had subsided yesterday. It develops that the ache wasn't due to a touch of lumbago but resulted from being hit by a pitched ball some time ago.

Hard Days Are Ahead.

The Sox slowed down a bit during the last 10 days but the whole upper crust of the league did the same, so Dykes' Dudes lost nothing unless it was a chance to get better than a 24 hour grip on first place. They had one stretch of 9 victories against 3 defeats but have captured only 7 of their last 13 battles.

The next week is going to be about as strenuous a stretch as the Sox have encountered all year. After the Athletics clear out of here the Red Sox will charge in for four games, two next Sunday. Monday will be a day of rest, which will be welcomed by the pitching staff, and the next day the still powerful Yankees will check in for three games, the final being a night battle next Thursday. That will conclude the present home stay.

Mothers and Fathers!

President Roosevelt, on October 30, 1940, speaking to fathers and mothers on the selective service act.

"And while I am talking to you mothers and fathers I give you one more assurance.

"I have said this before, but I shall say it again and again. Your boys are not going to be sent into any foreign wars.

"They are going into training to form a force so strong, that by its very existence, it will keep the threat of war far away from our shores.

NATIONAL OPEN IS HOMECOMING FOR TEXAS PROS

And Lone Star Amateurs Are Threats, Too.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Worth, Tex., June 3.—This is homecoming week in Texas, homecoming for a new generation of Davy Crocketts, Sam Houstons, and Jim Bowies. They are the homebred lads who will carry Texas hopes in the 45th Open tournament of the United States Golf association, to be decided Thursday, Friday, and Saturday over the snug fairways of the Colonial club.

The Lone Star complexion of this first USGA event ever held in the southwest is such that a stranger would be led to call it the Texas Open rather than the National. Why, you don't have to go outside the city limits to find two of the top favorites to win the 72 hole fight come Saturday evening. They are John Byron Nelson and Benjamin Hogan, who used to caddy together at the Glen Garden club, five miles from Colonial.

And Demaret . . . and Guldahl.

Nelson comes home still bearing the National PGA title he won last summer and with his name on the Open championship trophy as the winner in 1939. Hogan's credentials include the Vardon trophy and the record of leading money winner in 1940, not to mention his supremacy in both departments this season.

But this Texas is a sizable portion of our country, and there are other towns aside from Fort Worth which have candidates in the big show. There's Houston, for instance, which has James Newton Demaret as its chief offering, even tho he now registers from Noroton, Conn. And Dallas comes up with the brothers Mangrum and a fellow named Ralph Guldahl, who, if you'll remember, won this main event of golf in 1937 and 1938.

Watch Those Texas Amateurs!

In one of the strongest amateur fields to come up to the Open in a decade, one that includes such vaunted parties as Johnny Goodman, last amateur player to win the Open [in 1933 at Chicago's North Shore club]; Willie Turnesa, Wilford Wehrle, and Marvin [Bud] Ward, Texas still refuses to be shut out. There are Jack Tinnin, who led all Texas qualifiers; David [Spec] Goldman, National runner-up in 1934; Billy Bob Coffey, state amateur champion the last two years; Jack Munger, 1933 semi-finalist; Harry Todd, former Western amateur champion, who won an Open a couple of years ago at Colonial with 285; Ed White, former American intercollegiate title holder, and 18 year old Jack Burke Jr.

Texas Can Claim Little, Too.

And while we are on the subject of Texas, the defending champion may be included. That would be Lawson Little Jr. of San Francisco, who got his first real playing start here when his army officer father was stationed at a number of Texas points. Little is wearing a bandage on his right wrist at the moment, result of a strain during the Masters in April, but there are no bandages on his intentions of winning this show again. If you recall, the husky Californian has made somewhat of a habit of repeating, or do you remember how he won the British and American amateurs in consecutive years back in 1934 and 1935?

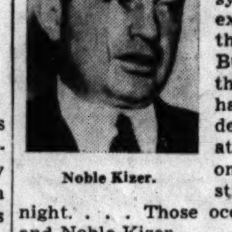
Heading Chicago's detail of 23 players, largest from any sector in the country, is Dick Metz of Oak Park, who got his first start in the game at Lufkin and San Angelo, both Texas towns. Metz was runner-up for the 1938 title.

Bud Ward dashed off the best of this morning's rounds, a neat 36—34—70, an even par effort that included one birdie, one bogey, and 16 pars. Later in the day Charley Penna of Medinah reported in with a 68. Jim Ferrier of Elmhurst posted a 72 and Sam Bernardi of Old Elm had a 74.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

MONDAY was a routine afternoon and evening in The Tribune sports department. . . . Chuck and Pat and the rest of the boys who think this is the year the White Sox will win the pennant were feeling pretty low because their favorites had been defeated by the Senators. . . . The Indians had regained first place. . . . Jimmy and Ed and Dave and some of the other copyreaders were wondering how a pitcher named Podgajny and the Phillies, of all teams, could whip their Cubs. . . . There was the usual run of questions on the telephone. . . . Then came the big news. . . . Lou Gehrig was dead! . . . Then surely there must be an end to everything, for was he not the very symbol of enduring strength? . . . Sure, we all knew expert diagnosticians had said many months ago that the Yankee slugger had only a year or two to live. . . . But diagnosticians sometimes have been wrong and this time there were 130,000,000 Americans hoping they had erred again. . . . We have been working in sports departments a long time and have seen scores of great athletes flash to the heights and just as suddenly pass on. . . . Only twice before have we seen a news flash stir as much sadness as that fateful message Monday night. . . . Those occasions brought word of the death of Knute Rockne and Noble Kizer. . . . Somehow the Yankees haven't seemed the same since Gehrig ended that record breaking string of consecutive games two years ago. . . . And sports won't seem the same now that he is dead. . . .



Noble Kizer.

L. T. Johnson, University of Illinois track coach, who has been named civilian director of physical education activities in the air corps technical training fields, was a broad jumper on the universities' track team in the interallied games in Paris in 1919. . . . The mother of Charlie O'Rourke, who sparked Boston college to an undefeated football season last fall, helped to defray her son's expenses in college by her earnings as a waitress. . . . After the Sugar bowl game in which O'Rourke's expert passing and running enabled his team to defeat Tennessee some home town friends presented him with a check for $1,000. . . . Instead of investing the money in a car or some other luxury, as many young men would have done, O'Rourke turned over the entire amount of the check to his mother to compensate her in part for the sacrifices she had made in helping him to gain a college education. . . . Manager Jim Wilson of the Cubs is in a highly receptive mood for a job as a National league coach in the All-Star game to be played in Detroit July 8. . . . The National league club will be managed by Bill McKechnie, for whom Jim was a coach in 1939 and last year. . . . McKechnie has the say as to who his assistants will be at the Detroit event. . . .

As chairman of California's horse racing commission, Jerry Geisler several days ago took up the battle for $5,000,000 which he claims Santa Anita owes the state in "breakage." . . . The next day as chairman of the state boxing commission Geisler upheld a gymnasium proprietor's claim of $8.20 against a trainer. . . . The Indiana-Nebraska football series, which started in 1936, is booked thru 1946. . . . Tom Walsh, national president of the PGA, is appealing to his women pupils at Westgate Valley Country club to trim long fingernails. . . . He claims if nails were held to moderate length it would improve the play of women golfers 20 per cent. . . . Long nails aren't pretty, anyway, Walsh says. . . . Orville Mathews, Oklahoma half back, was leading his heat in the 220 yard dash trials of the Big Six conference track meet. . . . He thought the 120 yard high hurdle post was the finish line and slowed up. . . . Three others sped past and Mathews, who won the 100 yard dash the next day, failed to qualify. . . . Red Dawson, Tulane football coach, says his squad for next fall is older than usual, which may have its drawback, because most of his players are eligible for the draft.

Shall I Compare Thee?

Shall I compare thee to a budding rose
About to blossom into lovely flower,
With all thy leaves and petals in repose
Freshened by evening mist and morning shower;
And shall I quaff thy fragrance as the bee
Drinks sweetness from the flower's chalice white
Until my soul shall know the ecstasy
Of utter joy, of infinite delight?

Ah, flowers fade and wither in a day,
And all their beauty and allure depart,
And autumn breezes carry them away
Leaving a lonesomeness within the heart;
But your undying loveliness will be
Aglow in heaven for all eternity.

NOTABLES GATHER FOR LOU GEHRIG FUNERAL TODAY

Athletic World Mourns Ex-Yankee.

New York, June 3 (AP).—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Lou Gehrig in the same semi-privacy in which the great first baseman of the New York Yankees battled an incurable disease for two years.

From all parts of the country messages of condolence today poured into Gehrig's home and the offices of the Yankees. Baseball notables arranged to be here for the last rites and fans who never had been closer to him than the bleachers of Yankee stadium filed past his bier for one final look at the unforgettable Iron Horse who played 2,130 consecutive games in 14 years.

A minute of silence in Gehrig's memory was observed at National league games in the Polo Grounds and in Ebbets field and flags on public buildings thruout the metropolis were lowered to half staff at the direction of Mayor F. H. La Guardia.

Crowds File By.

The Lou Gehrig plaque in the Nation Baseball museum and hall of fame at Cooperstown, N. Y., birthplace of the game, was draped in mourning for 30 days. The flag at the shrine will remain at half staff until June 15.

The mourning was so general that arrangements were made for the public to view the body this afternoon and night instead of limiting this privilege to intimate friends. During the hours the casket was open, first at the Church of the Divine Paternity in Upper Manhattan and later at Christ Episcopal church in the pretty Riverdale section of the Bronx, hundreds of persons passed by.

They included residents of the neighborhood—policemen, laborers, men and women from all walks of life, and nine boys fumbling baseball caps and gloves in awkward hands as they looked for the last time on an old hero. They were members of a class baseball team at the High School of Commerce, where Gehrig himself began his sports career.

But the funeral tomorrow in Christ church, a little chapel a block from Gehrig's home, is to be limited to the family and friends.

Dickey Keeps Promise.

Manager Joe McCarthy and Catcher Bill Dickey of the Yankees arranged to fly here from Detroit. Dickey, who was Gehrig's roommate in the ball club's travels for many years, some time ago "promised Lou to come" from wherever he might be in the event of death.

William Harridge, president of the American league, headed from Chicago in company with Leslie O'Conner, secretary to Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis.

Put Shaw's Spine in Cast; Saylor in Oxygen Tent

Indianapolis, Ind., June 3 [Special].—A plaster cast was applied today to the spine of Wilbur Shaw, who was injured in a crackup in the Indianapolis 500 mile race last Friday. The three time winner of the Indianapolis race suffered cracked ribs and a vertebra fracture. Shaw wisecracked as the cast was applied, and then asked doctors and nurses to autograph it. Shaw's home is in Akron, O.

Everett Saylor, 30 year old Dayton [O.], school teacher, today contracted pneumonia, adding complications to his injury in a crackup at the race. Saylor tonight was under an oxygen tent. He has a fractured skull.

FIGHTERS DRILL FOR 1ST OUTDOOR MARIGOLD SHOW

Aron to Battle Secreet Monday Night.

Five boxers who will appear in the first major show of the outdoor boxing season in Marigold Gardens June 16 have opened workouts in Trafton's gymnasium. They are Milt Aron, Chicago welterweight, and Billy Marquart, Winnipeg, Man.; Willie Joyce, Gary; Billy Seward, Ingomar, Mont., and Nick Castiglione, west side, all lightweights.

Aron is paired with Sammy Secreet, Pittsburgh; Marquart with Quentin [Babe] Breese, Milwaukee; Joyce with Castiglione, and Seward with Floyd Hagen, St. Paul. Johnny Colan, New York middleweight, will arrive Monday for his 10 round encounter on the card against Solly Stark of Minneapolis.

Karol Krauser and Charley [Gorilla] Grubmyer will meet in the windup match of a wrestling show tonight in Marigold arena, Broadway and Grace street. If the weather is favorable the card will be offered in the adjacent outdoor site. Preliminary events will bring together Joe Millich and Seelie Samara, Ed Virag and Ramola Gomez, Senor Ramos and Bill Brooks, and Kid Chapman and Ned Taylor.

2 Central Track Founders Will Play New Role

BY WILFRID SMITH.

When the Western conference ruled that only member universities would be permitted to compete in its annual track meet, it made possible the formation of the Central Collegiate conference and the games which will be held for the 16th consecutive time in the Marquette university stadium Friday night. The Central conference was founded by Marquette, Notre Dame, and Michigan State, the three largest universities in the midwest not included in the Western conference.

Since the death of Knute Rockne, director of athletics and football coach at Notre Dame, his memory has been honored by the presentation of the silver team trophy which this year will be defended by Marquette. Friday marks the first time since 1926 when the other founding fathers of the Central conference will not be actively engaged as coaches. Conrad M. Jennings of Marquette and Ralph Young of Michigan State continue as directors of athletics, but they have relinquished the positions of track coaches to Melvin Shimek and Karl A. Schlademan, respectively.

Members of Committee.

Jennings is chairman of the games committee and Young serves on this committee with J. Towner Smith, Western State Teachers college; Lloyd W. Olds, Michigan Normal college; William Mahoney, Notre Dame track coach, and Stanley Lowe, Marquette.

Coach Schlademan will enter a full team in Friday's meet. While Michigan State entertains no hope of a team championship, Capt. Walter Arrington is a certainty to win points in the high jump and broad jump. Ted Wonch should win a pole vault place and Bill Scott has been improving in the halfmile. Bruce Drynan, discus thrower, has been lost to the Spartan squad, however. He sustained an arm injury while pole vaulting in the Penn State meet recently.

Notre Dame, altho victor over Indiana university in the state meet last Saturday, can be considered on no better than even terms with the Hoosiers for the Central title. The Irish will lose points they scored for third and fourth places last week to the high caliber of the field of two score teams from 15 states. Indiana also may not have the good fortune to take six individual championships as it did in the state meet and in the Big Ten meet in Minneapolis.

Harris May Lose in Shotput.

Archie Harris, altho conceded the discus championship, probably will be beaten in the shotput. Campbell Kane should take both the mile and halfmile, and either Wayne Tolliver or Fred Wilt should be first in the two mile run. Roy Cochran, best all-around performer on the Hoosier squad, doesn't figure to win the 220 yard low hurdles and he may be beaten in the quartermile. Bill Dyda of Oklahoma, who defeated Gene Littler of Nebraska for the Big Six championship, has a mark of 47 6-10 seconds for the 440 yards. This surpassed Cochran's best mark this spring. Cochran won the Indiana state 440 yard title in 48 seconds.

Purdue's track team was unable to compete in the state meet because of semester examinations, but five of the Boilermakers are entered Friday. Purdue is one of five Big Ten universities in the games. The others are Indiana, Minnesota, Illinois, and Wisconsin.

Purdue's team will be headed by Capt. Ed Holderman, who figures in the battle for the mile championship; Paul Anthony, captain-elect of the Boilermakers, who was third in the Big Ten quarter mile; Willard Gaulke and William Bancker in the sprints, and Al Jenstch in the half mile. Purdue also has entered a team in the half mile relay.

Schurz Crew Has Idea Lane Is In for Fall

BY EDWARD PRELL.

The boys from Schurz High school are sure this is their year to break Lane's stranglehold on rowing supremacy. Their confidence has been built up not only by the power and skill they've been showing on the water, but by a sly psychology campaign of their coach, Ray Hudson.

Hudson, like the coaches of the schoolboy crews from Lane and Waller, is a veteran competitor of the Lincoln Park Boat club, which is earning dividends on a four year old campaign to interest youngsters in rowing. Almost every member of the boat club eight, which will represent the organization in numerous events this summer, is a product of schoolboy crews of other seasons.

Decide Title Sunday.

The Schurz crews, senior and junior, spent a lively afternoon on the Lincoln park lagoon yesterday, preparing for the struggle of their young lives Sunday when the city championship will be decided in competition with the Lane and Waller crews. For three years running, it has been all Lane. Lane scored double victories in the 1939 and 1940 Chicago Interscholastic regattas, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the recreation division of the Chicago Park district, and the boat club. Now the city title becomes even a greater prize, as the winning senior and junior boats will represent Chicago on the lagoon on June 15 in the first annual Central States Schoolboy Rowing association regatta. This event, a two and a half hour free show, also is sponsored by THE TRIBUNE and its two associates.

Carr Moves Up.

Jack Carr, who had been stroke of the junior eight, was promoted to No. 4 with the seniors. Others moved up are John Ohrn, bow; Norman Blankenship, No. 5, and Mike Dulko, No. 6. George Valko, No. 7 for the seniors, is an example of how quickly these Schurz boys have taken to the water sport. The Schurz rowing program was started only last year and George reported just two weeks before the Interscholastic regatta. Yet he showed such ability he won a place in the junior boat.

Hudson isn't worrying about the young fellow who will stroke the Schurz seniors. His name is Robert Johnson, a lanky 160 pound Swede, who recently was voted the most popular boy in his class at school. Johnson is a good swimmer, as are many of the other oarsmen. Other members of the senior crew are Eugene Ostromencki, No. 2, and Bill Webster, No. 3. The coxswain is Don Chrisler.

The progress of the Schurz juniors also has pleased their coach. The present lineup is: Dick Loechl, bow; Orville Powell, No. 2; Robert Thayer, No. 3; Ed Kudalis, No. 4; Robert Raabe, No. 5; Robert Nobis, No, 6; Joe Neri, No. 7, Heinz Messling, stroke, and Marvin Ohrn, coxswain.

Murdock Seeks Revenge.

Paul Murdock of Schurz, who was third in the national junior single sculls in Camden, N. J., Saturday, took a lot of bows around the boat house yesterday. Regatta officials are trying to bring John Ryan of Philadelphia, to Chicago for the Central States meet. Paul hopes they are successful. Ryan won the junior championship in the race in which the Chicagoan competed. Murdock believes the advantage in piloting his own boat and rowing in familiar water will return him victor over his eastern conqueror.

PASSEAU TO OPEN BROOKLYN SERIES FOR CUBS TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., June 3.—Claude Passeau tomorrow will make another try for his fourth victory of the year when the Cubs face the Dodgers in the opener of a two game series in Brooklyn. Claude's last victory was over the Dodgers in Chicago on May 19, a 14 to 1 spectacle that featured a nine run second inning in which Passeau knocked a homer with the bases loaded. Luke Hamlin is scheduled to pitch for Brooklyn.

Jake Mooty will pitch for the Cubs against the Dodgers in the night game in Brooklyn Thursday. Jake, despite a ninth inning loss in the Cubs' night game in St. Louis, has shown the best form of any of the Cub casters on the current road trip.

Bill Nicholson spent the pregame practice period dunking his sore heel in scalding hot water then ice cold and vice versa. He doesn't know whether he'll be able to perform in the Dodger series.

TIGERS TAKE GOOD LOOK AT YANKEES AND PITCHER PEEK

Score 4 Runs in 1st Inning to Win, 4 to 2.

Detroit, Mich., June 3 (AP).—The New York Yankees should have started today's game with the Tigers in the second inning, for the Tigers scored all their runs in the first for a 4 to 2 victory.

The Tigers scored after two were out. With Charley Gehringer and Rudy York on base thru walks, Bruce Campbell singled for one run, Pinky Higgins doubled for two more, and Birdie Tebbetts doubled for the final tally. Score:

NOTABLES GATHER FOR LOU GEHRIG FUNERAL TODAY

Sport World Mourns Death of Ex-Yankee Star.

Yankees, headed a group of Gehrig's close personal friends who were named as ushers. Following the services tomorrow, the body will be cremated in fulfillment of one of Gehrig's last requests.

Death Comes Peacefully.

The death of the 37 year old former star, who shared with his onetime teammate, Babe Ruth, most of the slugging records in baseball, came peacefully last night while his wife, the former Eleanor Grace Twitchell of Chicago, his parents, his mother-in-law, and his physician stood by.

He had dropped out of the Yankee lineup voluntarily May 2, 1939 after 14 years of never missing a game. The next month at Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minn., his disease was diagnosed as amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, a hardening of the spinal cord which causes the muscles to shrivel.

For months before his death Gehrig withstood a series of injections that would have "thrown a horse," Barrow disclosed today.

"He knew there was no known cure, but that couldn't stop him from fighting—not that boy," said Barrow with evident pride. "He insisted on taking this terribly strenuous treatment, despite his condition, and he stood up under it. He never admitted he was going to lose.

"When I left him the last time Friday night he was sitting up, looking out serenely across the Hudson. I kissed him on the head and as I walked out he said: 'I'll beat it, Boss. Keep those Yankees up.' It was the last thing he said to me."

Just Goes to Sleep.

Gehrig was wasted down to about 150 pounds, Barrow said, a loss of some 60 pounds from his playing weight.

"At least, his death was painless and peaceful," said Barrow. "He went to sleep about noon yesterday still thinking he would get well, and he just didn't wake up."

It is a strange coincidence, baseball men pointed out today, that it was on June 2, 1925, that Gehrig first entered the Yankee lineup as a regular. Sixteen years later to a day he died. In those 16 years he set 16 records, most of which will probably never be equaled. It was coincidental, too, that his old club, the Yankees, should be arriving in Detroit—the city where Lou voluntarily left their lineup for the good of the team on May 2, 1939—at almost the same moment he was passing away.

Giants Defeat Derringer and Cincinnati, 7-3

New York, June 3 (AP).—Bob Carpenter, rookie right hander from Knoxville, hurled his second straight five-hitter today to lead the Giants to a 7 to 3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

The Giants blasted Paul Derringer off the mound in two innings under a five-run barrage. After that, Carpenter just breezed in to his third victory without defeat.

Two singles and Babe Young's triple produced two Giant runs in the first inning. Three more came across in the second on Billy Jurges' home run following Burgess Whitehead's double and Johnny Rucker's triple. Jo-Jo Moore hit a home run in the seventh, and Jim Gleason and Ival Goodman hit for the circuit for the Reds. Score:

Baseball's Men in Blue

FURTHER proof that umpires are versatile fellows is furnished by William T. Grieve. . . . He had the pleasure of being a legislator in 1935. . . . Represented his district in Yonkers, N. Y., where he was born in 1900. . . . Got started toward a baseball umpiring job by his work as a prep and college basketball official in the east. . . . First umpire assignment found him in the Northwestern league in 1934. . . . Two seasons in the Eastern league followed. . . . Called 'em in the American association in 1937 and his work proved good enough to warrant a promotion to the American league for the 1938 season. . .. Considered a good man at spotting the difference between strikes and balls. . . . Has two sons he hopes will become ball players.

— and so have WHITE OWLS

A GIRL dressed in the style of 1929 would look pretty silly on the streets today—but fashions aren't the only things that have changed. There's been a lot of progress in the last ten years—and cigars are no exception.

Constant improvements in manufacturing methods have made it possible for White Owl to bring smokers a far better cigar today . . . and at lower cost.

Notice, too, that we don't claim White Owl is a "10¢ cigar for 5¢." True, it once cost more, but most important . . . today you can buy a Blended-with-Havana White Owl for only 5¢.

Don't be satisfied with a cigar that is the same as it was years ago . . . light up a White Owl and discover TODAY'S top smoking value.

SHOT PUT, LOCAL LAD WHO MADE GOOD, IS HOME

Ready for Work at Crete Where Success Started.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Shot Put came home yesterday to get ready for the La Salle and Lincoln handicaps, which will be run on the last two Saturdays of the Lincoln Fields meeting. About this time last year he was just one of the boys at the Crete track—and his victory in the Lincoln handicap of 1940 was one of his earliest accomplishments. Subsequently he became a national institution by going down to fashionable Belmont Park and running away with the $50,000 New York handicap at two miles and a quarter. Further successes followed.

But Shot Put still is just one of the boys. Lincoln Fields fans who catch the race train at the Englewood station pass by his picture every day in the window of the restaurant at 63d and Normal which is operated by his owner, Mrs. Marie Evans.

Chicago Well Represented.

With Mrs. Evans' Shot Put, Warren Wright's Whirlaway, and Al Sabath's Alsab, Chicago will have strong representation this year in the handicap, 3 year old and juvenile divisions, respectively. On Memorial day Shot Put ran third to Your Chance and Hash in the Suburban at Belmont, finishing ahead of Charles S. Howard's highly regarded Mioland. On Saturday, Whirlaway will undertake a further step in his campaign for supremacy among the 3 year olds by going after the Belmont stakes. He already has the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness to his credit—and if he adds the Belmont his next major objective will be the Arlington Classic. Alsab, which won the Joliet stakes at Lincoln Fields Saturday, has indicated he will be a factor in the race for the juvenile championship.

Shot Put began attracting attention by his finishing power in his earlier races at Lincoln Fields last season. In every stretch run, he was closing fast. In the Peabody Memorial at a mile and a sixteenth, he came charging from far back and caught all except Mucho Gusto before they went under the wire. In the La Salle at a mile and three-sixteenths, he duplicated that final rush but again just failed to get up—and again it was Mucho Gusto who beat him. Then in the Lincoln handicap at a mile and a quarter, he came on powerfully to master his opposition—and this time Mucho Gusto was third, with Yale O'Nine second.

Finds Races to His Liking.

In midsummer, Shot Put found some races just to his liking. He was the hero of the distance series at Washington Park, winning two of the events, including the one at two and a quarter miles. Trainer Dan MacEachern pointed him for the $50,000 event at Belmont and Shot Put won it handily. Shot Put stayed on in the east for two more stake victories last fall in the Exterminator handicap at Pimlico and the Bryan and O'Hara Memorial at Bowie.

Chicago race fans will watch Shot Put with particular interest. He's one of the local boys who made good.

Slow Traveling

Jockey Charley Van Den Berghe walks to scale room at Lincoln Fields yesterday after riding Doorbell in the sixth race, well covered with mud. It was hard, slow journey in which Doorbell finished seventh in field of nine.

POLICE OPEN TICKET SALE FOR BALL GAMES

Police reported yesterday that Chicagoans are coming to them for tickets. Not traffic tickets, the police explained, but tickets to the annual police games, to be held June 28 and 29 at Comiskey park and July 6 in Wrigley field.

The feature of the athletic program will be a championship baseball game between the police of the north side, led by Capt. Harry O'Connell, and the south side police, headed by Capt. Patrick J. Crotty. Proceeds go to the widows and orphans of policemen killed in line of duty.

Elson and His Retrievers Meet Sports Writers Sunday

Sales of arnica, alcohol, and other soothing balms are expected to zoom Sunday night. The Tribune sports department softball team, having recovered from the shock of being able to score only 19 runs in one game against Bob [Line Drive] Elson, will march onto the diamond again Sunday morning to oppose Elson and his W-G-N team in Weber park, Wellington and Ashland avenues. Elson and his teammates scored a lucky triumph in the first game, 20 to 19, two weeks ago. The rematch was arranged when Elson promised to furnish the ball again. W-G-N also is being urged to bring along a substitute pitcher.

Match Softball Team Engages Brills Tonight

The Match Corporation softball team will seek its 12th straight victory tonight, meeting Gilbert Tools in Parichy stadium in an Illinois state league game.

CONN OFFICIALLY GIVES UP TITLE; SIGNS FOR LOUIS

New York, June 3 (AP).—Billy Conn today officially became ex-light heavyweight champion, relinquishing his claim on that title as he and Joe Louis met before the New York state boxing commission to sign articles for their 15-round heavyweight championship bout in the Polo grounds June 18. Each posted a $5,000 forfeit.

Conn's pilot, Johnny Ray, said that inasmuch as Conn had won the light heavy crown in New York he felt it fitting that it be relinquished before the New York commission.

Veterans of 500 Mile Race to Compete at Riverview

Paul Russo of New York City, Harry MacQuinn of Indianapolis, and Tony Willman of Milwaukee, contestants in the recent 500 mile race, have asked for entry blanks for the midget auto races Sunday night at Riverview speedway, Addison street, near Western avenue. MacQuinn, former western indoor midget champion, and Russo were among the prize winners in the Memorial day race.

ASKS RETAILERS TO FOSTER SALE OF SUBSTITUTES

OPM Aid Urges Care in Material Choice.

(Pictures on page 25.)

Methods by which retailers can contribute to the success of the armament program were outlined yesterday by L. Edward Scriven, assistant deputy director of the priorities division of the Office of Production Management.

L. Edward Scriven.

He spoke at the midyear convention of the National Retail Dry Goods association in the Stevens hotel. About 1,500 of the nation's retailers are attending the meetings, which will continue thru Thursday.

"I want to say, with a note of appeal, that the retailers of this nation have it within their power to aid the defense program materially and directly thru the sales and management techniques they adopt," Scriven asserted.

Urges Sale of Substitutes.

Retailers, he said, can offer their aid to the armament program by following such policies as these:

1. Feature and encourage the sale of goods produced from raw materials which are not needed primarily by armament industries.

2. Suggest, or insist, to manufacturers that "you be supplied with goods made from substitute materials or from materials in which there is no danger of a shortage."

3. Train store employés about various phases of the armament program so that they can explain to customers why certain goods may not be on the counters because of shortages in raw materials.

Asks Careful Choices.

Discussing the use of substitute materials, Scriven urged that the new material should be one for which no shortage also might develop in the future.

"When you do go in for the use of substitutes—or encourage your suppliers to do so—try to make broad jumps in your substitutes," he said. "That is, don't change from one material, already short, to another which is in almost the same fix or soon will be."

Scriven declared that retailers would be forced to effect "rapid changes" in their merchandising practices, with distribution of certain types of consumers' goods being impossible.

Forecasts Wash Tub Shortage.

"A big production program for military brass, for example, may and will affect the zinc supply and thereby make it difficult for the retailer to obtain so prosaic an article as a galvanized wash tub," he said. "The shortage of aluminum will affect the production of household objects like washing machines."

He called upon the retailers "to anticipate these problems and have your alternate procedures planned in advance so that you will not be seriously hurt by these changes when they occur." With the armament program serving as a stimulant for general business, Scriven predicted that retailers would enjoy a larger volume of business from increased spending power thruout the country, which he said will develop even in the face of higher taxes.

Charles S. Craigmile, vice president of the Belden Manufacturing company of Chicago, told the retailers that "it is more important than ever that we have peace among ourselves in industry as the best defense against any enemy outside our shores."

Assails Socialist Trends.

"France learned a terrible lesson from which she may never recover," he said, "because she had gone a long way down the road of socialized industry with short hours, restricted output, and labor controversies before the blitzkrieg struck."

By successful solution of present wage problems, Craigmile said that the United States could "insure the future security of our standard of living and our way of life."

"Wages in this country will continue to be the highest in the world if more attention is directed toward the real welfare of our people and less toward the aggrandisement of the individual," he concluded.

I. C. HEAD WARNS ARMAMENT BOOM WON'T LAST LONG

Corporations as well as individuals "should keep their umbrellas mended for the rainy day" of recession which "inevitably" will follow the present war-inspired business upsurge, J. L. Beven, president of the Illinois Central system, cautioned the railroad's employés in a message yesterday.

"We should all realize," he said, "that the present apparent 'prosperity' is one that cannot last. When the needs of defense are met or when peace comes there will inevitably be a collapse of production, of prices, and of earnings."

Corporations and individuals can contribute to national stability by avoiding becoming burdened with debt which accelerates booms and deepens depressions, he said.

The system's revenues during the first four months of 1941 exceeded expenses by $3,484,988, whereas revenues lacked $504,191 of covering expenses in the corresponding 1940 period, he said.

Jury Accuses 194 in West as Price Fixers

San Francisco, Cal., June 3 [Special].—In one of the largest blanket indictments ever returned in the United States, a special federal grand jury today voted six true bills against 194 firms, associations, and individuals as the climax of a month long anti-trust investigation in northern California.

All but one covered branches of the food industry, with firms indicted including the Canners League of California, Dried Fruit Association of California, Evaporated Milk association, California Rice Industry, and Monterey Sardine Industries, Inc.

Battery Firms Hit.

The sixth indictment was returned against certain makers of battery separators, described as "an item of importance in national defense."

All the bills charged violations of the price fixing prohibitions of the Sherman anti-trust act.

Among the indicted were 91 individuals, officers, and directors of various companies. Bail for each was fixed at $1,000 by Federal Judge A. F. St. Sure.

Thurman Arnold, "trust-buster" of the department of justice, who is here for conferences on the anti-monopoly investigations, indicated that additional indictments may be expected within the next few months.

Preceded by 9 Others

Previously blanket indictments were returned against firms and individuals in nine other industries. They were glass, marble, newsprint, electrical contracting, lumber, hardwood flooring, millwork, plastering, and redwood lumber dealers.

Maximum penalty for individuals convicted on the charges is $5,000 fine or one year's imprisonment, or both.

Milk indictments included:

Borden company, New York; Carnation, Milwaukee; Pet Milk company, and Pet Milk Sales corporation, St. Louis; Nestle's Milk Products, New York; Libby, McNeill and Libby, Chicago; Sego Milk Products, Salt Lake City; Armour & Co. of Delaware, Chicago; Swift & Co., Chicago; Morning Milk, Salt Lake City.

DAIRY FARMERS OF STATE BOOST OUTPUT OF MILK

Urbana, Ill., June 3 [Special]. — Illinois dairy farmers are getting a pound of milk more daily from their cows in response to the government's plea for increased production in the food for defense program.

This statement was made by C. S. Rhode, professor of dairy husbandry extension at the University of Illinois, in an address today to testers of more than 80 dairy improvement associations. The testers, representing 2,100 Illinois farmers, opened a two day convention at Urbana today.

"In 1940," Rhode said, "Illinois farmers produced 5 billion 227 million pounds of milk. This year they will increase their production from six to eight per cent."

Dairy farmers in the state are responding favorably to the demands made upon them because they are receiving good prices for their products, Rhode said. Also increases in industrial employment have created a greater market for the dairymen's produce, he said.

$8,212,000 Is Lowest Bid for Detroit Housing Job

Detroit, Mich., June 3 [Special].—The Caldwell Wingate company submitted the low bid today for the construction of S. James Herman gardens, a federal aid housing project to be built here. The firm bid $8,212,000. Starrett Brothers and Michael J. Pontarelli, both of Chicago, were second low with a bid of $8,250,000.

TELLS OIL SALES TO JAPAN WITH U. S. APPROVAL

Standard Co. Chief Bares Shipments.

Flemington, N. J., June 3 [Special].—Under an agreement "negotiated with the full knowledge of the American, British, and Netherlands East Indies governments," the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has arranged to sell additional oil supplies to Japan, it was announced today.

W. S. Farish, company president, made the announcement at the annual meeting of stockholders here. He also disclosed two projected moves by the oil industry to meet the transportation shortage resulting from the transfer of 50 tankers to British service, by coöperating in the construction of new tankers and in the building of another big pipe line to carry petroleum products to the eastern seaboard.

Explains Sale to Japan.

He read the prepared statement to the shareholders, after stating the question of oil shipments to axis powers had been raised and that the corporation wished to explain its position.

Reminding the stockholders of the company's 50 per cent interest in the Standard-Vacuum Oil company, with far eastern headquarters in the Netherlands East Indies, Farish said:

"About six months ago this affiliate joined with a Dutch-British oil company, a major producer in the Netherlands East Indies, in special arrangement, over a limited period, to sell Japan additional supplies of oil and ordinary oil products; 100 octane aviation gasoline, for example, was excluded. To date the Japanese have not taken delivery of the full quantity of products they bargained for."

Not Major Japanese Source.

Asserting the company has marketed oil in the orient for more than 50 years, he said: "Even today, notwithstanding increased deliveries to Japan under terms of the special sales agreement, the total movement of oil from the Dutch East Indies to Japan, including shipments of the Dutch-British company, as well as those of Standard-Vacuum company, are much smaller than Japan imports currently from other sources of supply."

Farish said the New Jersey company "at all times endeavored to adhere strictly to the policy of the United States government," and added:

"So long as the United States maintains normal relations with another country this company must also maintain normal relations. If the company on its own initiative undertook to establish embargoes on shipments from one country to another it might find itself running directly counter to the policy and interests of its own government. Obviously it cannot permit itself to be drawn into such a position."

Tanker Building Planned.

Major eastern oil companies are coöperating in the organization of a ship building company and plan the construction of 36 tankers, he said, but added that legislative amendments were necessary to overcome present anti-trust restrictions. The projected new pipe line, which is in addition to others partly built or planned, is also a coöperative project and will extend from the Texas oil fields to New York City and Philadelphia, he said.

Oust Labor Secretary or Clip Her Powers, Senator Demands

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] called upon President Roosevelt yesterday to remove Frances Perkins as secretary of labor or take from her department the power to certify strikes to the defense mediation board.

Addressing the senate in Washington, he said that on May 31 there were 74 strikes against industries supplying army and navy orders, of which only three had been certified to the mediation board. These figures, he said, did not include 21 threatened strikes or strikes in industries building merchant ships.

Up to the end of last week, he said, there had been no improvement in the armament strike situation since President Roosevelt's fireside chat urging labor and industry to use government mediation and conciliation agencies in settling disputes.

Demand End to Delay.

"I submit," Byrd told the senate, "that there should be no further delay in dealing firmly and sternly with this great menace to our national security and this interference with our aid to Britain in her imminent peril."

The navy, he continued, had informed him that strikes against naval contracts alone had lost to the arms program approximately two million man days of work, enough time, he said, to build eight to ten submarines, six to eight destroyers, or two battle cruisers.

The government's efforts to bring about full resumption of work in the strike-bound shipyards of San Francisco bay moved a step closer to realization when the Bay Cities Metal Trades council [AFL] ordered its metal craft workers to go back to their jobs at the Bethlehem Shipbuilding company pending grievance negotiations. There was no indication that the council's order would affect other machinists who struck after refusing to accept a so-called master contract calling for wages of $1.12 an hour and time and a half for overtime.

Meet on Lumber Strike.

Officials of the CIO International Woodworkers of America met with mediation board representatives in Washington to discuss the board's request that recommendations for settlement of a west coast lumber strike be submitted to the union membership. The session was adjourned until Wednesday without any progress report from either side. The strike involved about 12,000 men in logging camps and other lumber operations in the state of Washington.

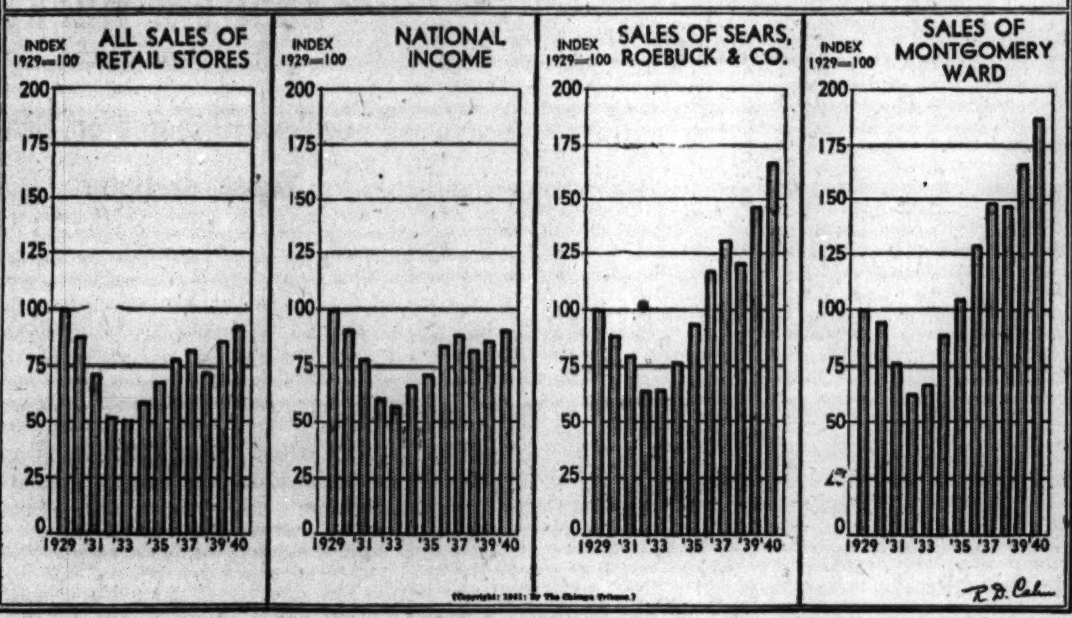
Representatives of AFL metal trades councils of the east coast navy yards, totaling about 125,000 employés, adopted resolutions in convention at Washington asking a flat 10 cent an hour wage increase for all employés covered by the recent wage board report approved by the navy department. The report, approved and made effective by the secretary of the navy last fall, was generally protested by the unions as providing unsatisfactory wage scale adjustments.

Salaried Workers Get Boost.

At Detroit it was disclosed that between 35,000 and 40,000 salaried employés of General Motors corporation were to get increases. All salaried employés receiving $200 or less a month will get a $15 a month raise. Adjusthments are being made on an individual basis for workers receiving more than $200 a month.

At Peoria, Ill., an agreement providing a blanket wage increase of three cents an hour and affecting 13,000 organized and unorganized employés of the Caterpillar Tractor company, was approved by members of the CIO Farm Equipment Workers Organizing committee.

Mail Order Sales Increase Most



War Writers See Expansion in Arms Work

Hartford, Conn., June 3 [Special].—A dozen foreign correspondents, recently returned from European war assignments, today began a flying tour of arms production industries by visiting the big sprawling plant where almost half the airplane engines produced in this country today are being built.

In the factory of Pratt & Whitney and the Hamilton Standard Propeller plant they saw the forging of the power destined to carry British bombs to Germany and to be used by United States' expanding military services. They saw that the engine factory has trebled in size, increased its employés from 2,500 to 17,000, and multiplied its shipments by 10 since 1939. More than 1,300 engines now are being finished every month and the volume is increasing.

Believe Germany Is Matched.

Frederick B. Rentschler, chairman of the board of United Aircraft corporation, of which both Pratt & Whitney and Hamilton Standard are subsidiaries, said he believed United States factories already are producing enough engines to match Germany's present production figures, if current estimates that the Nazis are producing about 3,000 warplanes monthly is correct.

One year from now, unless shortages which already have begun to develop in certain raw materials become serious, Rentschler said, there is no reason why the United States should not be producing about 1,500,000 horespower in airplane engines each month—or about 10,000 motors.

Warns of Material Shortage.

However, the executive warned that shortage of bar steel magnesium and other materials may prove a more serious bottleneck than did machine tools in the earlier stages of the preparedness effort. He said that the production of tanks and ordnance—on order but not yet being manufactured—will make futher inroads on already depleted materials which the aircraft industry needs.

Pratt & Whitney is expecting no shortage of skilled labor despite its continuing expansion. It is conducting a school in which 900 men are being trained in three eight hour shifts to man the specialized machines which fashion the aircraft engines. The factory is operated on a 24 hour basis six days weekly.

The visit of the correspondents to the aircraft plants was the first stop in a survey of arms industries arranged by the National Association of Manufacturers as a demonstration of what is being done to stiffen American defenses and provide more material aid for Great Britain.

NEW BOMBER CONTRACTS

Washington, D. C., June 3 (AP).—The war department announced the award today of two bomber contracts totaling more than 321 million dollars. One for $226,636,200 was awarded to Consolidated Aircraft corporation, San Diego, Cal.; the other for $95,242,696 to Boeing Aircraft company, Seattle, Wash.

Both orders were described by the war department as designed to further President Roosevelt's goal of bomber production at the rate of 500 a month.

The contracts covered both heavy bombers—the four motor variety—and spare parts. Figuring the cost per bomber, plus spare parts, at $400,000 each—an estimate which officials said was conservative—the orders placed today would provide for approximately 800 bombers.

Light Trucks Ordered.

Contracts for more than $1,500,000 worth of quarter ton trucks also were announced. One award of $865,700 went to the Ford Motor company, Dearborn, Mich.; another, for $864,141, to the American Bantam Car company, Butler, Pa.

The war department awarded a $614,553 contract for trailers to the Saginaw Stamping and Tool company, Saginaw, Mich.

The Defense Plant corporation approved $1,367,007 worth of factories and machinery for the manufacture of communication wire for the army signal corps. Of this $353,723 was authorized for construction and equipment at Marion, Ind., to be operated by the Anaconda Wire and Cable company.

Five Air Fields Designated as Federal Ports of Entry

Washington, D. C., June 3 (AP).—The treasury announced today designation of five airports as ports of entry for merchandise carried by plane from foreign countries. They are at Sandusky, O.; Great Falls, Mont.; Havre, Mont.; Spokane, Wash., and Watertown, N. Y.

AVIATION CREWS SING AS THEY WORK, AND UP GOES PRODUCTION

Louisville, Ky., June 3 (AP).—John F. Victory, secretary of the national advisory committee for aeronautics, told a national air conference here today how certain workmen at the committee's laboratories in Langley field, Va., sing at their work by authority of the federal government.

"These employés put together large, wood propellers used in the 'wind tunnels' where aircraft and aircraft parts are tested," explained victory.

"It is necessary that they work fast in superimposing large numbers of layers of laminated wood on each other with glue between. The individual propeller blades must be completed and put in a press before the glue dries.

"It was discovered that when the workmen sang, setting up a cadence for their task, each blade could be completed in 20 minutes. When they didn't sing, it took 27 minutes."

AGREE TO FORBID RFC FUNDS FOR WATERWAY USE

Washington, D. C., June 3 (AP).—A joint congressional committee voted today to forbid the Reconstruction Finance corporation to spend money on the St. Lawrence waterway, the Florida ship canal, the Passamaquoddy tidal project, the Tombigee waterway in the south, and the proposed Nicaraguan canal.

This decision was an agreement worked out by a senate-house conference committee in a compromise of differences over legislation granting President Roosevelt broad powers to create new corporations for armament projects with RFC funds.

When the senate passed this bill it included a restriction limiting funds for any new corporation to $300,000,000, and expressly barred use of the funds for any project rejected by congress since 1926.

The house struck out this section, but set a maximum of $100,000,000 under the theory that none of the projects previously rejected could be carried out for this amount.

Resume Air Service Linking Newark, N. J., with West

Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., has resumed passenger, mail, and express service linking Newark, N. J., directly with Chicago, the west coast, and intermediate points, J. A. Thomas, central regional manager of the air line, announced yesterday.

People and Events

L. A. Ehrhart, Chicago real estate agent for the Pennsylvania railroad, has been appointed agent at New York. He will be succeeded here by John W. Ewalt, assistant real estate agent at Philadelphia.

Earl F. Boyle, Chicago district sales manager for the Johns-Manville corporation, and his assistant, Arthur W. Bergman, have become members of the company's Quarter Century club. They will be guests of honor this evening at a dinner in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Cloud Wampler, president of Stern, Wampler & Co., Chicago, is one of the four new members of the committee directing the national public information program of the Investment Bankers Association of America.

'Boom' in Rail Traffic Near, Budd Predicts

Railroads of the nation, running at full steam to handle an expanding volume of armament shipments, may again experience the boom times of 1926 and 1929, Ralph Budd, who has helped direct the transportation phase of the preparedness effort, predicted yesterday. Budd, president of the Burlington railroad, made the forecast at the 47th annual meeting of the American Association of Railroad Superintendents in the Stevens hotel.

Citing the accelerating rate of increase shown in freight car loadings during recent months, Budd said that estimates of the full year's volume range from 40 to 42 million cars, compared with 36,354,000 in 1940 and nearly 53 million in 1929.

Will Use More Tank Cars.

Diversion of ocean tankers to the service of Great Britain is certain to result in the increased use of railway tank cars for hauling petroleum products to the eastern seaboard, he said. He added that many of these cars have been idle because of the competition of other forms of transportation.

Budd said the railroads have made all preparations to handle the coming grain crop, altho the problem has been made more difficult by the lack of storage space, and predicted the railroads will not allow a repetition of the world war mistake of using cars for storage purposes. The number of cars loaded with all commodities increased 17 per cent in the first five months of 1941 over the corresponding 1940 period, he said.

Set New Iron Ore Record.

The carriers have already achieved a new record in handling the shipment of iron ore, he said, listing shipments for the season to June 1 from Minnesota points to Two Harbors, Duluth, and Superior, at 13,523,246 tons. The former record for a comparable period was set in 1937 at 10,948,662 tons. The present weekly rate of more than 2 million tons is in contrast with the 1,834,145 ton rate during the 1929 peak.

"There is no reason why the present rate of ore movement should not continue," he asserted. "We often have looked with longing at the record traffic of 1926 and 1929 and wondered if it ever would come again. Well, it may be on the way."

Budd is expected to head the railroad division of the Office of Transportation, which President Roosevelt ordered created a few days ago. For a year, Budd had been transportation member of the now extinct national defense advisory commission.

The railway superintendents' meeting will continue thru Thursday.

ARMS SPENDING PASSES 5 BILLION IN LAST 11 MONTHS

Washington, D. C., June 3 [Special].—During the first 11 months of the 1941 fiscal year $5,240,420,822 was spent for national preparedness, the treasury revealed today. This was almost half of total federal expenditure of $11,229,288,081. Expenditures under the lease-lend act so far have amounted to $6,758,246, according to the report.

Of the spending "for defense purposes," the army got $3,128,383,324 and the navy $1,970,060,201. The sum of $103,312,746 went to the President's defense fund. Selective service administration took $15,512,233. The sum of $5,729,571 was devoted to emergency ship construction and $10,664,488 to armament housing.

ELECTRIC POWER SUPPLY AMPLE, SURVEY OF COUNTRY DISCLOSES

Big Reserve Ready to Help Industry Boost Output.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Buffalo, N. Y., June 3.—American industry has an untapped reservoir of electric power sufficient to increase its production by nearly 20 per cent, C. W. Kellogg, president of the Edison Electric institute and chief of the power division, Office of Production Management, said today at the ninth annual convention of the organziation.

C. W. Kellogg.

To put this unused power to work, he explained, industry will have to work 24 hours a day seven days a week—an exacting schedule which the electric industry follows. During a large part of the night the thousands of electric generating plants thruout the nation are producing power—in reduced amounts—while machines in industrial plants are idle.

Big Increase Possible.

If all industry would use the entire 24 hours of the day to keep its machines at work, the utilities easily could step up their electric power production by 15 to 20 per cent, Kellogg said. This increase in the generation of electricity would be "sufficient to carry a further increase in industrial production of nearly 20 per cent," he declared.

Altho he did not mention him by name, Kellogg took issue with the recent statement by Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, that the nation faces a power shortage. When all factors are taken into consideration, he said, the allegation that a power shortage exists is unwarranted. The nation has an adequate supply of power, thanks to the big increases in electric generating capacity made during the last few years, he explained.

Kellogg said that another power safety margin is the ability of steam generating plants to exceed their rated capacities in an emergency by 10 to 15 per cent for a moderate period.

View on War Needs.

"The experience of the war in Europe has shown that modern warfare is essentially a matter of industrial production," Kellogg said. "The bravest and most patriotic of peoples are relatively helpless without an adequate supply of airplanes, tanks, artillery, and explosives. To produce these and many articles allied with them has required a huge construction program of buildings and machinery and the rapid accumulation of stocks of the necessary materials.

"It is gratifying to report that this construction program is well ahead of schedule, and by midsummer we shall be on a mass production basis on all the materials needed for our own protection and for aid to Britain. With our national genius for industrial production, no nation on earth should be better able than ours to meet the challenge of aggression with mechanical weapons.

Adequate Power Required.

"This great effort requires an adequate supply of electrical power, not only to turn the wheels of industry, but also to supply the needs of the great electro-chemical and electrometallurgical industries. The private utilities have 2,103,000 kilowatts of new generating capacity scheduled for completion in 1941, 2,459,000 in 1942, and already 827,000 and 180,000 planned for 1943 and 1944, respectively. In addition federal and municipal authorities plan extensive increases."

William P. Witherow, chairman of the defense committee of the National Manufacturers' association and president of the Blaw-Knox company, said that the preparedness program commitments to date total 44 billion 700 million dollars, including British pledges. Contracts actually let to date total 18 billion 900 million, he said.

The first prize in the George Hughes awards for furthering the use of electricity went to the Carolina Power and Light company, Raleigh, N. C. Hughes, a Chicagoan, is chairman of the board of the Hot Point company.

Only TVA Is Found Falling Short of Requirements.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A national survey by THE TRIBUNE disclosed yesterday that an ample supply of electric power exists in the key manufacturing centers outside the area served by the Tennessee Valley authority.

Officials of the privately operated power companies in these centers were emphatic in declaring that there is no power shortage at present and none in prospect even with a further increase in the armament load. By planning their construction programs years ahead, the companies are in position to meet the increased demand growing out of the rearmament program. Present demands are being easily met and surplus capacity exists or is in the process of construction that will enable the companies to care for all anticipated increases.

Power Load Much Increased.

The power load in all the manufacturing centers has increased greatly since the rearmament program got under way a year ago. The increased demand was anticipated by the engineers of the private companies.

The regular practice of the companies is to plan construction three to five years ahead, determining the amount of new capacity needed by the normal growth in demand and taking into consideration the possibility of abnormal increases. The private companies have made provision in recent months for additional generating capacity over and above that which they would need to meet the normal increase in demand.

There is little likelihood, the utility officials agreed, that it will be necessary to ask consumers to curtail ordinary use of electricity as has been done in the TVA area. The TVA has requested domestic consumers to cut down their use of electricity to save power for the industries engaged in production of war materials.

TVA Calculations Miscarry.

The request was made when the calculations of the TVA engineers miscarried as a result of low water in the southeast. Because of TVA's inability to deliver power in sufficient volume the production of aluminum for national armament is threatened.

Outside of the TVA area the supply of power does not depend to the same degree on hydro-electric plants. In some regions hydro-electric power is used to supplement the output of steam plants, but in no instances have the private companies relied on water power plants to the same extent as the TVA. Out of years of experience the utility industry has learned that hydro plants are not a dependable source of power unless backed up by steam facilities that can be called into service when a shortage of water develops.

Chicago Has Reserve Power.

The reports made to THE TRIBUNE by company officials in New York, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, and other important manufacturing centers closely conform to report on the Chicago area made by the engineers of the Commonwealth Edison company.

The Chicago power pool has reserve capacity of 400,000 kilowatts, and this surplus will be maintained as new facilities, now under construction, are brought in during the next two years. The six major armament projects located in the Chicago area in the last year will add 58,000 kilowatts to the Edison company's power load when they reach full operation. This addition to the power load, plus other demand growing out of the armament program, will be absorbed by the pool without cutting into the existing reserve.

Situation at New York.

With overall capacity of 2,433,700 kilowatts, the Consolidated Edison Company of New York is prepared to meet any demand for power that may develop, officials said. The peak load on the company's system last winter was 1,731,000 kilowatts. A company

POWER SUPPLY AMPLE, BROAD SURVEY REVEALS

Only TVA Area Falling Short of Needs.

An adequate supply of power is available in the Buffalo-Niagara Falls region in New York state where a large part of the country's electro chemicals, essential to the arms industry, is produced, Col. William Kelly, vice president of the Niagara Hudson Power company, said. The Niagara Hudson system spent 22 million dollars last year and is spending another 21 millions this year in expanding its facilities. Rated capacity of the system is 1,955,000 kilowatts, not including an 80,000 kilowatt hydro station now idle.

J. W. Parker, vice president and chief engineer of the Detroit Edison company, said that company has been able to maintain an ample reserve capacity, altho industry in the Detroit area is operating at or near capacity levels. The present reserve, he said, is 135,000 kilowatts and this will be increased 150,000 by the installation of new turbines which will keep the company ahead of the potential increase in demand for an indefinite period. Of the company's total capacity of 990,000 kilowatts, only 10,000 kilowatts are dependent on water power.

"Can't Have Any Excuses."

Referring to the shortage in the TVA area, Parker said, "We can't have any excuses. We can't say, 'We are sorry it didn't rain this spring.' We've got to have the capacity to deliver the power and we've got it."

Altho Pittsburgh, as a steel and heavy goods manufacturing center has experienced a greater increase in power demand than other cities, officials of the companies serving that area said that all demands are being met and will be met in the future.

West Penn Power company, operating in western Pennsylvania, Ohio, and West Virginia, is not concerned about a possible shortage, H. S. Mitchell, president, said. "Our company has met all demands and has excess capacity for any one that wants more power," he reported.

H. S. Liversidge, president of the Philadelphia Electric company, said the company's engineers had anticipated the present enlarged demand for power and had made preparations for it. The company serves the metropolitan Philadelphia area.

Supplies Power to TVA.

H. C. Blackwell, president of the Cincinnati Gas and Electric company, disclosed that for the last week the company has been supplying surplus power to the TVA area to help make up the shortage there. About 25,000 kilowatt capacity has been used for this purpose.

"We have a comfortable surplus of generating capacity and we are installing equipment that will add 65,000 kilowatts to our present 370,000 kilowatt capacity," Blackwell said.

The Cleveland manufacturing area, served by the Cleveland Electric Illuminating company, has an aggregate capacity of 739,000 kilowatts and a present reserve sufficient to meet all demands, E. G. Crawford, president of the company, reported. The company is now spending 18 million dollars to enlarge its facilities.

Others Meet All Demands.

Officials of the electric power companies serving the Los Angeles and San Francisco areas reported a satisfactory situation in those centers. Both companies said that all power demands could be filled.

With the information made available yesterday to THE TRIBUNE, utility executives hope to convince the power commission representatives that the present "emergency" does not extend beyond the boundaries of the TVA territory. The statements from Washington officials, company spokesmen said, have fostered the impression that a nationwide power shortage is impending.

BANK CLOSES OUT DEPOSITS, AVOIDS "FORCED LOANS"

J. M. Nichols, president of the First National Bank of Englewood, announced yesterday that his bank has closed out all of its large commercial deposit accounts "to put itself in a position to meet the emergency."

The staff will be reduced, and the bank will accept only commercial deposit accounts of less than $5,000, Nichols said. The last large deposit, $170,000, was withdrawn yesterday at the bank's request. Discontinuance of savings accounts was announced by Nichols on Monday. Employes who will be released already have found jobs in other banks, Nichols said.

Nichols asserted he expects the government soon to force banks to put their idle funds into the special type of nontransferable bond which the treasury recently announced would be made available to banks only. The bank chose to return the large accounts to their owners rather than face the possibility of such forced investment, he said. Demand deposits were listed at $2,881,904 as of April 4.

FILE STOCK ISSUE.

The Wisconsin Electric Power company of Milwaukee filed with the SEC a registration statement covering the issue of 58,710 shares of 4½ per cent cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value. The stock, which is outstanding, is being sold by the company's parent, the North American company.

COTTON

Cotton futures closed near the highs yesterday as activity in the Worth Street market stimulated trading. Buying of cotton goods increased considerably with reports that southern mills are threatened with shutdowns because of a shortage of electric power.

Cash cotton closed .10 to .19 cent a pound higher, with New York, 13.77 cents; New Orleans, 13 cents; Houston, 12.90 cents, and Galveston 12.85 cents. Futures prices follow:

STOCKS WHIP UP BEST RALLY FOR ABOUT 2 WEEKS

Brokers Disagree on Real Cause of Upturn.

New York, June 3 (AP).—The stock market today put on the best rally in about two weeks with little in the way of outstanding news to account for the upswing.

The list, hesitant at the start, began to climb near midday and gains ran to a point or two for active issues. Dealings were lively for a brief interval, then slackened. Closing prices were under the tops in many instances.

Sales Best Since May 21.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues held a net advance of .4 of a point at 40.1, largest for any single session since May 20. Transfers totaled 417,940 shares, biggest turnover since May 21, compared with 255,308 yesterday.

Brokerage explanations of the comeback varied. Most felt the buying revival was due principally to the fact selling had dried up to virtually nothing in the face of depressing war developments, labor rifts, and tax uncertainties.

Then, too, mounting wages and strength in commodities brought in a little more inflationary psychology. Drawbacks, however, still were seen in broadening governmental controls and price "ceilings."

CHICAGO LIST RISES.

Gains outnumbered losses in limited trading on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Commonwealth Edison, General Motors, and Swift each advanced ⅛ point, Elgin National Watch rose ⅝, and Serrick class B stock moved up ⅜ point to a new 1941 high at 4¼. Miller & Hart led the list in volume with a turnover of 1,500 shares, the stock closing ⅛ lower at ⅞. Only one dually listed issue changed in price during the half hour the exchange remained open after the New York close, Consolidated Oil rising ⅛ to 6¼.

OFFER PURE OIL SENIOR SHARES PURCHASED IN '37

Smith, Barney & Co. yesterday offered 8,946 shares of Pure Oil company 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock at $90.50 a share net. The stock is part of a block of 442,443 shares purchased from the company by seven underwriters in 1937. It was reported that yesterday's offering would reduce the unsold portion in the hands of underwriters to about 49,000 shares.

Paul H. Davis & Co. offered 7,000 shares of Fairbanks, Morse & Co. stock, reportedly acquired from C. H. Morse, a former director of the company who is no longer actively identified with the management.

FORECLOSURE SUITS DECREASE TO 15 YEAR LOW

Real estate foreclosure suits filed in Cook county last month totaled 107, the smallest number in 15 years, Kenneth E. Rice, vice president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, reported yesterday. The dollar volume, $756,846, was the smallest for any month since records have been kept.

The largest number of such suits filed in any month during the depression was 1,647 for August, 1932. In dollar volume, the depression peak was 64 millions for December, 1931.

PRICES OF SUGAR AND COFFEE LEAD COMMODITY RISE

Most Futures Record Substantial Gains.

A new 1941 high for Santos coffee and an advance in the price of refined sugar were the outstanding developments in yesterday's commodity trading. Staples for future delivery continued Monday's general revival, with cottonseed oil, hides, lead, cocoa, and silk recording substantial gains.

Santos coffee closed 0.07 to 0.18 cent a pound higher on an improved turnover of 50,000 bags, the July delivery moving to a top of 10.39 cents.

Cottonseed Oil Advances.

Cottonseed oil futures advanced 0.11 to 0.14 cent a pound on buying, apparently stimulated by reports of increasing demand for cash oil. Hides finished unchanged to 0.16 cent a pound higher and cocoa gained 0.23 to 0.25 cent a pound.

Following the action of a major producer on Monday, sugar refiners announced an overnight advance of 0.10 cent a pound to 5.05 cents. This eliminated most of the 0.15 cent cut made a few weeks ago. Domestic sugar futures, finding some support in continued firmness in raws, closed unchanged to 0.01 cent lower.

FEDERAL DEMAND FOR RIVER SHIPS DRAWS PROTEST

Viewed as Severe Blow to S. American Trade.

The government's commandeering of two of the best ships of the only American flag line linking the Mississippi valley with the east coast of South America by way of the gulf was protested yesterday by the Mississippi Valley association.

Lachlan Macleay of St. Louis, president of the association, warned that unless substitute ships were made available to maintain the present service, trade relationships developed at great cost and effort would be endangered. He said manufacturers in Chicago and other industrial centers thruout the valley, as well as South American business men, were vitally concerned in the government's step.

Takes Over Newest Ships.

The United States maritime commission on Friday ordered the Mississippi Shipping Company, Inc., of New Orleans to turn over two of its newest ships, the Delorleans and the Deltargentino, to the navy as soon as they return to New Orleans. The Delorleans is due today at the gulf port and the other ship is scheduled to return June 25.

One of the vessels already is booked to capacity for a return trip to Brazil and Argentina and the other is partly booked. Both carry passengers as well as freight.

In his statement warning against interference with South American trade at a time when the axis powers are seeking to capture that field, Macleay urged that the government permit the vessels to make another round trip to dispose of commitments already made.

Regarded Serious Step.

"In these days of talk of western hemisphere solidarity, one of the nation's greatest problems centers around the economic situation in South America," he said. "In this connection, the two ships, with others in the company's fleet, are performing valuable services, and it is a serious matter to take them off their route on such abrupt notice. Unless the navy is in a crisis the vessels should be permitted to make another round trip to take care of freight already booked.

"The people of South America, whose friendship and trade we want to keep, will be seriously inconvenienced by this sudden move to take over these two boats, unless substitute service is provided immediately."

The new boats were bought by the line from the commission under a contract specifying that the ships could be requisitioned by the commission in an emergency.

SENATE PASSES BILL AIDING U. S. SUGAR MAKERS

Washington, D. C., June 3 (AP).—Altho the administration termed it a denial of the good neighbor policy, a bill to give domestic producers a share of any sugar quota increases caused by a shortage of imports from the Philippines was passed today by the senate, 45 to 26.

Under existing law, any unfilled part of the Philippine quota must be allotted in quota increases to foreign countries other than Cuba. The proposal is to give the first 75,000 tons of the Philippine deficit to these foreign countries and the remainder to domestic producers, continental and offshore.

Because of shipping difficulties and high freight rates, sugar state legislators said this year's Philippine deficit would be 100,000 to 300,000 tons.

SEC TRIES TO BAR DISSOLUTION IT SAID WAS NEEDED

Will Ask Court to Block Vote by Utility.

Washington, D. C., June 3 (AP).—Asserting its right to forbid the dissolution of an intermediate holding company, the Securities and Exchange commission announced today that it would seek a federal court injunction to forestall such a move by the North American company.

The action was without precedent inasmuch as it placed the SEC in the position of trying to block elimination of a holding company which its attorneys already had said had no place in the system.

Planned Own Dissolution.

The company planned to undertake the dissolution itself at a meeting tomorrow in Wilmington, Del. Several times today SEC members asked that no action be taken pending further study but S. Pearce Browning Jr., representing North American, refused to make any concession beyond a 4½ hour postponement of the meeting, scheduled originally for 10 a. m.

Chester T. Lane, SEC general counsel, said that the commission would ask the federal District court at Wilmington tomorrow morning for a restraining order and Browning indicated that he would welcome the court test.

SEC Charges Big Profit.

The subsidiary directly involved is North American Light & Power company. North American owns 62.4 per cent of the Light & Power's outstanding debentures, 43.7 per cent of the preferred stock, and 85 per cent of the common stock.

SEC attorneys said that North American would receive $14,852,422 for debentures and preferred stock in which it invested only $7,604,455.

North American lawyers asserted, however, that the company would receive nothing from the 5,327,067 shares of common stock in which it had invested $22,000,000, and thus stood to lose about $15,000,000 net.

RAILROAD LETS ORDERS FOR 1,050 MORE NEW CARS

The Missouri Pacific railroad yesterday announced it had placed orders for 1,050 more freight cars, including 800 to be built by American Car and Foundry company and 250 to be made by Mount Vernon Car company. The new contracts raise to 2,422 the number of cars the road has on order.

Harriman Ripley & Co. was awarded an issue of $11,250,000 of Southern Railway equipment trust certificates maturing in 1 to 10 years on a bid of 100.1779 for the issue as 2s.

Proceeds will provide the bulk of funds needed to pay for 4,000 new freight cars, 5 Diesel-electric switch engines, and 25 baggage express cars.

Summertime Tasks.

June 3, 1941.

ONE of the most important jobs in the summer management of a flock of sheep has been finished at the farm. The sheep have been drenched, and the new lambs have been eartagged for registration purposes.

The greatest enemy of the farm flock on summer pasture is the stomach worm. If a flock becomes heavily infested with worms, the sheep become thin, sour, and often die. The worms draw blood from the animals and secrete poisons that reduce the number of red blood cells and the hemoglobin content of the blood.

Getting Rid of Worms.

The accepted manner of guarding against an infestation is by drenching the animals internally with a worm medicine. The preparation used at the farm is the common bluestone solution. This is made by dissolving one pound of pure copper sulphate crystals in about nine and a half gallons of water.

The drench is administered with a syringe. The sheep received about two ounces and the lambs from three quarters to one ounce of the solution. The sheep were held firmly by one farm worker while another inserted the syringe in the side of the animal's mouth. The sheep's muzzle was held closed, and the medicine was administered slowly to avoid strangulation.

After drenching, the sheep were turned out into a small part of the barn lot where they will get rid of most of their worms.

One member of the flock wasn't treated, the two year old wether that had been wandering about with the flock putting fat on his bones. He had been butchered the day before. The flockmaster decided the wether was fat enough for slaughter, and that any more feed the animal ate would constitute a loss as it had reached a desirable weight. The sheep dressed out weighing 41 pounds, a nice sized carcass. The meat was placed in a cold storage locker until the various cuts are needed.

Effects of Fresh Grass.

The effect of the fresh grass pasture the dairy cattle have been getting has shown up clearly in their monthly tests. Spring pasture tends to increase the milk flow and cut down the amount of butter fat in the milk. The grass is full of water and helps to make milk, but it does not contain enough nutrients to keep the butter fat content of the milk high.

In April, the herd, with 17 cows milking, gave 902.2 pounds of milk, and 48.02 pounds of butter fat. The test was 5.01 per cent. This month's test, with 16 cows milking, showed 936.4 pounds of milk, and 44.98 pounds of butter fat testing 4.80 per cent.

The herdsman is feeding the cows a little extra grain to help keep up their body weight while they are on pasture.

CROP PROSPECTS FAIL TO CHECK WHEAT ADVANCE

Record U. S. Supplies Are Indicated.

Estimates by trade crop reporters that the United States would have the largest supply of wheat in its history when the new crop is harvested failed to prevent a further rise of 1½ to 1⅞ cents a bushel in Chicago wheat prices yesterday. Most other grains closed fractionally higher. Buying by flour mills was the principal wheat market influence.

The average of the forecasts by four crop reporters indicated a total 1941 wheat yield in the United States of 881 million bushels. This compares with 817 million bushels in 1940 and indicates the largest production since 1938.

Supply to Top 1931 Record.

Traders said that altho the crop wasn't the largest this country has produced, when coupled with the estimated carry-over of old crop wheat of 395 million bushels [department of agriculture estimate], it will mean the United States will have a total supply of approximately 1,276,000,000 bushels. Nearest approach to a wheat supply of this size was in 1931, when current production and carry-over totaled 1,270,000,000 bushels.

Traders recalled that 1931 production was bolstered by a huge carryover of old crop wheat, most of which was owned by the farm board. They said that most of the carryover this year is owned by another government agency, the Commodity Credit corporation. Henry Morgenthau, now secretary of the treasury, was appointed by President Roosevelt early in his first administration to liquidate wheat holdings of the farm board.

Buys Up Larger Hoard.

Traders commented that while the Roosevelt administration was able to liquidate the farm board's holdings, it accumulated an even larger supply.

The estimates of the crop reporters follow:

	Winter wheat	Spring wheat
	[Millions of bu.]
H. C. Donovan..................	680	201
Nat C. Murray..................	708	209
C. M. Galvin....................	680	195
E. H. Miller.....................	635	200
Average	680	201

A month ago the department of agriculture estimated a winter wheat crop of 653 million bushels. The average winter wheat crop for the last ten years was 569 million bushels and the average spring, 178 million bushels.

LARGE RECEIPTS DROP HOG PRICE LEVEL 15 CENTS

Unusually large receipts of hogs yesterday forced the market at the stock yards to the lowest price levels in two weeks. Prices fell unevenly 10 to 25 cents, with most pressure on heavy butchers and all sows. Both the top and average prices for the session showed 15 cents decline, at $9.45 and $9.20 a hundred pounds, respectively.

Federal pork purchases lately have been rather light. Last week's total was 4,260,000 pounds of lard, 170,632 pounds of canned pork and 1,230,000 pounds of cured and frozen pork.

Strong to 25 cents higher prices were paid for the majority of lambs. City butchers paid a top of $12.25 a hundredweight for the best. Most steers and yearlings brought steady to strong prices.

FARMERS GIVEN DETAILS OF CROP MARKETING PLAN

Must Show 'White Card' to Each Purchaser.

Every farmer selling wheat this summer will have to show the buyer a "white card" from the Agricultural Adjustment administration to show that the grain is not subject to penalty for violation of marketing quotas, officials of the department of agriculture disclosed yesterday. They also said that provisions have been made for farmers to borrow from the Commodity Credit corporation on wheat grown in excess of quotas.

AAA committeemen from 40 states and CCC representatives and officials from Minneapolis, Kansas City, and Chicago met with Washington officials of the two government agencies in the Morrison hotel yesterday to discuss parity prices. Marketing quotas will be discussed today.

Cards to Be Mailed Soon.

James M. Byrns, chief of program operation for the AAA, explained that the white cards would be mailed to growers immediately, notifying them how much of their wheat is "free" wheat and may be sold at prevailing market prices. Other wheat will be subject to a 49 cents a bushel penalty under the quota program, Byrns said.

William MacArthur, director of the grain division of the Commodity Credit corporation, said loans on wheat grown in excess of allotments would be made at 60 per cent of the loan rate prevailing in the region in which the grain is stored.

CCC to Issue Certificates.

MacArthur said that the loan program had been greatly simplified this year. He said that the corporation will issue certificates on pledged wheat this year and that the farmer may borrow on the certificate rather than on a warehouse receipt.

"The Chicago office of the Commodity Credit corporation will move 10 million bushels of corn out of this area to Buffalo and Albany and other eastern ports to make space for the new wheat crop," MacArthur said.

Purchase Forms in Metal Control Program Available

Forms which manufacturers will be required to use in making sworn statements when purchasing numerous metals under the government's inventory control program are available at the industrial department of the Chicago Association of Commerce, the association announced yesterday. The control program, handled by the Office of Production Management, will go into effect June 10.

SWIFT DEBENTURES.

I would appreciate having your comment on Swift 2¾ per cent bonds.—K. E.

Answer: Swift & Co. has outstanding $12,500,000 of 2¾ per cent debentures due May 1, 1961, which were offered to the public last April. The issue was part of a $25,000,000 refunding operation to retire a similar amount of 3¾ per cent first mortgage bonds.

The new debentures are a direct obligation of the company but are not secured by any mortgage. The company has the right to redeem these debentures before their maturity in amounts not less than 1 million dollars on 30 days' notice. The redemption price is 102 before May 2, 1946, and the premium diminishes gradually thereafter until the price drops to par after May 1, 1960.

The debentures are regarded as a high grade investment because of the issuing company's financial position and ability to meet its fixed charges. Swift's latest balance sheet showed cash of $30,481,000 on Oct. 26, 1940, the end of the fiscal year, more than enough to pay its total funded debt. Net working capital was $142,544,000.

Swift was able to cover the fixed charges on its old funded debt an average of 4.53 times in the last 10 years.

Fixed charges were reduced by the recent refunding. Because of this lower debt expense, the margin by which the company's earnings are exceeding its fixed charges has been increased.

Swift is the world's largest meat packer. The company also deals in dairy products and poultry, makes various food products, and processes by-products of its meat packing operations.

TAX EXEMPT?

Are all municipal bonds exempt or are some subject to federal income taxes?—M. B.

Answer: Interest from obligations of states, counties, cities, and other municipalities are considered entirely exempt from federal income tax laws as currently interpreted by the courts. However, the United States treasury has questioned the tax exempt status of some types of municipal bonds, such as those of the Port of New York Authority and other similar public corporations.

The treasury recently filed test cases against seven holders of Port Authority bonds in an effort to establish the legality of its contention that it has the authority to tax the income from bonds of such public corporations.

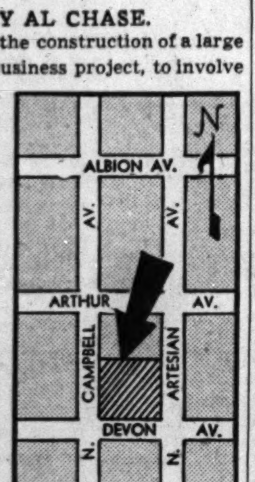
PLAN BUSINESS PROJECT, BLOCK LONG, ON DEVON

Construction to Cost More than 1⅓ Millions.

BY AL CHASE.

Plans for the construction of a large north side business project, to involve a total cost of more than 1⅓ million dollars, were disclosed yesterday thru the filing at the county recorder's office of a half million dollar building loan. It will be used to finance the erection of a block long one and two story business structure on the north side of Devon avenue, between Artesian and Campbell avenues.



Arrow indicates site of project.

The largest tenant in the new building will be Hillman's, which will open its eighth and biggest food store in the Chicago area next October. It will contain 51,500 square feet of floor space—comprising the entire basement and space on the first and second floors. The Hillman lease is for 25 years on a minimum guarantee and percentage of profits basis.

Other Shop Space Leased.

Other leases have been made with Neisner's, Inc., for 20 years; Lerner's shops, women's wearing apparel, 15 years, and Sally Frock shops, 10 years. Arthur Rubloff, head of Arthur Rubloff & Co., which assembled the site and will manage the property, said negotiations for leases on the remaining space are nearing completion.

Every store in the building will be completely air conditioned, Rubloff said. In addition, the tenants will have available space for the parking of 500 customers' cars.

Owned By Wallen Family.

The land is owned by William L. Wallen Sr. and his sons, William Jr. and Archie W. Title is held by Willarch, Inc. [the name is made up of parts of the two sons' names], of which the father is president and the sons vice president and secretary.

The building, designed by Leichenko & Esser, will cost a reported $700,000; the land represents an investment of $300,000, and $350,000 will be spent on fixtures and equipment in the various stores, it was said. Willarch, Inc., negotiated a $500,000 20 year loan at 4 per cent hru the New England Mutual Life Insurance company. Completion of the entire project is set for Oct. 1.

BANKERS URGE 'SAVE AS NEVER BEFORE' TO HEAD OFF INFLATION

San Francisco, Cal., June 3 (AP).—New York bankers, in addresses today before the savings conference of the American Institute of Banking, called on the country to save, "as never before," in order to avoid inflation.

J. H. Roberts, assistant controler of the South Brooklyn Savings bank, said, "It is axiomatic that thrift and savings are contra-inflation."

Even tho it will test the ingenuity of bankers to invest the savings, Roberts urged the fostering of savings to preserve "the ideals, values, and institutions which are America."

W. H. Tietjen of the Bowery Savings bank recommended propaganda for thrift to counteract "the disturbing influences that a continued easy cerdit policy will inevitably bring about."

J. A. Kaiser, assistant auditor of the Williamsburg Savings bank, New York, asserted "thrift education should be a part of the curriculum of every school."

Air Express Units to Aid Speedup of Rearmament

Washington, D. C., June 3 (AP).—To speed output of munitions, the war department completed arrangements today with 17 air and rail express agencies to ship "emergency items" by air to any point in the United States and to Central and South American ports. Tools, motors, blueprints, and machinery parts needed to prevent production bottlenecks will be expedited to any point.

NATIONAL FIRE'S NEW OFFICES TO BE FINISHED BY '42

F. D. Layton, president of the 53 million dollar National Fire Insurance Company of Hartford [Conn.], announced yesterday that the company's new home office building, valued at $1,635,403, will be completed at Hartford by the end of the year. He is making a periodic inspection of the Chicago office, which handles the midwestern business.

LOST AND FOUND.

TO FINDERS

If you have found a cat or dog, a pocketbook, jewelry, or fur, and cannot locate the owner thru the "Lost and Found" advertisements in The Tribune, call and go thru the "Lost and Found" index in the PUBLIC SERVICE OFFICE, 1 S. DEARBORN-STREET.
